Response so far 'good'

Hospital developers await area medical survey results

by LYNN ASINOF

Developers of a proposed full-service hospital in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove are waiting for the results of two surveys on medical needs in the area before deciding to file for a hospital permit with the state.

Norman Davis, hospital consultant for the unnamed group of developers, said yesterday these surveys are not yet complete. He said planning for the hospital cannot proceed until developers review the surveys to see if there is a need for a hospital in the Wheeling area.

Preliminary response to a survey of the professional medical community in the area has been good so far, according to Davis. He said about 60 of 125 surveys have been returned.

"It's been a pretty good response," he said. "I was quite surprised." Davis said, however, he is now waiting for a survey of area residents to be completed. He said this survey is actually more important to preliminary studies on the proposed hospital.

"That's the thing that I'm waiting on. It's like a Gallup Poll-type thing," he said. "That will show medical habits and where they're going and why, and that will really help us determine our service area."

THE COMMUNITY survey, however, has not yet been started, according to Village Pres. Ted Scanlon. "We're completing the work on it so we know what we're doing," he said. "I have to get the paper work ready first."

According to Davis, the local survey is going to be conducted by a village community organization. Scanlon said he has not yet decided which village group will handle the survey.

When he announced plans for the hospital last month, Scanlon said the community survey would be under way in about a week. He also said the village was about "six inches away" from finalizing plans for the hospital which would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, western Northbrook and areas just north of Wheeling.

SCANLON SAID the hospital site would range from 200 to 450 beds. He declined to name the group developing the project, but described the developers as a not-for-profit organization.

The group has been negotiating for the Childerly Retreat House property at 505 McHenry Rd., The Herald has learned. No action has been taken to purchase the site since plans for the hospital are still tentative, Davis said.

If the survey shows a positive need for a hospital in Wheeling, the developers will then file with the state for a permit and submit plans to Comprehensive Health Planning Inc., a quasi-governmental planning agency.

"If this survey was positive in that it showed a need for a hospital of 150 beds on up, we'd be willing to take a crack at it," he said. "But there's a possibility this thing may show there's no need, and then we'd say goodbye."

DAVIS SAID he did not think it would take long to finalize the feasibility study once the data from the surveys is available.

Scanlon said he has been contacted by some people who have expressed opposition to the hospital. He said he is planning to meet with Alan Weinstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, who has questioned the need for another hospital in the area.

According to Scanlon, the meeting will be "to see what the problems are and to discuss the pros and cons."

Weinstein and other regional health planners have said that a new hospital in Wheeling may prove an unnecessary facility which will increase health care costs in the area.

'Mysterious Island' at Wheeling High

"Mysterious Island," a Jules Verne movie, will be shown free to area children at noon Saturday in Neptune's Den, located above the indoor pool next to Wheeling High School.

Children attending the movie will be able to swim at half-price in the pool that afternoon. Those without swim passes will be charged 25 cents.

The film is part of an ongoing movie series sponsored by the Wheeling Park District. Popcorn, candy and pop will be sold.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aide. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE
and KAREN BLECHIA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forehead. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teenagers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscathed, unseathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Shotgun shells found near scene

Body of murder victim found in Busse Woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday. INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vaniek of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-iek said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

At Green Turnip Community Survival Symposium

Politicos discuss 'survival' of their craft

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Shades of 1972. Beginnings of 1974. What — other than a Green Turnip Community Survival Symposium at Oaktown Community College — could offer the reminiscence of last year's political campaign.

There was Abner Mikva. A lawyer now. A former Congressman. Mikva walked in 15 fashionable minutes late for the discussion "How Politicians can Survive."

There was Floyd Fulle. A Cook County board member. Soon to become chairman of the county Republican party. GOP committeeman in Maine Township.

There was Herman Block. Not a politician. A scholar. Director of Research for Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines. A scientist interested in government control over his industry.

A common bond united Fulle and Mikva at the scene of 1972 politicking. Both men lost election to now U. S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, that year. Fulle dropped the GOP primary to Young and Mikva was defeated in a close race for the House seat.

The scenario was not dramatic. But, the feeling of a warmup for 1974 was there.

WEDNESDAY'S symposium was the first of three appearances Mikva has scheduled in the area within two weeks. Although Mikva is a close-mouth about political aspirations, his backers, who helped fill the assembly room Wednesday night, envision another run for Congress.

Fulle is not hiding his plans. His goal is to retain his 10-year county board seat and to become party chairman in Cook County. No Congress try for him.

The political discussion was low-key with a subtle, frustrated agreement by the three panel members that political leadership is lacking on varying government levels.

Fulle's leaderlessness is a frustration over county control of spending. Talking in terms of "people and money," Fulle sees expenses of the county that are mandated by the General Assembly and cannot be controlled by the elected county board.

BLOCK SEES a Congress that is afraid to lead because its members are not versed in economics and science. Environmental regulations are ineffective because they are impossible to implement, he said.

Mikva sees a leaderless country because Presidents have become "style leaders," not legislators. President Roosevelt used a cigarette holder and the fad spread throughout the country. President Kennedy sat in a rocking chair and "the rocking chair industry boomed. We have so lowered the presidency that we find it very hard to look up to him," he said.

The solution is a remodeled form of government, panel members said.

CHANGE WOULD include stiff ethics legislation (Mikva), regional government to control regional problems (Fulle) and possible government financing of campaigns (Mikva and Block).

The problem of government is "not an arrogance of power . . . but cowardice to lead and vote your convictions," Mikva said.

Floyd T. Fulle

"Politicians will survive," Fulle said. More than 1.5 million persons are elected to government posts in the United States. "The great majority are honest people trying to do a job."

"People are zeroing in on those who are not doing the job. You don't have to destroy the system to change it," Fulle said.

INCREASED ATTENTION to ethics in government is caused by "the media — bless them — who are on the spot," Mikva said. "All things are now performed on a stage where all of us can be informed about what's going on."

Kusper defends election law reform before clerks

Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper walked into a lions' den in Des Plaines this week.

Kusper wined and dined about 60 township and municipal clerks from the Northwest suburbs at the Wednesday luncheon but drew criticism for:

• Support of Illinois Senate Bill 1181 and House Bill 1102 which would revise state election laws;

• A hint that the Democratic clerk's office will open branch offices in the suburbs.

KUSPER IS ONE of four persons who worked for nearly nine years to draft the Illinois election law bill that is opposed by most local officials and the Illinois Municipal League. The Senate bill would pass control of elections from municipal and township clerks to Kusper's office.

The bill — called "Kusper's Code" — would consolidate election dates and "would save millions of dollars for the taxpayers," he said. "We took the position that elections had to be centralized for efficiency and cost savings."

The House bill, vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker, would create a state board of elections. Kusper has predicted that the legislature will override the veto during the session that begins Oct. 15.

"We're always ready to compromise and give back certain things," Kusper said. "We do need a state board of elections. I am not going to support a separate election code for suburban areas. I don't think we're going to have a legal election if we don't have an election board."

"I'M IN FAVOR OF branch offices of the county clerk in all 30 townships," Kusper said.

"And I'm against it," said Kathleen Wojcik, Schaumburg Township clerk and president of the Illinois Township Clerks Assn.

"You've complained that you have to go downtown to get something," Kusper said. "Yet you complain that branch offices out here are an encroachment."

Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton, another Democrat, recently opened two suburban offices. An office for Arlington Heights will open within two weeks. The proposed leases drew Republican county board opposition.

As the symposium ended — with Fulle explaining metropolitan government to two reporters and with Mikva cordially greeting former campaign workers — one question remained. Why a green turnip symposium?

The speakers never answered. Green is the color of life. A turnip represents the shape of the world.

Spiro Agnew

U.S. Atty. Thompson called for grand jury

Agnew: get back to the issues

(From Herald News Services)

Vice President Spiro Agnew spoke of the worth of America yesterday and called on the nation to stop a "morbid fascination with America's wars."

Agnew spoke in Chicago last night at a $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner billed beforehand as a way for the beleaguered vice president to make a major address. But Agnew's text was not on the current headlines of Watergate and his own possible indictment by a Baltimore grand jury on charges of official misconduct.

Instead, Agnew laid out a call for Americans to get back to the business of the nation and "not leave dangling the major issues of the economy, health care and energy."

But while the vice president charged his audience and the nation to turn to other matters, federal officials announced early in the evening that Chicago's own federal attorney, James Thompson, will be called in on the Agnew grand jury proceedings. Thompson's office late Thursday confirmed the prominent attorney will be summoned to represent the government to investigate news leaks in the Justice Department's case against the vice president.

Thompson is expected to sit in as an independent government prosecutor next Wednesday when depositions on the leaks are taken in Baltimore by Agnew's attorneys.

Thompson said he was selected to represent the government because the officials of the U.S. Attorney's office in Baltimore may be called in as witnesses themselves in the possible case against serious news leaks in the Agnew investigation.

But Agnew, in Chicago last night, made virtually no allusions to his present difficulties from a grand jury. Agnew forcibly pleaded President Nixon's case that the nation turn to more lasting problems than federal or congressional probes of the Executive Branch.

Last night at the Conrad Hilton, Agnew told his audience, "It is time for the nation to help the President."

"President Nixon would like to get us moving towards these goals again," Agnew said, referring to the matters of the economy and foreign affairs, "but to do so he must overcome the inertia caused by the current morbid fascination with America's wars, commonly known as the Watergate syndrome."

Relying primarily on his prepared text, Agnew attacked the "Great Society" of President Lyndon Johnson and said results, "not sex appeal or the sound of loud cheering" should be the mark of success.

Agnew said, "We pledge, ladies and gentlemen, to continue to eschew apocalyptic rhetoric to shun the politics of image and charisma and to strive to shape realistic programs that do work... we believe it is time to restore clear-headed, goal oriented, pragmatic policymaking in Washington..."

Before Agnew spoke yesterday in Chicago, other developments in his federal investigation were revealed:

• The federal grand jury investigating Agnew indicted N. Dale Anderson, his Democratic successor as Baltimore County Executive on four counts charging evasion of $67,832 in federal income taxes.

• Millionaire land developer Joel Kline, 34, of Chevy Chase, Md., testified before the same grand jury for 45 minutes about alleged kickbacks to Agnew while he was Baltimore County Executive and later governor of Maryland. Kline reportedly answered every question posed to him and invoked no privileges to his testimony. Sources would not disclose the content of Kline's testimony.

• The Internal Revenue Service has subpoenaed from Baltimore Industries records of a gift of four yards of cloth given to Agnew while he was Maryland governor and present at the 1967 Southern Governor's Conference. The cloth, valued at about 16 cents was given to all governors at the conference.

• And a spokesman for the New Jersey state archives said copies of an indictment against 18th Century Vice President Aaron Burr have been sent to Washington at the request of a research division of the Library of Congress.

Suprise! Food prices drop sharply

by United Press International

There was good news today for grocery shoppers stunned by a 12-cents-a-gallon rise in the price of milk this week.

Are consumers protected?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer groups told Congress yesterday the Federal Trade Commission may be backsliding from its consumer protection duties, and they questioned whether President Nixon's latest appointee to the agency was a wise choice.

They urged the Senate Commerce Committee to turn its investigation of the nominee — Elizabeth Hanford — into a full-scale FTC investigation. The committee, however, said that it was not its immediate function, although Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, promised a full-scale oversight hearing of the agency early next year.

The attacks on Miss Hanford and the FTC, came during the committee's one-day confirmation hearing.

The government said Thursday that wholesale food prices took their sharpest plunge in more than a quarter century in September, falling 6 per cent and raising hopes for lower prices at retail checkout counters.

But the lower food prices and the 1.8 per cent decline in overall wholesale prices didn't come close to offsetting the big increases of the previous month: a 27-year high of 5.8 per cent overall, an all-time high 23.1 per cent for farm products and a record high 13.4 per cent for processed foods.

HOWEVER, Chairman Herbert Stein of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said there had been further wholesale price drops since the September statistics were gathered. And he hailed the September drop as "a welcome sign that the worst of the big 1973 surge of inflation is behind us."

Food industry spokesmen expressed hope the wholesale price drops would be reflected at retail levels for consumers in a short time.

John Trotman, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, said if packers, wholesalers and supermarkets pass on a recent drop of 30 per cent in wholesale beef prices, consumers will see their meat bills going down.

Gordon Van Vleck, first vice president of the association, predicted retail beef prices might drop by as much as 10 cents a pound by the end of the year, but probably would rise again next year.

He called the fall of the price of live cattle during the last two weeks "the most dramatic decline since the 1950s and the beginning of the Korean War."

Both Van Vleck and Trotman said the summer-long price freeze on beef created "artificial shortages... and artificially high prices for live cattle were reached."

BUT THE PRICE of milk was much higher this week. A gallon cost 10 to 20 cents more than last week in much of the nation, and indications were that dairy prices soon will rise in the rest of the country.

A Chicago survey of food prices for the week of Sept. 27 was released Thursday and showed an increase in milk prices from $1.19 to $1.31 a gallon.

The dairy industry said milk farmers have been quitting the business because profits have been so low and this has caused a milk shortage and higher wholesale prices.

For other foodstuffs, however, the wholesale decreases in September were unprecedented since the early World War II days of the late 1940s.

The government said the lower food prices were led by declines of 16 per cent for live poultry, 14.8 per cent for livestock, nearly 13.5 per cent for processed poultry, 13.1 per cent for grains, 12.9 per cent for fresh and dried vegetables, and almost 5.5 per cent for meats. Increases were registered for milk, cereal and bakery products, and dairy products.

Nudity part of campaign tricks

(From Herald News Services)

A paid political saboteur Thursday told the Senate Watergate committee he hired a girl for $20 to run naked in front of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign offices shouting "I love Muskie" in an effort to damage the Democratic candidate feared most by Republicans.

An irate Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., told the witness, Martin Douglas Kelly, 24, of Miami, he saw nothing funny in such pranks because they "virtually destroyed" Muskie as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Kelly said he and Donald H. Segretti, the Republican agent who offered him $700 a month to sow disarray among Democrats, made plans to antagonize delegates to the Democratic National Convention in a manner intended to help George S. McGovern, perceived as the weakest possible rival to President Nixon.

The plans to use "dirty tricks" to influence convention delegates against McGovern's rivals were abandoned, however, Kelly said, because of the Watergate break-in "and the heat of the investigations that followed."

In testimony that got Ervin even angrier, Robert Benz, a 29-year-old truck loader from Lutz, Fla., told the committee just before it adjourned until Tuesday morning that he ordered an underling to plant stink bombs in Muskie's headquarters and distributed a letter on Muskie stationery accusing two Democratic rivals of sexual misbehavior.

Meanwhile, the American Civil Liberties Union was calling upon the House of Representatives Thursday to initiate impeachment proceedings against the President.

The ACLU said every member of the House has been sent copies of a resolution charging the President with repeatedly violating his oath of office by approving domestic spying, usurping Congress' war making powers and perverting "the operations of various federal agencies."

'Toughs' shock Boston

by United Press International

The people of Boston, Mass. remained stunned and angered this morning following two heinous crimes which caused death by fire of a woman and the brutal stoning of an old man fishing on Columbia Point in south Boston.

The man was stoned to death by "40 to 50" black teenagers Thursday, two days after the white woman was set afire and killed by six black youths.

The stoning took place about two miles from the site in Dorchester where the woman was killed and where police were mounting a mass search for her killers.

Detective Edwin Kennealey, who investigated the murder of the unidentified man, said the victim was fishing from the shore "when about 40 or 50 black teenagers began throwing rocks down on him" from a small rise behind him.

Kennealey said there was no apparent provocation by the man.

Police reported two other white persons were attacked Thursday afternoon in the same area of Columbia Point.

A 28-year-old woman was attacked and robbed by a group of black teenagers as she walked her dog in the parking lot of an abandoned shopping center. The unidentified woman suffered a knife slash police said.

Some 90 minutes later, police said, at about the time of the stoning, a 37-year-old man who was moving furniture within the Columbia Point housing project was stabbed by a group of about 10 black youths.

The man, identified as Ronald Leonard, was on the danger list at Boston City Hospital.

Jobs hinge on transit system, report concludes

Merging rail lines and bus systems under a regional transit authority (RTA) would greatly increase the accessibility to jobs for everyone in the Chicago metropolitan area according to a research report by the Transportation Center of Northwestern University.

The report also says that an operating public transportation system for the Chicago area could be set up in a relatively short time after authority is granted by the Illinois General Assembly.

The system proposed in the report would begin with the six major commuter rail lines operating now, adding feeder bus routes that would branch out from stations along the railroad tracks. There would be some gaps, however, primarily in the southwest suburbs.

With the Chicago Transit Authority buses and about 600 buses from operating suburban lines, the first stage could mean 80 per cent of the region's population would have five times more accessibility to jobs than it does now. If an inner belt railway connection running north and south to connect the commuter rail lines were constructed, access would be increased seven times.

The system would provide improved job accessibility to two primary groups, the report says — Chicago residents who want to work in the suburbs, and suburban residents who work in other suburbs.

The report emphasizes that a single regional authority would be the only way efficiently to handle and coordinate the system. The state legislature will begin discussion this month on the formation of an RTA similar to what the report suggests.

The system of combined buses and trains was proposed to minimize walking distance and waiting time, two factors that are instrumental in a person's decision whether to use public transportation or his own car.

Increased usage would accomplish all of these goals, because studies have shown that in terms of fuel consumption, commuter railroads and buses are seven times more efficient than full-size autos the report says.

The report also urges immediate action on a regional transit system, because it will have a long-reaching effect on land use in the suburbs and six-county metropolitan area.

UOP scientist to be honored by Nixon

MAYBE IT'LL BE A VASE, or maybe a pitcher, but whatever potter James Hansen is making, students from Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect and Forest View High School are enjoying it. Hansen, an artist from Bradley University, has been at Forest View this week under the sponsorship of the Illinois Arts Council. Junior high students were invited for the demonstrations.

A top scientist at Universal Oil Products Co., in Des Plaines was named by President Nixon this week as one of 11 National Medal of Science recipients. Vladimir Haensel, UOP vice president for science and technology, will receive the award at an Oct. 10 ceremony at the White House. He is honored for research in the catalytic reforming of hydrocarbons, which has enhanced the value of petroleum resources. Haensel is the only scientist from in-

Cash gift sought from developer

The Dist. 23 School Board next Wednesday will meet with Wheeling developer Victor Smigel to discuss a possible cash donation to the district.

Smigel is proposing to build The Forums, a 150-unit condominium project just west of Muir School on Elmhurst Road in Wheeling.

Supt. Edward Grodsky said the school district will request a cash donation from Smigel to help offset the economic impact of the development on the district.

There could be a tax log of up to three years before Dist. 23 begins receiving taxes from the project, according to Grodsky.

Grodsky said he has discussed a donation with Smigel, but no figure has been set.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd.

Housing plans on agenda

The planning committee of the Dist. 23 School Board next Wednesday will view plans for a proposed Arlington Heights development adjacent to the district.

Szczesny Builders, developer of the proposed project, have asked the school board to approve the plans. The project will include both single and multi-family units.

Representatives of the Arlington Heights Terrace Homeowners, who are opposed to the development, are to attend the meeting at 7 p.m. in the administration building.

$200 for volunteer agency

The Dist. 23 School Board Wednesday night voted to donate $200 to the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County.

The volunteer services bureau depends on the financial aid of the school districts it serves in the Northwest suburban area.

The bureau supplies volunteer aids to several local districts.

Congressman asks probe in youth's Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 23, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-III. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommates were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

Residents vote against collecting 'snake' costs

Residents of Buffalo Grove by more than a two-to-one margin have said the village should not attempt to collect, from the keeper of Seymour the snake, the cost of the recent search.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said Wednesday, of the 51 persons who expressed their opinions, 35 said the village should not collect the money, 15 said the village should collect and one said the village should pay 50 per cent of the cost.

Following the escape of Seymour, the village board passed a resolution to bill the keeper of the snake, David Pearson, 18, of 588 Maple Dr., or his father, Harold, for the cost of the search. Seymour, a harmless rat snake, originally believed to be a deadly Egyptian cobra, escaped from the Pearson home Aug. 25 and has never been found.

THE RESOLUTION states that if the Pearsons cannot or will not pay the bill, the village should initiate court action to recover the costs.

About three weeks ago the village mailed a bill for $1,338 to the Pearson home to cover policemen's and firemen's salaries, equipment operation costs and the cost of exterminating the home.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the Pearsons have not contacted the village concerning the bill. They could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Retention basin could solve school flooding

A solution appears to have been found to the drainage problems that have plagued John Muir School for the past two years.

The problems at the Dist. 23 school were created with the construction of Pleasant Run condominiums off Elmhurst Road in Wheeling. Water from the development flows onto the Drake Terrace School site causing dangerous ponding.

Another Wheeling condominium project, The Forums, is proposed just west of Pleasant Run. The developers plan to connect their drainage system with the Pleasant Run storm sewer. Dist. 23 officials feared the action would compound Muir flooding.

A SOLUTION TO the problem was worked out Wednesday night by the Dist. 23 School Board and yet another Wheeling developer, John Glorioso. He told the board he is buying the Lemke farm property northeast of Muir School.

Glorioso plans to build a retention basin on the property that will be adequate to accommodate the drainage from both Pleasant Run and The Forums. The water from the two developments will be piped underground around the Muir School to the basin.

Dist. 23 attorney Henry Valley was directed by the board to draw up an agreement giving Glorioso easements for underground pipes to run along the south, east and west boundaries of Muir.

As soon as the agreement is signed by both parties, Glorioso told the board he will begin construction of the basin. He hopes to have it completed, he said, by next spring.

Glorioso would not say when asked by the school board if he has plans to develop the Lemke farm at the present time. He could not be reached for comment yesterday.

School news notes

Parents of children in the sixth grade class of Michael Mattson at Sandburg School in Wheeling may have noticed that they have less trash to throw away these days.

The children have brought a lot of it to school to use in "junk art" sculptures. The resulting masterpieces have been on display in the school's learning center and office.

There will be an open house at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15.

Parents will follow an abbreviated school day and be able to tour the school and meet with their children's instructors.

The London PTA will provide coffee and the wrestling team will sell taffy apples.

Whitman School students are collecting Campbell soup labels to earn an overhead projector for the school.

The Campbell Soup Co. told the children they would send the school the projector if the students can collect 9,500 labels.

The children need the red and white labels from regular size cans — 28 ounces, 50 ounces and all Chunky Soup cans. There is a deposit box for the labels outside the school office.

The "Pride in Whitman" student committee is in charge of sorting and counting the labels. They will maintain a graph near the box to monitor the progress of the collection.

Several girls at Jack London Junior High School placed first in a recent girls' cross country meet with Sunset Ridge. Seventh grade winners were Pam Smith, Clare Erickson, Julie Rosset, Deanna Hogarth, Deb Krakora, Toni Madsen, Edda Adamicka, Vicki Sherman, Janet Dill, Surita Mansokhana and Barb Plontek.

Eighth grade winners were Toni Perrone, Annette Colucci, Sandy Rainey and Janet Higgs.

Such a comfort to leave you-know-what to Metron

Our 'new' vehicle? It's called a bus

by KURT BAER
I was skeptical.
Buses in Arlington Heights were like ambulances in Disney World — necessary maybe, but not really part of the environment.

But there they stood. Buses, all glass and steel and unmistakable. Standing near the Arlington Heights train station. Their owner's name and telephone number stenciled on their flank: Metron Systems Corp. 338-8500.

For months I had reported the steps leading up to the start of this commuter bus service. Now I was there to ride. It was 6:50, the height of the evening's rush hour, when I climbed aboard.

The bus was ready for the second of three evening runs on Metron's "Yellow Route" to Ivy Hill, Northgate and Windsor Woods. Its new purple-and-white seats are empty, unworn and increased. This is a new service.

The first paying customer is Richard Monasterio, 2436 N. Chestnut, a 10-month resident of Arlington Heights.

"It would be a very swift ride home if you didn't have to go across Palatine Road," he says, referring to the stop-sign bottleneck at Arlington Heights and Palatine roads.

MONASTERIO says the Metron bus is convenient for him and he is satisfied with the $15 fare for a monthly pass. During the summer, he sometimes rides a bicycle to the station and he thinks Metron may pick up other bike riders when the weather turns cold.

Another rider, El Nettles, lives in Buffalo Grove's Mill Creek subdivision and has to walk about 300 yards to the Metron bus stop.

"I think it's great. Otherwise my wife has to get up and drive me to the train, or I have to take a taxi," he says.

Nettles says he was spending $2.50 three times a week for a one-way cab ride. Now he rides the bus.

"You can't beat the time in a car. It's a great service and I hope they can get it off the ground. I don't think there's been enough advertising, though. Numerous people, if they were aware of the bus, would grab hold of it," he says.

As the 6:00 C&NW train pulls away from the Arlington Heights station, Metron Bus No. 1 turns north out of the commuter parking lot. There are six passengers aboard.

Metron's president, Claude Luisada, says he has now sold 15 monthly passes for the two routes, with the number increasing slowly each week.

I SOON SUSPECT, by the way she guides the 33-passenger GMC Coach through Arlington Heights' rush-hour traffic, that driver Nellie Neal is no rank beginner.

"Twenty years as a school bus driver," she informs me. "I watched all these homes grow up out of cornfields . . ." Her reminiscence is interrupted by a cheer from the middle of the bus.

"That's the greatest thing since ice cream," a man cries pointing ahead to a still unactivated traffic light hanging darkly over the intersection of Palatine and Arlington Heights roads.

The lights had been hung that morning and are expected to begin flashing their time- and temper-saving messages later this fall.

For Steve Goldspiel, Metron's bus does not go far enough. Goldspiel lives in Buffalo Grove's Strathmore subdivision and he had not planned on riding the bus today or any other day. But his car broke down and now he is glad for a lift.

"They should run this up to Buffalo Grove. If this bus traveled up Arlington Heights Road to Buffalo Grove I'd definitely ride it, every day," he says.

THE BUS WINDS its way through Ivy Hill and an oncoming motorist stops his car and stares expressionless. Three blocks later, two small children stop their games to run to the curb to wave hello.

Metron passenger Steve Goldspiel lived in New Jersey before moving to Buffalo Grove a year ago. He used to commute by bus to New York and Newark.

Perhaps more typical, El Nettles, says it has been years since he last rode a bus.

Larry Hillard lives in the Windsor Woods apartments and the Yellow route passes his front door.

"Certainly a community as large as Arlington Heights is now shouldn't be without some kind of public transportation. It must serve a need," he says. Like the other passengers on the bus tonight, Hillard was riding for convenience.

It was 6:45 when the bus returned to the train station. It had taken 30 minutes to ride the route. Now there'd be more waiting. After the 7:10 train, it would head out again, back across Palatine Road if it had a passenger, back to the garage if it did not.

Nellie Neal's work day was almost over. Tomorrow would begin at 5:30 a.m.

Bill cart owners,

MSD trustee says

The Metropolitan Sanitary District should bill owners of shopping carts for the cost of removing the carts from rivers and streams, MSD trustee Valentine Janicki has suggested.

Janicki has asked MSD attorneys to check into the legality of an ordinance which would charge retail stores for carts belonging to them which the sanitary district recovers in stream cleaning operations.

Trustee James C. Kirie told Janicki at a recent MSD budget session that he believed such an ordinance would be "on very thin ground. If a man steals my auto and dumps it in the canal, I'm not liable," Kirie pointed out.

What's old today is new tomorrow

Scholars are fond of saying there are two general views of history, the Western or linear view and the Eastern or circular view.

The basis for the distinction is the assertion that in the West — Europe, the U.S., etc. — people don't believe in things like reincarnation so they believe that each moment in history is separate, distinct and never-to-be-repeated. In Oriental thought, there are beliefs in reincarnation and yin and yang and as a result there is a general belief that any moment in history is bound to recur in some form later. The Oriental belief obviously takes a less urgent view of the necessity to do dramatic things.

Well, this column is probably going to mark me as an Oriental, because it's about circles, specifically, circles when it comes to educational innovation.

The other day I ran across an article in the alumni magazine issued by my university which told about a project that had been undertaken by a bunch of English professors 10 years ago to develop on "innovative" junior high and high school English curriculum. They have now completed the project and have developed a curriculum that provides "scope and sequence" in English.

There's just one problem — the direction of educational "innovation" has reversed itself since the study started in 1961.

BACK IN THE early '60s, if you remember, educators were reacting to the launch of Sputnik and the "fact" that America was behind in education. Something called "life adjustment education" was taking the blame for the horrible lack of education being exhibited by the American populous.

Here is the description my alumni magazine gives of "life adjustment" education: "Life adjustment, which was in vogue in the '40s and '50s, was based on the premise that most students would not pursue an education beyond high school, and, therefore, they should be 'adjusted' to the limited world in which they would live.

"It was difficult to fit 'units' of study on 'Choosing a Career' or 'Understanding Our Neighbors' into the science or math courses, so the English and social science curriculums, sometimes combined into a single course of study, became the dumping ground for all sorts of 'useful knowledge' that would presumably assist this adjustment process."

NOW THAT description is clearly biased against life adjustment — but consider the fact that some of the "new" things in education today involve "career education" and vocational programs for high school students (because, as any educator will assure you, college isn't for everybody) and you start to see the old Oriental circle of history at work.

Further on in the article about the new English curriculum, the English professors who developed the new program point to the same thing. While their curriculum emphasizes a course of study that is "sequential and cumulative," schools are now going to elective English systems, particularly in high school.

Anyone who has a student in a High School Dist. 214 school knows how the elective system works. Students select one-semester English classes in things like "black literature" or "film making" to fulfill requirements which were once filled by taking a general class with required work in grammar and with certain books to read.

The result is that students, hopefully, find their English classes interesting. Another result is that you can't count on all high school juniors reading "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" at the same time in their school careers.

The professors who developed the English curriculum designed to counteract the pernicious forces of the 1950s, find the new elective English system a "rage for disorder" which gives the students too much freedom in deciding what they will study and when they will study it.

BUT THE FACT remains the elective system is now as much the fashion as the tight, hard-core, "sequential" curriculum was just after Sputnik. And that leaves the professors with 52 volumes of experimental textbooks, 46 volumes of teachers' manuals and 63 proposed tests.

And the whole episode should probably teach all of us a lesson — no matter what the current great idea is about "innovation" in education, charges are there will, at one point or another be a reaction against that innovation.

Educators, you see, have trouble agreeing on just what education is or should be. Must every educated person have read Chaucer, or Homer's Illiad? Or should a high school be giving everyone — whether college bound or not — a saleable skill?

Both positions probably have validity — and schools today are hopefully steering a middle course.

But just remember that history is most likely circular (or maybe it's a spiral, because you never return to precisely the same point you left). And so if you are unhappy with today's "innovation" wait awhile — something else will become fashionable soon.

MSD, Corps of Engineers join in Underflow System

The Chicago Underflow System of tunnels and flood control reservoirs is going to be a joint project of the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the MSD general superintendent told board members at recent budget hearings.

The corps will become a part of the $3.3 billion project to solve flooding and water pollution in areas served by combined sanitary and storm sewers chiefly because the MSD needs federal funding for the project, Bart Lynam explained.

"It requires a bargain to solve the flooding problems, but I don't see us getting the funds anyplace else," Lynam said. He said the corps will approve plans and monitor construction of the tunnel system in exchange for funding a portion of the project.

"THE CORPS IS looking to remain in business," Lynam said, noting that there is a shortage of projects for the corps to undertake in the Midwest.

The tunnel project would be the first corps project in the U.S. in an urban area, Lynam noted. By going together with the corps, the MSD can seek funding under federal flood relief programs at a rate of $140 million per year for 10 years.

The remaining $1.9 billion of the total underflow project cost will be sought by the MSD in grants for water pollution control from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, Lynam said.

He said the local corps office should complete its report on the underflow project and send it on to Washington by November.

BOTH LYNAM AND Trustee Valentine Janicki expressed optimism that the federal government will fund a substantial portion of building the tunnel and reservoir system.

Janicki said that on a recent trip to Washington he had failed in an attempt to persuade Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., and U.S. Rep. John C. Kluczynski, D-Ill., to back spending federal highway funds for the underflow plan.

Janicki had argued that because stormwater draining off of highways adds significantly to the MSD's treatment load in combined sewer areas, highway fund money should be used to help pay for the flood relief.

Both congressmen have agreed to support funding for the program under pollution control and flood control funding, however, Janicki said.

If the underflow plan were to be built with local funds it would be "a tremendous burden" on local taxpayers, Lynam noted.

"For years our taxpayers have watched their federal taxes being spent in Mississippi and Tennessee, now it's the turn of the urban centers," Lynam told the MSD board.

Crusade of Mercy needs your help

Your community and its needs are on the line once again this year as the 1973 Crusade of Mercy starts its annual search for public support.

Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg Township and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove are among 155 suburban communities participating in the Crusade as members of the Suburban Community Chest Council.

The Crusade, which covers the entire Chicago metropolitan area, raises money for the Council, which in turn allocates it to local chests on a priority basis.

In other words, the local branch of the campaign is seeking about $5.8 million to go into local community chests — and the local contributions will help support these following agencies:

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Northwest Suburban Council; Camp Fire Girls, Chicago Area Council; Clearbrook Center for the Retarded; 4-H Club; Northwest Mental Health Center; Northwest Suburban Homemaker Service.

Also, the Salvation Army — Community Counseling Center and Service Unit; USO; Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County; YMCA; Des Plaines Police Boys' Club; and a variety of local hospital and service groups.

This year the Crusade's slogan is "people helping people." Consider for a moment the process involved, and you can understand just how important the Crusade's efforts are to our community.

Without our financial support for the Crusade, local services which we take for granted would be seriously hurt. The Girl and Boy Scouts would have to curtail programs. Counseling for those of us with serious personal problems might not be available. Certain special programs for our children and for us would be curtailed.

Human, suburban needs are met by a substantial part of your contribution. In addition, the Crusade's always prided itself in the fact that the cost of helping others has been kept low. Only five cents out of every dollar you contribute goes to collection costs; your money is going where it should be going — to help the agencies that can help you.

No one likes to give money to charity. We're all beset by the need to watch our wallets or pocketbooks — especially this year, as we all confront runaway inflation.

But the Crusade comes around only once a year, and it is an umbrella group for many local groups, without which the Northwest suburbs would be a far less desirable place to live.

Whether you give at the office or at home, the important fact to remember is that you benefit, or can benefit, from a Crusade contribution. Contribute to the Crusade and you're helping yourself and your neighbors — and there aren't many finer gifts than that.

gained recent renown in this country for his educational philosophy which stressed self-government among children and the emphasis that educators and parents must "get on the side of the child."

In the words of Auden, their contributions will "survive it all." Auden's poetry marks him only second to T. S. Eliot as a modern British poet and Neill's ideas of education, though more unorthodox than Auden's poetry, will and already have come into some grudging acceptance among professional educators.

A poet and an educator died last week, and the world of words and ideas is the worse for their passing.

W. H. Auden, the British-born poet called by some the "foremost poet of his generation," died in Vienna at the age of 60. His lucid and topical poetry earned him a string of awards, including the 1948 Pulitzer Prize for poetry.

Earlier, the Scottish educator A. S. Neill, founder of the unorthodox Summerhill school of education, died at the age of 80. Neill had

by EUGENE V. RISHEN
WASHINGTON — Does President Nixon want Vice President Agnew to leave office?

The question has been asked almost daily of Presidential spokesmen at White House news briefings and the answer has always been the same:

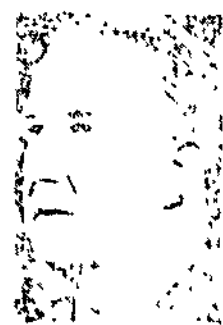

"Neither the President or nobody else in any official capacity in the White House has been pressuring the Vice President to resign."

But there is little doubt that Agnew's troubles with the law have put Nixon — already grappling with Watergate — into an additional quandary. And the White House response that no pressure has been applied does not really answer the question of Presidential preference.

Nixon's dilemma is this:

If he gives Agnew warm support, he risks embracing a man who may soon be indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of accepting bribes from Maryland contractors.

If he withholds his support from Agnew, he risks alienating the very core of his own Watergate-diminished constituency — the dedicated Republican loyalists who are sticking by their party leaders come what may.

The President's problems were pointed up by events at a convention of the National Federation of Republican Women in Los Angeles last week.

Not only was Nixon treated to the spectacle of Agnew blasting the Justice Department of the government in which he serves. His White House agents also found strained loyalties among this most loyal of Republican organizations because of the feeling that Nixon had not done enough to support his Vice President.

Agnew, whose charges that the Justice Department had handled his case in a "malicious and outrageous" manner drew wild applause from the delegates, singled out Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Peterson for special criticism.

He charged that Peterson was out to get him as a "trophy" to make up for the ineptitude with which his department allegedly handled the Watergate case.

This is the same career civil servant that Nixon has on several occasions referred to as a man of unquestioned integrity. It is the same civil servant that Nixon chose as a symbol of rectitude in initially putting him in charge of the Watergate investigation.

Neither Agnew nor Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson has disputed reports that Justice Department lawyers and Agnew's attorneys engaged in "plea bargaining" — a fairly common practice in which an accused will plead guilty to a lesser offense in exchange for the dropping of more serious charges. Agnew insists that the Justice Department initiated the negotiations.

But those looking for an indication of the President's position in the matter should note another report — published in Newsweek magazine this week — which has also gone undisputed.

That is that the President's own attorney, J. Fred Buzhardt, acted as a liaison in the negotiations between the prosecutors and Agnew's lawyers to have Agnew resign from office in exchange for leniency from the prosecutors.

Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren confirmed earlier this week that Buzhardt did indeed serve as a go-between. But he said it would be "inappropriate" to talk about his specific role. (UPI)

Christian Science backed

By what standard can a religion be measured? Can its essence, quality, and effectiveness be determined by the number of its members, or the number of its churches, or the wealth of its treasury? A recent article about the decline in the number of Christian Science churches along with a supportive letter from an ex-member have tended to miss the point about this religion.

It is true that some churches have closed, but these have been in the inner cities or in the rural areas of declining populations. We are not happy about this, and efforts are being made to reverse the trend. Early in the history of the movement, when it was undergoing very rapid expansion, Mary Baker Eddy, the founder, included in the church by-laws a rule that members were not to be numbered, for she knew the fallacy of equating spiritual value with size of membership.

The question then arises, how do you measure a religion, or can you measure it at all? I feel the only answer to this is, can the religion make a positive impact on one's own individual life, and does it have any impact for good on the world as a whole. Our missionary is the Christian Science Monitor, and most impartial observers agree that this paper has upheld the principles of truth, fairness, and honesty, and has responsibly reported the news in a positive way at a time when much of the media has been accused of sensationalism and less than objective reporting. Many people throughout the world in positions of power or rely on the Monitor for the factual news they need.

If, by using a religion's principles, you can achieve health, happiness, harmony, integrity and success in your own life, then its value to you is indisputable. As many thousands including this writer can attest, when hope seemed gone, and as a last resort you tried Christian Science and were healed, that's the measurement that has real meaning.

Criticism, whether completely fair or not, does serve a useful purpose, for it strengthens one's resolve to work harder, and to attend to those things that need solving. It also forces one to look into the truth or error of his beliefs. Thank you.

Troop cut draws questions

by PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

A U.S. Senate vote requiring a 110,000-man reduction in overseas troops by the end of 1975 puts the handwriting on the wall.

The Senate action responded to mounting war weariness among the people of the United States and to continuing economic problems. It was passed despite strenuous objections of the Nixon administration and to the consternation of U.S. allies in NATO and in Asia.

U.S. military men expressed misgivings for its effect on U.S. deterrent capabilities against Communist forces in Europe and Korea.

The administration feared for its effect on the U.S. bargaining position in the 19-nation conference on "Mutual Force Reductions" scheduled to open in Vienna on Oct. 30.

As of now, the Senate action, taken as an amendment to the $21 billion military procurement bill, probably will be erased in a Senate-House conference. But it stands as an important reflection of American sentiment and almost certainly as a signpost to the future.

Actually, the Senate action need neither tie the hands of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in his talks with NATO allies nor endanger the U.S. position at Vienna.

The two deal with separate although related problems.

So far as NATO is concerned, the Senate and Kissinger are delivering the same message — the NATO allies must do more to help themselves, and the United States is tired of carrying an annual financial burden estimated as high as $3.3 billion a year for NATO.

As for talks on a reduction of forces, those negotiations will deal specifically with central Europe.

Globally, U.S. land-based forces stationed abroad come to around 470,000 — some 300,000 in Western Europe and 170,000 in Asia. Among the latter are 42,000 in South Korea, 45,000 in Thailand and the remainder scattered among Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines and Okinawa.

The Senate amendment did not specify from what areas the troops must be withdrawn, although Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, one of its sponsors, suggested that Asia seemed a most likely place. Some troop reductions already are being carried out in Thailand and others have been under study, including South Korea.

Regardless of the outcome of the troop reduction talks, the United States remains committed to NATO.

The same Senate session which called for troop reductions also passed an amendment reaffirming congressional support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as "vital to the security of the United States."

A beneficial result of the Senate action could be new impetus in the search for a practical solution.

The prestigious Brookings Institution has suggested the United States could save at least $6 billion annually by reorganizing its troop strength in Europe, reducing support forces, rotating the others and bringing dependents home. (UPI)

Business Today

by ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK — The Wizard of Seventh Avenue is David Crystal, Inc., the oldest survivor in an industry where the average life span of a dress manufacturer is only seven years.

In 1972, apparel manufacturers had a bankruptcy rate of 88 per 10,000 businesses, ranking fourth on Dun & Bradstreet's list of national manufacturing failures.

"You have to stay alert, move away from what once proved successful, and find something on the horizon to replace it," Vincent de Paul Draddy, chairman of the board of David Crystal, said. He has steered the company through the rise and fall of fashion since 1933 when he became president.

FOUNDED IN 1933, David Crystal has grown from a skirtmaker with 15 employees into a diversified coat and suit industry giant. With annual sales close to the $100 million mark, the house has 2,000 employees and six factories on the Eastern seaboard. Despite the apparel industry's reputation as a volatile business, General Mills acquired David Crystal in 1969.

"Having a grandfather like General Mills makes life very comfortable for his children," Draddy said. An Irish gnome of Seventh Avenue, the ebullient Draddy married David Crystal's daughter and joined the family business in 1933. He attributes his company's success to diversification within the apparel industry.

"Fashion is always going to change," Draddy said, "and diversification takes care of the peaks and valleys in our business."

DIVERSIFICATION has made David Crystal a pacesetter in fabric as well as fashion. In 1934, the company marketed the first synthetic, Crualsine, a rayon developed by Du Pont.

"Crualsine was the turning point for David Crystal," according to Draddy. "We went straight up." The firm's most recent success with a fabric was double-knit dacron. Its spectator dress of this material is its biggest seller.

"Our strength has been with fabric rather than style," Draddy said. David Crystal makes exclusive fabrics for six or seven different customers and also sells materials in the open market.

DAVID CRYSTAL'S willingness to try the untried resulted in several coups. In 1943, the firm became the first apparel manufacturer to go into women's separates under the Haymaker label. In 1947, David Crystal introduced the first men's sport shirts to the American scene.

"President Truman's shirts were the result of what we did," Draddy said.

In 1950, Draddy agreed to market 2,000 La Coste tennis shirts brought to him from France by tennis star Billy Talbert. When the shirts failed to sell, Draddy gave them away to Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, and the Duke of Windsor. "Celebrities will wear anything," says Draddy. "They'll even take a hot stove."

Such stellar exposure finally intrigued the American public, and the La Coste shirt with its green alligator symbol became the base of the David Crystal sportswear empire. The company has 42 men who sell golf and tennis wear exclusively to U.S. pro shops.

New car or 'leftover' the best buy?

by MERLE E. DOWD

Garage sales, "clean sweeps," and similar promotions in early fall herald new model introduction time at car dealers. Clean-up sale prices tempt buyers with $800 to $1,200 discounts.

Question: Is fall model changeover a good time to buy a new car?

Before you answer, examine your driving plans.

If you ordinarily drive a car "until the wheels fall off," as I often suggest, buying a new car at the end of its model year makes sense. But if you trade often — say every two, three, or four years, even a deep discount, in the order of 15, 18, or 20 per cent, could be washed out. It works out like this —

After one year a car depreciates about 30 per cent of its sticker price. At the end of the second year a car is down another 20 per cent to about half of its original sticker price.

THUS, IF YOU buy a $4,000 car at a 20 per cent discount, it costs a net $3,200 — before taxes, financing, and dealer preparation. A couple of weeks or a month later, the same car is worth only $2,800 — a 30 per cent loss in value through depreciation. After another year the car's value is down another 20 per cent to $2,240. Depreciation has cost you $1,200 for 13 months of driving — and your car is two model years old.

But, suppose you drive the car for eight years. Depreciation will have slowed to as little as 5 per cent a year — or less. The car may still be worth $600-$800. Let's say it is worth $800 for a total depreciation of $2,400 ($3,200 less $800 - $2,400). Over eight years that amounts to $300 per year for depreciation.

If you trade every two or three years, then buy a new model 75 to 90 days after the introduction date. By that time dealers have sold scarce cars to rental outfits and fleet owners. Some cars also go to those who insist on having the very latest and are willing to pay sticker prices.

NOTE THESE factors affecting a car-buying decision at the end of a model year:

- Few cars are likely to be around for sale at deep discounts this year, as 1973 has been a phenomenal sales year. Stocks of unsold cars on dealers' lots are near record lows. With fewer cars to sell, you can expect less enticing discounts and limited selection.

- Stocks of popular small cars are even shorter in supply. The big gas-gulping behemoths are selling slowly, so they may be discounted heavily. But, depreciation will likely be higher on them as the gas shortage worsens.

- Buy a new '73 after the new '74 models of a line are introduced. A last year's new car is still a full model year old — even with zero miles. So, discounts are more likely to account for that first year's depreciation. Further, the factory pays dealers a rebate on every car still on the lot on new model introduction day. Thus, the dealer can afford to discount last year's model even more. You take your chances, though, of getting the combination of options, color, and model you might prefer.

EXAMINE THE difference between deep discounts offered on year-end models and discounts usually available on new models after about three months. Incremental discounts may not compensate for limited selection. And, you gain nine months of new model year driving.

One further factor complicates the choice. This year's collection of antipollution paraphernalia may reduce power and increase gasoline consumption less than next year's new model. Also, increased price schedules will be in effect on '74 models.

Consider all of these factors and you wind up with this — If you consider a car mainly for transportation and not as a reflection of your personality, buy a '73 model soon after the new '74s are introduced at a deep discount — and drive it 100,000 miles or more.

The Lighter Side... by Dick WestPop music to reach frustrated middle-aged hustlers

WASHINGTON — To make it big, or even make it at all, in the pop music field these days, you've got to specialize.

The current key to success is to become identified with a specific segment of society — 10-year-old girl trombonists, brambly paperhangers, college students who are flunking Sociology 211, etc. — rather than appeal to general audiences.

I was aware of the trend but did not realize just how narrowly particularized pop music had become until a group called the Great Chicago Fire played a recent engagement here.

Its leader told an interviewer the group had tailored its style and repertoire to middle-aged married men who go into bars to pick up girls, but don't know how.

Now that is really getting specialization down to a science.

It must have taken an awful lot of study and experimentation to figure out what would make a middle-aged married man, who wants to pick up a girl but doesn't know how, exclaim: "That's my kind of music!"

SOME OF THE fine points are obvious, of course: an aging, would-be roue who strikes out with the blonde on the next bar stool certainly doesn't want to hear the same music that his more successful contemporary holding hands with some brunette in the tack booth would consider appropriate.

The main thing that puzzles me is how the Great Chicago Fire manages to sell any records, which are the bread-and-butter of the pop music business.

Let's say a middle-aged married man with a penchant for hanky-panky brings an album home and plays it on the stereo. The music would be a dead giveaway.

"Aha!" cries his wife. "So you've been in some bar trying to pick up a girl again!"

Nor would he want to play the album if other men were around. For they would hold him up to play, ridicule or contempt.

"POOR OLE Charlie," one of his pals says sadly. "He's trying desperately to have one final fling before senility sets in and he can't even get to first base."

"Yeah," another says, shaking his head. "You can tell from that music he's playing that ole Charlie wouldn't know how to pick up a girl if she came over and sat in his lap."

However they do it, there is no doubt the Great Chicago Fire has hit upon the formula it was seeking.

When I stopped by to hear the group, I didn't have any intention of trying to pick up a girl. And while they were playing, I didn't so much as cast a sideways glance at any female in the place.

Nevertheless, five girls came over to my table and turned me down.

North chase in spotlight

Huskies visit Cards in league headliner

The backstabbing begins tonight.

For three weeks, members of the Mid-Suburban League have either challenged a non-conference opponent or played in divisional crossover contests.

But the "luck of the draw" no longer applies as the teams buckle down for head-to-head competition within the respective sections.

The North held the upperhand in inter-divisional matches with a 7-3 record. Arlington, Hersey, Palatine and Fremd are still undefeated in league action while the representatives in the South all have at least one defeat.

The complexion of the torrid North race will be altered tonight when Hersey (2-0) visits Arlington (2-0), Palatine (2-0) plays Rolling Meadows (0-1), and Fremd (1-0) hosts Wheeling (0-2).

In the South, Prospect (0-2) tackles Elk Grove (1-1) while Schaumburg (1-1) travels to Conant (0-2). Forest View (1-1) hosts state-ranked St. Bede (4-0) in a non-league test. (See related story).

All games begin at 8 p.m. Friday following preliminary contests scheduled for 6:30. Here's the way the coaches view the matchups:

HERSEY AT ARLINGTON

There are four good football teams in Arlington Heights this year and after Saturday Hersey will have faced them all. The Huskies have played even with their first two cross-town foes, overpowering Forest View last week after absorbing an upset loss at the hands of St. Viator at the beginning of the season.

Now they face Arlington in what could turn out to be the most crucial encounter of the fall for both these North Division hopefuls.

Both sides will enter the fray with unblemished conference marks. For the Cardinals, who will be hiking the homecoming banner while they host the Huskies tonight, it has thus far been a totally successful campaign but coach Chuck Haines is not looking for their 3-0 record to thwart the opposition one bit.

"Hersey would be up for this one even if we were 0-3 now, and I know our kids would be just as anxious to play them too. The fact that we're both doing well just makes the atmosphere that much more intense," he commented.

What could prove to be the most intriguing aspect of this showdown will be the matching up of a potent Hersey offense that has rolled up 78 tallies in three contests against a stingy Card defense that has yielded only 12 over a like stretch.

But Haines sees it a little differently. "They're very explosive and extremely balanced. They seemed to do just about everything the way it's supposed to be done in beating a fine Forest View team last week. Our own offense may be able to get us some points but how many are we going to need to overcome such a devastating attack?"

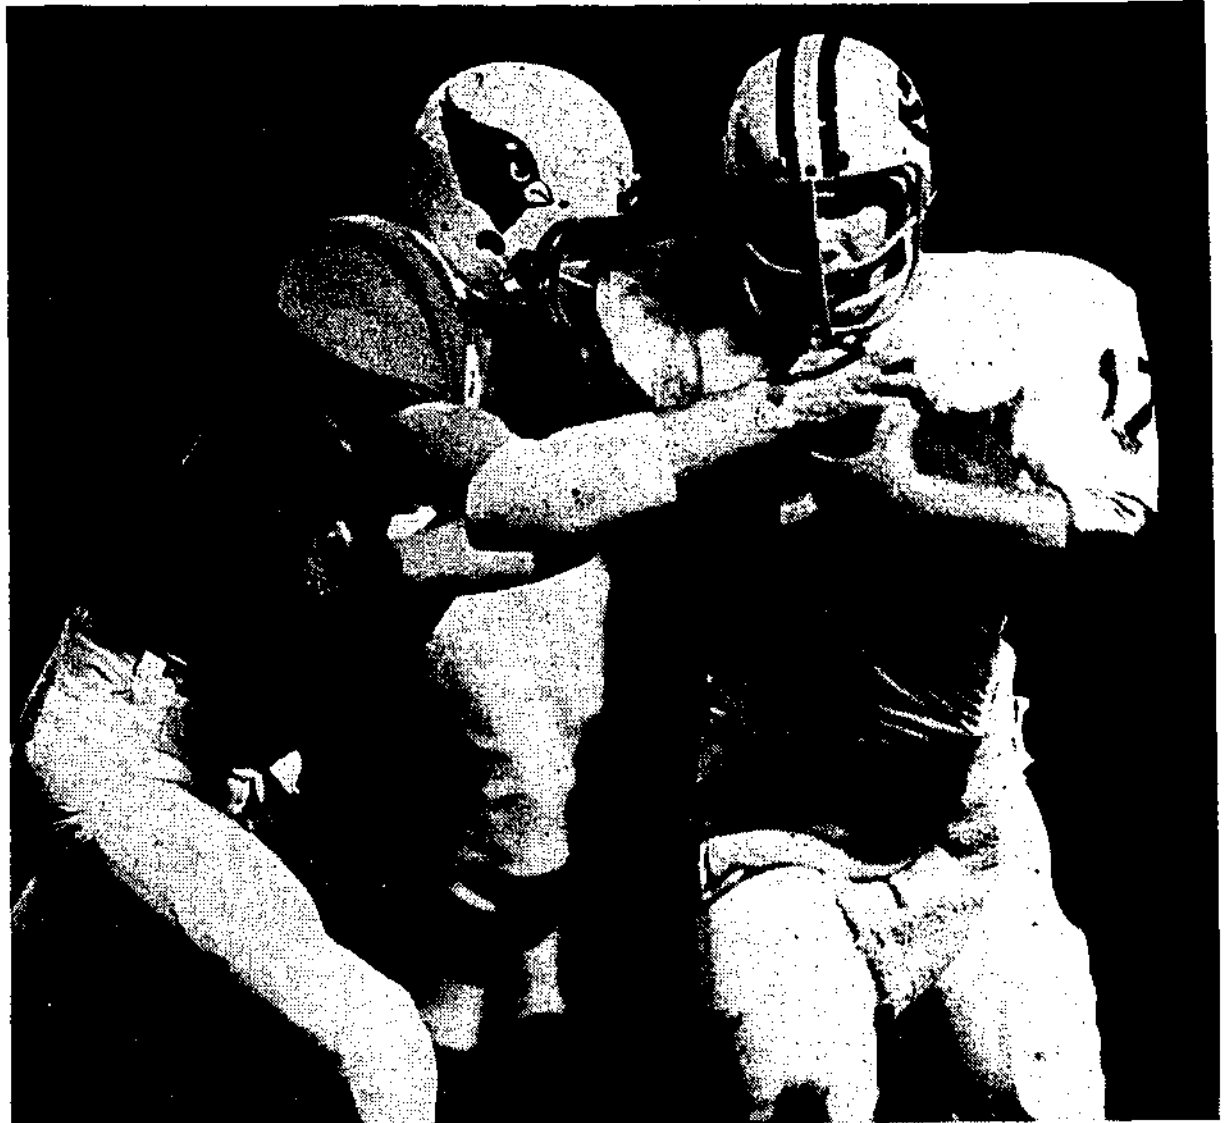

If the last two seasons are any indication, the winning team and losing team both need a pair of touchdowns and the difference between victor and vanquished will be in the fringes. Hersey won last year 15-12 and the Cards eased out a 14-12 decision in 1971.

Hersey coach Joe Gliwa won't be satisfied with 14-15 points from his versatile offense this time around. "I think we're capable of scoring a touchdown per quarter," he offered. "We're past fundamentals. The name of the game now is putting points on the board and if we don't get our 300-400 yards a game, we'll be disappointed."

Arlington, of course, thrives on defense. "They're one of the best fundamentally and you won't find them making mistakes," Gliwa said. "The only way to beat them is to out-execute them."

Individually, Huskie Jim Spiccuza has been devastating against the opposition in his dual role as runningback and pass

MYSTERY MEN. An unidentified Arlington defender collars Elk Grove's Don Weadley during action Friday. Weadley surprised the Cardinals by not wearing his usual number — 24 — but he still was held to just 18 yards rushing. Arlington won, 7-0, and ended the Grenadiers' 17-game winning streak.

Hawk challenges continue; Harper faces Rock Valley

by DON FRISKE

Now that the Harper Hawks have shown that they can compete against the best in the nation, it's time to tackle the best team in the state.

This Saturday afternoon, the Hawks go up against host Rock Valley, the top-ranked team in Illinois. The Rock Valley Trojans remain undefeated after three games, while the Hawks are 2-1. Rock Valley is ranked 11th in the nation and Harper 17th.

The one Hawk loss came last week against the best team in the nation, Iowa Central. Harper lost that game 13-6, after spotting their opponents with a 13-point lead in the first half.

"I think part of that score was determined by the time keeper," explained John Eliasik, Hawk coach. "They scored their second touchdown with four seconds left in the first half on a 25-yard screen pass that they never should have been able to execute."

With 28 seconds left in the second quarter, Iowa Central had the ball on the Hawks' 30 yard line.

"The timer then started the clock late and stopped it early, allowing Iowa extra time in which to score," commented a disgruntled Eliasik. "The opposite was true when we had the ball with four minutes left in the game. Then he started the clock early and stopped it late."

"After the game, the referee came up to me and said that he thought it looked very bad, but that there was nothing he could do about it."

"The rule book states that an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty of 15 yards should be thrown on the home team. If the ref would have done this, they probably wouldn't have scored their second touchdown."

This caused the Hawks to go for another touchdown after they scored their first on a 55-yard pass play. A field goal would do them no good at all as the result of the timekeeper's earlier error.

The Hawks controlled the game during the second half, but bad field conditions proved to be their downfall. After rain fell all day, the field was left with standing water on it. This impaired the Hawks' strong points of speed on the outside, their passing game, and quickness on defense.

The defense did all right, though, in holding Iowa Central to only two touchdowns, half of their previous average.

With the Iowa Central game now in the past, Eliasik and his Hawks go for the title of number one junior college team in the state.

Going against a team with a strong passing attack, the Hawk defense is up against something new to them that Rock Valley possesses.

"Our defense has been strong against the rush, but we haven't run into a polished passing game like Rock Valley's yet," said Eliasik. "They're going to have to throw for touchdown to beat us."

If the defensive secondary of the Hawks can contain the Trojans strong point, then according to Eliasik, the Hawks should be number one in Illinois after Saturday's contest.

Forest View battles state-ranked St. Bede

by LARRY EVERHART

The schedulemaker is doing a heck of a job of throwing an acid test at Forest View in the first part of its football season.

Four of the Falcons' first five games this season are against teams capable of beating almost anybody any time. Maine East, Hersey, St. Bede and Elk Grove are enough to challenge the most talented of teams.

The first two of those opponents are out of the way now with a split for Fred Lussow's group, but another every bit as tough is set to invade the Falcon nest tonight for a non-conference tussle. St. Bede, ranked No. 1 among downstate schools and one of the best in the state, will furnish the opposition in an 8 p.m. affair that is the last time Forest View can afford to lose.

The Falcons stand 2-1 after whipping Maine East and Rolling Meadows but running into a 31-21 buzzsaw at Hersey. St. Bede has rolled over four straight opponents — Ottawa (46-0), Mendota (24-0), LaSalle-Peru (14-4) and Marquette (46-6). That's 130-14 overall.

"We knew they had a good team last year and that they had a lot of people back," said Lussow, "and that's why we wanted to schedule them. Even if you lose to a team like this, you learn more than playing an easy one. But it's never good to lose and we don't want to."

"They (St. Bede) have size where it counts, at the tackles, good overall quickness and a fine running attack. They have a tendency to destroy teams in the second half."

St. Bede is an Academy of just 378 boys, located near Peru, about 60 miles west of Joliet and 60 miles north of Peoria. They were 7-2 last year and have experience from that unit.

"We're mostly a running team although our quarterback, Greg Koehler, has thrown 50 per cent completions," said coach John Gaughan. Top rushers have been halfback Mark Stuart (5-9, 178) and fullback Pat Mulligan (6-1, 175).

Two tackles who are candidates for all-star honors for the Bruins are Steve Byrne (6-4, 240) and Kim Milcarek (6-1, 207).

"We have a lot of respect for Forest View," said Gaughan. "They have a good, established program with fine personnel."

Lussow thought running backs John Kronforst and Ken Holan both did well against Hersey and said Ray Meinsen, who played only the first half, will start tonight. The other quarterback, Neil Schmidt, was called by the coach "a fine all-around athlete who's got to play someplace."

He called the offensive line "spotty" against Hersey and revised it. Ken Meek and Bill Capizzano will be at guards, John Douglas and Vince O'Brien at tackles and George Bregar at center.

Kickin' It Around

A new kind of training in sports

DID SOMEBODY actually say it isn't whether you win or lose but how you play the game that counts?

That's what I've always heard anyway, but I think there should be a change made in that old saying. Recent events dictate a change.

It apparently matters not how you play the game any more. It's how much money you make.

If you've been following the shifting professional sports scene in recent years, you know what I mean. It really hit home with me Tuesday when I was reading Mike Klein's Herald story on the dollars game they call professional basketball.

As Klein pointed out, there are million dollar rookies, million dollar veterans and all sorts of hundred thousand dollar guys sitting on the bench. Wilt Chamberlain recently signed for a reported $600,000 with the American Basketball Association.

There are players bouncing from league to league, from team to team, from bank to bank. Is somebody really worth $400,000 coming right out of college? How can somebody ask for $200,000 when the franchise lost $600,000. How can these franchises survive?

This entire mess got me to thinking. Just think of the impact this phenomenon will have on the sports training kids will undergo in the future!

Now, when 12-year-old Johnny talks with his dad in the evening, the conversation may go something like this:

"I made it, dad. I finally made it."

"Look, son. Just because you finally made the All-Star team at accounts receivable doesn't mean you can rest on your laurels. Tonight you practice with your balance sheets, at least 30 minutes, before you go to bed. And then..."

"But, dad, when will I ever get a chance to shoot baskets, or even touch a bat and ball, or do some skating?"

"There's no time for that nonsense now, son. You'll have plenty of time for that when you're older, maybe 19 or 20, and after you get your bonus money and your 15-year no-cut contract."

"But dad, just for a couple minutes..."

"Absolutely not, son. I want you to continue practice with your computer programming before you worry about such nonsense as the hanging curve ball or zone press."

"I'm trying, dad."

"And I don't want you to forget your weekend practice on pension plans. Why, I was just talking to Hardship Harry's dad the other day and..."

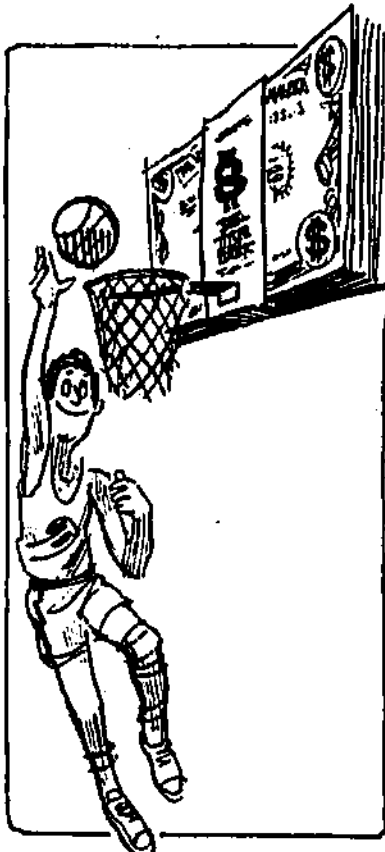

"You really envy Hardship Harry's dad, don't you? Gee, dad, I hope I can make you proud of me some day when I plead hardship and quit college and get all sorts of money for playing basketball."

"That's the spirit, son. I've been around. I know what it takes. I know talent when I see it and you've got it. You've got all the tools the athlete needs today: slide rule, blank ledgers, punch cards, check book, black and red pens."

"And I study every night, dad, that 15-volume set on contract law you gave me when I started first grade."

"That's the spirit, son."

"Gee, dad, do you think mom is interested at all in my sports career? She never says too much and I know she thinks I'm behind in my computer programming. She didn't even read my pa-por on tax write-offs by large conglomerates."

"You'd be proud of your mother, son, if you saw her in the stands at your games, cheering her pretty little head off, cheering for her son, shouting, 'Rectify those discrepancies! Cancel those debits! Go, team, go.'"

"Thanks, dad. I needed that."

"You will be one of the all-time greats, son. Think positively. Think dollar signs. Remember that famous slogan: winners never quit and quitters never earn the big money."

"Dad, I hate to bring this up but what if they have a merger in pro basketball some day, or even hockey, and stop paying big salaries?"

"Think positively, son. Don't think those terrible thoughts. We don't think merger in this house. By the way, I just bought you a new pair of skates to go with your new basketball and a new book on disability programs in professional sports."

"It's always nice talking to you, dad. Before I go to my room tonight and go over those notes on deferred earnings and low interest loans, could you just show me again how to grip my accounts book? I still have some problems with that."

"Glad to, son. Now, you take your Bobby Hull model pen there and your Wilt Chamberlain model ledger. Remember, it's all in the wrists..."

St. Mel handed St. Viator its first loss, 20-19, and Barrington defeated Palatine 13-7... A 57-yard pass play from John Warder to Ken Stahl accounted for the Pirate score... Canadian racer wins

For the first time in the 48-year history of European dominated International Six Day Trial motorcycle racing, a North American built bike and its Canadian rider have captured the coveted gold medal.

Bob Fisher, a native of Toronto, rode his 175cc Can-Am motorcycle, built by Bombardier Limited of Valcourt, Quebec, across 1,100 tough miles of the Berkshire Mountain trails.

Over 300 top bike racers from 21 countries battled the hills and bad weather for six days. One hundred twenty-two cyclists failed to finish the race.

Mount Prospect Open golf test set for weekend

The 6th annual Mount Prospect Open Golf Tournament is coming home.

The golf event played annually on the 1st weekend in October will be played this year on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 6 and 7 at Mount Prospect Country Club.

The first five tournaments were played at different courses in the area and covered only 18 holes. This year's event will cover 36 holes, 18 on each day.

Sixty-eight players have submitted entries and four-man teams were selected by draw last Monday evening. The tournament is a team best ball net with players using 80 per cent of their established handicaps.

Most of the contestants are Mount Prospect residents who play out of the Village Green Golf Club. However, Arlington Heights, Palatine, and Des Plaines are represented by some of their better golfers.

This year one player (Dr. Ron Sveda, D.D.S.), nine handicap, is traveling in from Cleveland and a former Mount Prospect resident now residing in Florida (Jim Moran) has arrived with his 12 handicap.

There are social activities planned for each day following completion of play and all prizes will be awarded at end of tournament on Sunday. Any teams tied for first place at completion of regulation play will proceed to 1st tee to break the tie in sudden death fashion.

In the five year history of this event, sudden death play has been used three times to break ties. With such a big and evenly balanced field, it is anticipated that on Sunday, Oct. 7, at 5:00 p.m. a gang will be assembled on the 1st tee to witness the tie-breaker.

A list of the teams and Saturday starting times follows. Sunday starting times will be posted after completion of play on Saturday.

Girls' tennis finals set for Saturday

Championship matches will be held Saturday in the girls tennis competition of the Mid-Suburban League.

Preliminary rounds will be held today with the finals starting at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Arlington High School courts.

In action Tuesday Arlington rolled along with a 7-0 victory over Elk Grove. Hersey blanked Hoffman Estates 7-0 and Rolling Meadows (4-3 over Wheeling), Palatine (4-3 over Fremd), Forest View (5-2 over Schaumburg) and Conant (6-1 over Buffalo Grove) were other winners.

A full slate of matches was set for yesterday, weather permitting. However, even if rain wiped out the Thursday matches, the conference competition will go on as scheduled.

Buffalo Grove, Wheeling grid

The Buffalo Grove Bills had two scoring opportunities from within the Wheeling Packers' two-yard line, but a stubborn Wheeling defense prevented any scores and the final score was 0-0.

The Bills remained one-half game in first place with a 2-0-1 record. The Packers hold third place at 1-1-1. The Wheeling Cardinals are second with 2-2-0.

Despite the muddy field and rain, the Bills committed no errors. Craig Groot shared quarterback duties with Ken Peters, and both engineered drives that fell short.

Defensively, end Tim Condon led all tacklers with 11. As a team, the Bills limited the Packers to 133 yards rushing.

Buffalo Grove meets Prospect Heights Saturday at 10 a.m. at Heritage Park.

Commandos, Raiders defeat Boys Club

In intra-town rivalries in the Northwest Suburban Football League, the Hoffman Estates Commandos and Raiders defeated the Boys Club Titans and Lancers.

The Commandos remained undefeated by beating the Titans 24-6. Hoffman score was only 7-6 but the Commandos dominated the second half. Tim Tyrrell had his best day rushing with 108 yards and two touchdowns on runs of 28 and 50 yards. The other touchdowns were scored by Casey Moore and Dan Fink. Kenny Anderson made two key receptions on passes from Dan Rooney. The Commandos gained 225 yards while allowing the Titans only 97. The Commandos travel to West Chicago Sunday.

Sain Goranson's Raiders defeated the Lancers 12-4 in the other game. The Raiders scored first in a rushing run by Kevin Weaver for which he was awarded the game ball. The other TD came on a pass from Brian Eld to John Fidler.

OUR PAPER, OUR BOYS

Dear Herald:

Until today I thought I was the only one who missed what I felt a very descriptive column in the Herald.

This column used to start about the second week of September and end in early November. We became acquainted with this column about 10 years ago, when our son joined the Mount Prospect Midget Football at Lions Park.

As our family grew older and the other boys joined football, I began saving these weekly columns and made scrapbooks for the boys. It didn't matter if our sons were written up, I just saved the whole column and the boys seemed to enjoy having them. They would sit and compare what their buddies were doing in high school with what they did with the Midgets.

Our two youngest sons are with the "Rams" and the "Hoosiers" and I haven't bothered starting books for them. Other than the scores of the games there is nothing.

At the last game, I overheard several mothers, a coach and his wife all discussing the fact that the column has been cut due to shortages.

I realize everyone won't agree with me or the other MPFA parents, but there are some of us who would prefer to read in our local paper about our sons and sons of friends in the area and let the Chicago daily papers handle the biggies like C. Clay and B. J. Riggs.

Pat Sramek
Mount Prospect

The scores and highlights of the Mount Prospect Midget Football program appear once each week — as always. The only change from the past is that we are trying to concentrate only on objective categories. There actually is very little difference from this approach as to years past. It just gives us a better chance to control the length of these results and when space becomes a serious problem, that is important. As far as the stories on "C. Clay and B. J. Riggs" that you mentioned, balance will always be an important part of any sports section. These areas we live in can't be treated as the small communities they once were. There are many readers in this growing area who do not have children involved in any local sports activity but enjoy reading the local approach to events of national interest. Without these general interest stories they would have no reason to even turn inside to the sports section. We have to try to appeal to a wide cross-section of the readership, not just one or two specific groups. Thanks for your interest.

LINKS COVERAGE LIKED

Dear Paul Logan:

I have just finished making arrangements for the mailing of tournament mementos and pictures of the various four-somes in the Pro-Am, and it occurred to me that I neglected to write and tell you how much we appreciate the tremendous coverage given the tournament by Pad-dock Publications, and most particularly by you.

(Sold coverage was of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Child and Family Services Open at Midlane Country Club, Waukegan, in August).

Several times since the tournament, I have glanced back through the clipping files and I am just overwhelmed by the number of stories and pictures which you fellows carried. I honestly believe that if we had gotten the same kind of cooperation from other sportswriters (as well as radio and TV), we could have increased the size of the gallery tremendously. Anyway, we are grateful for your help.

SHED SOME LIGHT, WRIGLEY

Dear Fans Forum:

Wrigley Field and more specifically P.K. Wrigley became national laughing-stocks over the weekend because of the refusal to put lights in that antiquated ball park.

Wrigley's stubbornness is absurd and also the way some Chicago sportswriters gush over him and his "beautiful Wrigley Field."

The umpires had to be concerned not only with whether it would stop raining but also whether or not there would be enough light to continue. Only in Wrigley Field is there that concern. Only in Wrigley Field can't they turn on the lights when it gets too dark.

When is Wrigley going to wake up and get with it? I'm sick of the way that organization is handled and maybe it's time he gives it up. He never seems that interested anyway.

I took the family down to Wrigley Field Friday afternoon and then had to come home because the game was called. If there were lights, we would have stayed and seen a game. I for one will never go to that park again unless they put in lights.

Maybe it's time the writers in Chicago stop treating Wrigley as such an important baseball figure. He stopped being that long ago. Right now everybody's laughing at him and I'm glad the lack of lights and the problems it caused got some national exposure over the weekend.

Hersey golfers win on tiebreaker

In the most dramatic match of the Mid-Suburban League's experimental fall golf season, Hersey survived Forest View's fifth man tiebreaker and triumphed, 199-200.

The two squads battled to a 157 deadlock through the regulation four-man totals. Arlington, the third team in the double dual meet, bowed out with 164. Relying on the score of each team's fifth player, Hersey's Cal Zimmerman posted a 42 while Forest View's Bob Appleton carded 43.

Forest View parlayed 38's by Dan Meier and Dave Martindale, a 40 by Rick Keyser and Ron Romack's 41 for its stellar 157. Hersey, however, countered behind 38's by sophomores Scott Warneke and Ed Stubbs, Bruce Conroy's 40 and Jeff Kallman's 41.

Arlington's total was derived from Steve Loughman's meet medalist 37, Tom Olcese's 40, Jay Colleton's 42 and Doug Sandell's 45.

In the only other meet scheduled, Palatine trimmed Elk Grove and Wheeling with a nifty 153. Elk Grove fired a surprising 159 to Wheeling's 167, but the Pirates took honors behind the consistent scoring of John Loneragan's 37, 38's by Jim Arden and Nicky Zambale and Steve Pircher's 40.

Elk Grove recorded its best effort of the season behind Mike Kwon's 38, Scott Walker's 39, Mike Branigan's 40 and a pair of 42's by Mark Christensen and Mark Johnson. Wheeling posted Mike McHugh's 42, 48's by John Leonetti and Bob Blomquist and Bill Fill's 49.

Third place, Bank & Trust Co. of Arlington Heights — Fred Heisler, captain, Wally Busch, Herb Chessman, Dick Hoyt, Harold Voigt.

Surging Lions travel Sunday

by LARRY EVERHART

When you're defending champion and leading the league again, you can be sure everyone wants to knock you off more than any other team. That's the price of sustaining success.

Which is why St. Viator can never afford to take any opponent lightly, no matter how heavily favored the Lions are. It's also why coach Jim Lyno is cautious as usual looking toward Sunday and a date at St. Patrick of Chicago.

Still, the Lions logically have to be a decided favorite. They're 3-0 and St. Patrick is 0-4. After some close losses, the Shamrocks were bombed 31-7 by St. Francis de Sales in their league opener last week.

St. Viator's stock has risen each week. The Lions were underdogs in their first two games but won both anyway, thrillers over Hersey and Lane Tech. They were favored last week against Carmel and won 21-6, but are even more expected to win Sunday in preparation for another expected showdown with undefeated and ranked Holy Cross.

Curiously, St. Viator still is not rated in the Chicago area top 17 by Chicago press, even though they have played tougher opponents than teams ranked higher.

Lyno blows all of the above out of his mind, though, in readying for any game. "St. Patrick is always physical and hard-hitting," he said. "They come right at you, nothing fancy, although this year they're passing more than usual. They have good size, average speed, and throw multiple defensive formations at you."

Pat's coach Larry Scannell said about his team, "We haven't been consistent. Some days we do one thing well, some days another. We haven't put it all together yet."

The Lions' injury list, seemingly never empty, now includes linebacker Mark Selvig, out about three weeks with a broken hand; defensive end Frank Powers, lost two weeks with a bum leg; and Tom Maher, the squad's best running back last year whose healing ankle is still a week-to-week doubt.

Tom Horvath, one of the top linemen, has recovered from his injury and starred on defense last week along with Rick O'Donnell and Joe Peifer. Offensive spearheads were Jim Bucaro (passing), Steve Bobowski (receiving) and Joe Liltwin (running).

receiver. Last week against Forest View, the talented transfer rushed for 78 yards and accounted for another 102 via receptions.

"He's the holler guy on our team," Gilwa praised. "He's the kind who is still working hard after the whistle blows. He's patting the kids on the back, perking them up with his talks and just keeping us a close-family football team."

Gilwa admitted that the winner of this mid-season showdown would be in pretty good shape to go all the way. He didn't have to be reminded that his club would be involved in another critical game.

"We've played St. Viator and Forest View and have Arlington and Fremd in our next two games. You show me someone who's got a schedule comparable to that."

PALATINE AT ROLLING MEADOWS

Last year at this time, Palatine's scintillating 14-13 triumph over Rolling Meadows was admittedly the turning point in both clubs' seasons.

The satisfying victory enabled the Pirates to win three of their last four games while the heartbroken Mustangs dropped their final three of four.

Perhaps that the reason Meadows head coach Angelo Barro is so overly cautious about his date with the Pirates tonight. True, his team has the added incentive of homecoming, but he's also concerned about how his squad will rebound from the hard-to-swallow 41-0 shellacking administered by Racine Horlick last week.

"We've got to regroup and concentrate on the North Division schedule ahead," Barro said. "We got a bad one out of our system and there's no use worrying about it anymore."

Instead, Meadows (1-2 overall) will concentrate on stopping the balanced rushing and passing attack of Palatine. "They can hurt you either way," Barro confirmed. "That quarterback (Andy) Donahue and end (Mike McCoslin) are a good combination, but we've also got to deal with their tight end (Jim) Hickey and both (Tory) Tausky and (Lan) Marchel coming out of the backfield."

Palatine's ability to either run or pass effectively will depend on the Mustang defense which lost Lance Pressl for the season with a shoulder injury. "If we can play some defense and cut down on those meaningless penalties we've been hurt by, this game could point us in the right direction," Barro concluded.

Palatine's searching for that special something that permeated the Pirate team the last three games of the season. "We're hoping for four quarters of football," said head coach Arv Herstedt. "We haven't had it at all this year."

Arlington, Wheeling and Hersey can recall what Herstedt is referring to because they were the victims of it.

The first quarter of the Pirates' opener was a "bad" one, according to Herstedt. The first half of the Schaumburg game wasn't good and the third quarter of the Prospect game didn't measure up to Palatine's high standards.

Herstedt is concerned with Meadows despite its past two losses, especially since they were two highly-ranked teams. The Pirates coach is hoping to get some fine showings out of the rest of his defense that he received from four guys in particular last week — tackle Neil Johnson and halfbacks McCoslin, Steve Robbins and Marchel.

"He didn't start and went in the second half," said Herstedt of Johnson. "He got real fired up... He'll start this week."

Bill Zimmerman will be moved into the center spot — the only major change on offense. Considered a doubtful starter is big fullback Jim Maycan. If his infection sidelines him again, junior runner Bob Hughes will be able to do the job again. Besides being fullback last week, Hughes continued his fine punting. He's averaging 40 yards a kick.

PROSPECT AT ELK GROVE

"We're bound to put it together sometime," Prospect head coach Don Williams reasoned. In the past, the Knights have unexplainably played their best ball against Elk Grove, dropping a 14-9 decision to the Super Bowl II champs in 1971 and a respectable 22-6 contest to the state's top ranked squad in '72.

"They don't seem as explosive as they were last year," Williams said of Elk Grove, "but this year's team won't beat itself. They make very few mistakes although they like to throw the ball a lot. They make up for it on defense. They're one of the best in the league."

Prospect can be excited about the way it moved the ball against Palatine, but its failure to put the ball in the end zone is still haunting. The Knights gained 223 yards but failed to score. They can't make that mistake again and expect to beat Elk Grove.

"I think we'll keep Luciani (Mark) on defense," Williams said of his linebacker supreme and parttime fullback. "Palatine shot up our defense pretty well so I think we'll let Mark concentrate on his linebacking. It's what he does best."

This will leave Mike Quade barking signals to either Jon Devero, Val Graflin, Brad Schmidt or Mike Rekowski in the Prospect backfield.

"We're just starting over," said Grove coach Don Schnake. "That streak stuff's gone."

Arlington made sure of that by using what many coaches, including Williams, think Elk Grove does best — playing defense. The Cardinals stopped the running of Jim Goggin and Don Weadley and the passing of Jim Hammers. Thus they fashioned the first shutout since Grove's loss 18 games before.

Elk Grove must have the line blocking tonight to again spring the Weadley-Goggin combination. It is only then that Hammers will be able to function effectively when a timely pass is needed.

Prospect's 1969-70 team holds the area's longest (18 straight) winning record with Elk Grove now being the author of the second longest (17). Schnake isn't talking about starting another lengthy streak, however.

"We just try to get just as good a ball club as we can," he said.

Although Prospect has been having its troubles this season and will be considered the underdog in this game, it could be the perfect moment for an upset. The past two seasons have seen the Grenadiers win the south Division by beating Forest View. Since the Falcons are their opponents next week, they could be looking ahead to this big rivalry.

WHEELING AT FREMD

"When you throw a lot, anything can happen."

With that comment, Fremd coach Al Ratcliff anticipated his club's upcoming game against visiting Wheeling tonight with all the caution one would afford any Johnny Unitas or Kevin Steger.

The Vikings haven't had the misfortune to run up against the likes of Johnny, a prolific passer at the professional plane. They have experienced the antics of Kevin Steger, however, who threw a lot in leading Lake Park to a 22-7 triumph over Fremd earlier in the season.

And they expect to experience some more passing when the Wildcats come to town.

"We saw Wheeling last week and they didn't do much on the ground," Ratcliff recalled. "They do have a quarterback with a strong arm and some willing receivers though, and if they've watched us at all, they know we've had our weak moments in the defensive secondary."

"I suspect they'll be probing a lot through the air Friday night," he added.

In addition to shoring up the Viking pass defense, Ratcliff has voiced his concern about improving another of his team's vulnerable points thus far — the turnover. "We've lost seven fumbles already this season and that statistic has got to be curtailed. If we don't and Wheeling is the opportunist most teams are, we'll be playing catch-up football."

Fremd must also shake off the unsettling loss of one of the team's regular starters for the remainder of the season through a brutal car accident. Right tackle Brendon Hoey was hospitalized last Saturday with multiple fractures of both legs and is lost to the school's athletic program the rest of the year.

Wheeling coach Jack Liljeberg will bring a healthy and hungry team against one of the best defensive teams over the years Ratcliff has been Fremd's head coach.

The formula for winning is simple in nature but difficult to achieve over the last 10 straight losses:

"It will take a concerted effort of four quarters with no major breakdowns."

Liljeberg pointed out that his team has been in the last four ball games (including the finale of '72), but a slipup has happened each time. "A mixup on pass coverage" was the "Cats' downfall against Schaumburg Saturday.

Other than the mistakes in the secondary, Liljeberg was pleased with the rest of the defense's play. He singled out tackle Mark Confer and linebacker Ken Smith as doing "pretty fair jobs."

Liljeberg added he was expecting "no major changes" in his starting lineup.

SCHAUMBURG AT CONANT

"Won't records don't mean anything in a big rivalry game like this."

Schaumburg coach Bob Ferguson was talking about his team's match at Conant tonight, one that has always been rousing since the Cougars split from the Saxons three years ago.

Although Ferguson figures the teams are "evenly-matched," things are looking up so much at Schaumburg (1-2) that it could even be considered a favorite tonight, despite Conant (0-3) having the home-field advantage.

Not only are the Saxons much-encouraged by their first win of the season and first in seven games, 21-14 against Wheeling last week, but perhaps even more important, their two best linemen are set to return after being out with injuries the first three games.

They are Ken Knudtson and Ken Jaffke, and both are big and strong enough to go both ways. "They're both studs and Knudtson played for a state champion in Kansas," said Ferguson. A broken finger has kept Knudtson out while a knee injury has sidelined Jaffke.

Boys who stood out of defense in last week's win were Joe Calabria, Bob Jones and Dave Motisi. Offensively, Wayne Morgan carried most of the attack with 111 yards officially in 20 carries. Quarterback Dave Hill completed seven for 18 passes for 96 yards, but as Ferguson said, "Some of his passes were dropped that were right on the money."

He added, "The offensive line blocked well and the defense held Wheeling to minus 32 yards rushing for the game."

Before the season started Conant coach Ralph Lossee was worried about getting through the first three weeks until interdivisional play began. The Cougars had three highly-regarded outfields to go up against in Lake Park, Hersey and Fremd and he didn't particularly relish the thought.

That time has passed now... but Lossee is still worried.

"They're (Schaumburg) the only team in the South that won last week and you know that have to be higher than a kite over there," Lossee estimated of the Saxon crew which is scheduled to invade the Cougar lair Friday night.

After viewing Schaumburg in action last Saturday the Conant mentor, appraised them as having a scrappy defense and an offense that can move the ball. "This is a big rivalry for both of us anyway," he added. "I would much rather have met them under different terms."

Lossee's concern, in addition to the fact that Schaumburg will be coming off a stimulating victory, is that his own club has been the victim rather than the capitalist in terms of mistakes of the field.

"I think this was our undoing more than anything else last week against Fremd. We were making the mistakes and they were ones taking advantage of them."

"We're going to have to turn this situation around if we want to threaten Schaumburg," Lossee said.

The Cougars lost to the Saxons last year 24-21, after beating their neighbors to the west 21-8 the first time after the split at Conant brought Schaumburg into

Oakton golfers split in Skyway

The Oakton Community College golfers defeated Waubesa but lost to Lake County in a Skyway Conference meet held last week at Rob Roy Country Club in Mount Prospect.

Lake County shot 284, Oakton 328 and Waubesa 333. Lake County's Bruce Johnson topped the field with a 68 on the par 71 course. Joe Danelak was Oakton's low scorer with 75 for fifth place. Jim Weser shot 81 and John Murnane 84.

Major class rating for MSL? Maybe not

It won't be official until mid-October, but the Mid-Suburban League might not compete for Illinois' major Class 5A prep football title when state playoffs begin next autumn.

The Herald has learned the Mid-Suburban champion might compete in Class 4A for slightly smaller schools, according to a source in the Illinois High School Association.

In Class 5A, the MSL would have the lowest average attendance with 2,108 students per school based on current enrollments. Among Class 4A conferences, it would boast the highest figure.

Both other leagues touching the Herald area — Central Suburban North and South divisions plus the Suburban Catholic East — will compete in 5A, according to the IHSA source.

The six-school Suburban

League boasts the largest number state-wide, an average 4,115 students, and will compete in Class 5A. If the Mid-Suburban goes to Class 4A, the Illinois Eight will be Class 5A's smallest member with a 2,233 student average.

Class 5A will definitely include the following prep leagues: suburban, Central Suburban, Illinois Eight, Upstate Eight, Des Plaines Valley, Western Big Six, SICA West Central, Southwestern, West Suburban and SICA North Central.

Class 4A will include these leagues: Big Nine, SICA East Central, North Suburban, Big Twelve, Capitol, North Central Illinois, Mid-State Nine, Tri-County, SICA South Central, South Seven, Northwest Suburban, Mississippi Valley and Little Seven.

State football champions will be honored in five classes.

Holmes again meet winners

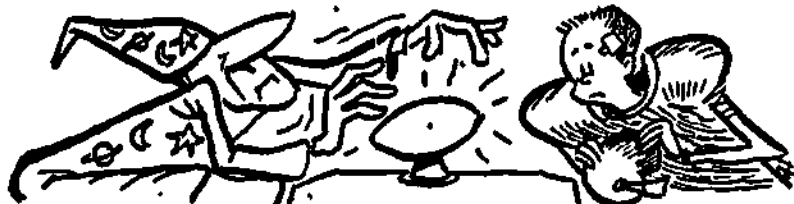

Holmes was the winner for the third straight year at the eighth-grade level and second year in a row in seventh-grade competition in the third annual three-team Falcon Junior High cross country invitational held by Forest View High.

In eighth-grade running, Holmes totaled 21 points to 47 for Dempster and 63 for Friendship. Rick Gardner of Holmes was the winner with 6:29 (1.15 miles) for a new course record and just two seconds behind was teammate Matt Vandebloom. Dave Dolan was third for Holmes, followed by Friendship's Mike Koop and Dempsey's Mike Vaccino.

The seventh-grade contest saw Holmes finishing with 29 points, Dempster 43 and Friendship 49. On the same 1.15-mile course, another course record was easily established by Ron Laramie of Holmes with 6:38. Friendship took second with Scott Bueller's 6:40 and Jeff Kloster of Dempster was third.

The meet started with 44 participants the first year, 67 last year and 118 this year, almost doubling entries in one year. Forest View coach Bill Mohrmann said, "Coaches have done an outstanding job of preparing kids for an exciting event. I'm really pleased with their cooperation."

Africa famine aid finally beginning

by LOUIS CASSELS
Church relief agencies are beginning to respond, slowly and thus far on an ad-hoc basis, to one of the greatest human tragedies of modern history. After five years of drought and crop failures, a vast stretch of central Africa is stricken by famine. A United Nations report says 6 million people may starve to death during the coming winter unless the rest of the world quickly comes to their aid with massive food shipments.

Mental health

More women sought for medicine

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

American women are developing a group consciousness. They want equal rights and privileges with men. They want self determination in areas which directly affect them like education and medicine.

As in the case with men, women are entitled to best utilize their talents. The American Psychiatric Association (APA) has recognized this right and is looking at its own professional areas for ways to help women have an equal chance at becoming members of the traditionally male-dominated medical field.

Dr. Nancy Roeske, director of the University of Indiana Medical Center's undergraduate psychiatric curriculum, is chairman of an APA task force studying the role of women in psychiatry. The force was formed according to Dr. Roeske, because the APA has been aware that women have had difficulties deciding to enter medical school, complete medical and professional training and also in performing their medical specialties.

"WOMEN TEND to make a professional choice at a very young age," Dr. Roeske said. "A number of studies have shown a large number of women make their career choice either prior to entering or early in high school. Women who go into medicine tend to come from better educated, fairly affluent homes where the father has a profession or business role. These women are encouraged from early childhood to think independently and to wish to fulfill their own particular interests. To correlate these two ideas — women are directly affected, at an early age by their parents, to choose a particular career and it is most often the independent woman who chooses medicine."

According to Dr. Roeske, approximately the same percentage of women who apply to medical are accepted as men — it's just that fewer women apply because "they just don't get the encouragement or support from families or teachers or counselors."

Men and women, at about an equal rate, drop out of medical school for academic reasons but three times the number of women drop out for emotional reasons.

"This makes us wonder," Dr. Roeske said, "why women become so emotionally distressed. It's probably because the conflict between marriage and the family and pursuing a profession comes into sharp focus at this time. It's the woman who drops pursuit of a professional career in order to care for her family."

WOMEN HAVE approximately one-third of their children by the time they finish psychiatric residency training which is generally when they're 29 or 30 years old. Men have two-thirds — they're generally married to younger women. "We're asking these women to postpone child bearing and to put themselves and their children in a higher risk group because of their professional pursuits."

"An old study," Dr. Roeske continued, "showed that women physicians, on an average, gave up four years apiece of their professional practice to fulfill the mother and wife role."

Dr. Roeske believes a good day-care system would relieve much of the pressure medical students and physicians have and allow them to spend more time in their profession and in general she believes women would more often choose the medical profession if they had support in other areas like parents, teachers and husbands.

The U.S. government, which was so eager to supply wheat to Russia, has thus far displayed little concern about the hunger stalking such non-strategic nations as Chad, Ethiopia, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal, Sudan and Upper Volta.

Surplus farm commodities, which the government used to provide free to relief agencies, have virtually vanished under the Phase IV food pinch. And when relief agencies go into the commercial market to buy wheat for starving Africans, they find the price has risen sharply as a result of the grain deal with Russia.

SEEKING LITTLE hope of compassionate action by the administration or Congress, church agencies are trying, belatedly and without great success to date, to raise enough money through voluntary private contributions to mount a respectable food relief program.

The National Association of Evangelicals, through its World Relief Commission, had raised only a few thousand dollars by early this month. But its leaders voiced hope that evangelical Protestants, traditionally generous to foreign missions, will respond when they are made aware that the current African famine is "probably the worst disaster we've faced in our time."

Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches, has shipped more than 250,000 tons of food to the stricken area but admits this is just a drop in the bucket of need.

HOPE FOR A much larger relief effort is seen in the fact that Evangelist Billy Graham is taking an active personal interest.

Graham donated the entire offering from the final service of his recent Minneapolis crusade — some $71,900 — to African relief and has sent one of his chief aides to the famine belt to make a firsthand study of needs.

Graham's enormous following and his access to large television audiences could make him a tremendous fund-raiser for feeding the hungry in Africa.

This might even be a cause that Graham would feel justified in bringing a bit of moral persuasion to bear upon his pastoral charge, the President of the United States.

LOCAL OFFICIALS and representatives of the news media were given special flights on the new A300B Airbus this week as the plane demonstrated its versatility at O'Hare and Midway airports. At front in this photo is Nanci Vanderweel, Elk Grove Village trustee.

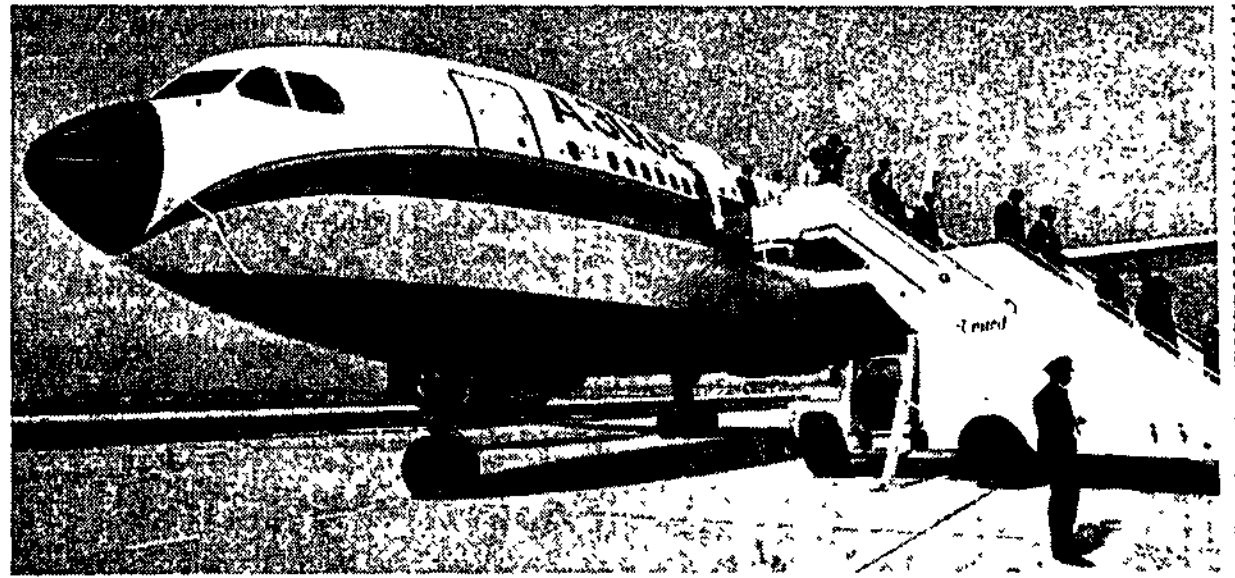

300-passenger capacity; only two engines

Airbus: bigger may not be better...

The American idea that bigger means better is being challenged by the new A300B Airbus produced by a new European cooperative company under French management.

Although the plane can carry more than 300 passengers, it is economical because it has only two engines and has to carry less fuel.

Powered by the newest engines from General Electric, the manufacturers boast the quietest and cleanest airliner in operation. The powerful but smaller plane will make possible increased use of shorter runways such as those at Midway Airport, which have been made almost obsolete by the jumbo jets produced up to now.

THE NEWEST in the string of wide-body jets is the A300B, produced by Airbus Industrie. The European-built plane, powered by two General Electric turbofan engines, is currently on an eight-city tour of the United States. The primary function of the plane is to carry large numbers of people short or medium distances.

Mailer rips press in Rosary speech

NORMAN MAILER

Author Norman Mailer leveled an attack against the press Wednesday calling newspaper reporting a "dreaded spectrum of writing," saying objective reporting "showed a resolute lack of imagination."

In a speech before some 1,000 people at Rosary College in suburban Lake Forest, the famed writer criticized reporters by saying, "There is no reason to believe that a novelist is not better equipped to deal with the mysteries of a situation than anyone else."

Mailer's most recent book, "Marilyn," about the life and death of the late actress Marilyn Monroe, has come under heavy fire from press critics, who have called the work poorly researched and based on speculation rather than fact. Mailer did not talk about the book during the 90-minute speech.

LEANING OVER the podium and using artful hand gestures, the eloquent Mailer said newspapers have become "too technical and obsessed with detail and fact," whereas "novelists can only come up with equations of situations."

"This type of objective reality," Mailer contended, "is not the best way to view the events of the 20th Century."

Mailer disassociated himself from the "new journalism," a writing style in which factual instances are reported in the form and manner of a novel. "I'm just a country novelist," he said.

ACCORDING TO Mailer, a significant "separation" exists between writing the novel and new journalism.

Writing in the style of the new journalism is easier than writing a novel, he said because "history has provided all the answers. History is the greatest novelist of them all and therefore the new journalism takes care of itself."

In writing a novel, he said, "The writer must come to grips daily with the problem of 'how do I continue?'"

Reporters play jester role to Norm's King

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — Into the crowded room strut Norman Mailer and his ego, not necessarily in that order.

The sweating pack of waiting journalists bristles. Most journalists are would-be authors and there is nothing they like better than grilling an already-is author, especially one who is as rich, famous and talented as Mailer.

THE OCCASION for the press conference is a response by Mailer to the critics of his latest book, "Marilyn," which he describes as a "novel biography" of actress Marilyn Monroe. Accustomed as he is to dwelling on such cosmic subjects as war, politics, the moon, boxing, orgasms and himself, Mailer portrays Miss Monroe as a "20th-Century phenomenon" and in an admittedly hypothetical closing chapter, raises the possibility that the actress was murdered.

Critics have called the book a lot of things, including lousy, untrue, plagiarism, a hack job and at $19.95, overpriced.

Mailer tells the reporters, however, that he believes "Marilyn" is one of his best books. ("Can you hear me there in the back?" he calls out while explaining this. "I can hear you.") He admits his theory is largely speculation but does not apologize for it, citing some medical evidence that tends to discount suicide as an explanation for Miss Monroe's death.

HE FLATLY DENIES the plagiarism charge, acknowledging that he never met his subject and that his book is based mainly on two previous biographies of Miss Monroe and citing instances where he has credited their authors.

He also denies the "hack" charges, pointing out that he had originally contracted to write a 10,000 word preface to a book of more than 100 photographs. "Then," he says, "for once in my professional life, I felt a generous impulse course through me." He ended up with a 60,000-word book illustrated by more than 100 photographs, for which he will receive royalties of four per cent instead of his usual 15 per cent.

He does not address the question of overpricing, perhaps because four per cent of $19.95 is 80 cents and his publisher has already printed 400,000 copies of the book.

MAILER CONCEDES that he hurried through the end of the book under pressure of a publisher's deadline but he doesn't apologize.

"There are still about 40 books I want to write," he says. "And I'd rather write 10 somewhat imperfect books than one or two almost perfect ones."

Imperfections notwithstanding, Mailer is at some pains to counterattack against his critics, especially Time magazine and television commentator Mike Wallace, both Mailer foes of long standing. Someone asks what reason Wallace would have for being unfair to him and Mailer says incredulously, "Are you kidding?"

"Now you can take this down: Wallace is a jobholder. (Are you taking it down?) Wallace is just too old and tired to do anything else."

HE IS STILL standing in the front of the room, sweat matting the curly gray hair at the back of his neck, now answering unasked questions, when the reporters begin gathering their equipment and start to talk to each other, sending up a low murmur that brings an undeclared but definite end to the press conference.

"If you don't have any more questions," Mailer adds anticlimactically, "that will be it."

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Operation Libra—a big test

out by the sirens as the first of 24 ambulances started to arrive. During the drill, they would come from as far away as Glencoe and Lake Forest to pick up their patients and speed them off to Holy Family, Northwest Community, Resurrection, Lutheran General Hospital or Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Paramedics tried to move as fast as they could but were hindered by delayed arrival of supplies. One girl died as she waited. "There was nothing we could do," a paramedic said. While some said they couldn't get the feeling of an actual disaster, to others it felt like the real thing.

Not everything went smoothly. There were traffic and communication problems. Too many people milled about the site although residents had been asked a week in advance to stay home. But 2½ hours after the Lickety Split Airline jet crashed, all victims had been carted away to the hospitals or to the Des Plaines Fire Station morgue where identifications were made, five of them through dental checks.

AT THE HOSPITALS the staffs were on alert. "Boy with open chest wounds enroute to Alexian," a fireman at the site radioed, and at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, they would be waiting for him.

Hospital employees responded well to the many kinds of emergency cases brought in. Although the drill was supposed to be a secret, many of them knew ahead of time. Wally Phillips blabbed all about it on his morning radio talk show. About the only major excitement at the hospital was the battle between hospital officials and visitors trying to see real patients.

Alexian Brothers, like the other hospitals in the drill, had a plan of action and moved quickly when the emergency call came through. "Code Three!"

The warning sounded throughout the hospital building and staff personnel responded with speed. An argument arose when visitors waiting to see patients or visitors already with patients were shuttled off to the auditorium to prevent them from interfering with the drill activities.

MEANWHILE, employees at their prearranged working stations waited for the drill victims and instructions from their superiors, including the chief of staff, Dr. Sheldon Cohen.

A FORGOTTEN OLD station, train and water tower are the subject for a metal sculpture, one of Bob Farrell's favorites. "I've always had a thing for trains," he admits. "My grandfather worked for the Penn Central."

BENDING THE LIMBS of figures is a difficult process in metal sculpturing. If not enough heat is applied cracks will appear. Too much heat will melt a piece. The flowers are made out of angel skin coral found only off the coast of Hawaii.

Exhibit at Riverwoods

Sculptors pool talents

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Having met and admired each other's work several years ago while both were exhibiting in the same California art fair, Bob Farrell and Gerald Richman joined forces in adopting a "two creative heads are better than one" approach.

Yet even though the metal sculptors collaborate on the design of each new piece, one is usually working out of the Wheeling studio while the other is on his way to Kansas, Texas, California or Florida . . . depending upon the season and where the best art show is purported to be.

Their market is the entire U. S. and thus rarely do Richman and Farrell restrict themselves to local fairs, even though the two could save greatly on mileage.

Their craftsmanship will be on display close to home next weekend, however, for the 14th annual Arts & Riverwoods, a combination invitational art show and house tour.

FIVE PRIVATE residences in north suburban Riverwoods will serve as a backdrop for a diverse array of artwork that will feature 28 artists and craftsmen from 11 different states.

Officials of the Riverwoods show contacted Farrell and Richman after seeing their work last spring in Milwaukee.

"Yes, metal sculpture is very popular now. One sees it everywhere. That's why you have to stay one step ahead of everyone else in order to retain a certain uniqueness," said Farrell, one-half of the team who is currently in town, though he too had just returned from an out-of-state show.

Farrell received his training in sculpture from Fleischer Art Memorial in Philadelphia. But he never worked with metal until he entered the Army and became a metalsmith. Richman had originally been a painter.

THE FEW PIECES displayed in Farrell's Arlington Heights home admirably support his and his partner's claim to "uniqueness." Each small detail is painstakingly delivered. Though overall rustic in feeling, some pieces are also highly whimsical in nature, achieved through working with light, warm subjects. Many delightful scenes of youth have been recaptured. Other old landmarks are highlighted and preserved in metal.

Though much of their work is shown out of the Midwest, the two chose the Chicago area in which to live and work because it is centrally located.

"Also one has to be near an industrial city for delivery of materials," said Farrell, who has experienced no shortage of necessary metals such as bronze, copper, brass and steel, but laments over the higher prices he must pay for the new material.

MANY OF THE finished pieces are mounted on uncut mineral rocks such as quartz and amethyst which, he adds, are also increasingly hard to come by at reasonable prices.

Since the bases are meant to merely compliment the sculpture itself, Farrell does not feel the mineral should take precedence to greatly hike the price of the finished product. Designing primarily with the home in mind, the two artists attempt to price their pieces accordingly.

Thirty per cent of their working time is spent on the road which can become "old hat," admits Farrell, unless a show is now, at a different location.

Because the metal sculpture is very fragile, Farrell and Richman must carry everything with them. It is too risky to ship an item and expect it to arrive undamaged.

AND UNLIKE many artists, painters, for instance, who can turn out canvases as they travel, the metal sculptors must leave all their tools behind. It would be impossible to set up even a makeshift studio en route with all the necessary acids, torches and equipment required in their work.

"It's a means to the end," commented Farrell about the continual traveling involved.

Eventually the two hope to open a series of small galleries throughout the country and eliminate the shows altogether. They already have one in Los Angeles and are looking for a Chicago location and also one on the east coast.

"Many artists are afraid to travel . . . take a chance and make the necessary investment in time and expenses. It's always a gamble. Even something as unpredictable as the weather can determine success or failure," said Farrell.

BUT THERE ARE some advantages to going on the road. Lots of ideas are suggested by different parts of the country, in particular old ranch scenes, farms and ghost towns.

Victorian homes found in Georgia with gingerbread cupolas and ornate cornices are being considered for an entire series in metal by the partnership of Farrell and Richman.

"Painters don't have the landscape kind of thing sewed up. It's possible to bring into sculpture too," Farrell declared.

Tickets, $2.50, for the Arts & Riverwoods Show, noon to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 13 and 14, can be purchased by mail by writing Arts & Riverwoods, Deerfield, Ill., 60015.

DURING SHOWTIME, there will also be a ticket-information booth at Deerfield and Sanders Roads, one block west of the Deerfield exit of the Tri-State Tollway. Tickets bought either day of the show are $3.

The annual autumn woods walk began in 1960 to raise legal funds for the residents of the wooded village who today still are determined to fight threatened industrial and commercial encroachment and preserve the natural beauty of the area.

Ballet luncheon features dancer Sybil Shearer

Internationally famous dancer Sybil Shearer will present a special program following the annual fall luncheon of Mid America Ballet Associates of Barrington and Palatine Friday, Oct. 19, at Barrington Hills Country Club.

The champagne luncheon will begin at 12:30 p.m. with an hour-long cocktail hour preceding lunch. Tickets are $5.50 and reservations may be made by calling 381-6646 or 381-2907. Members may bring guests.

Mid America Ballet, based jointly in Chicago and Milwaukee, is a non-profit, tax-exempt foundation dedicated to establishing a professional resident repertory ballet company that would serve the entire Midwest. Associate chapters are being formed in Chicago and suburbs, including the one in Barrington established in 1970 and a newly organized one in Palatine.

VT play opens tonight

'Carats' scene changes a challenge

PAST AND PRESENT loves in the life of Ann Stanley, heroine of "40 Carats," are played in the Village

An interesting aspect of Village Theatre's kick-off production, "40 Carats," opening tonight, is the uniqueness of the set in relation to Prospect High School's stage area.

Hugh Fairman, Elk Grove Village, who designed the set, is a relative newcomer to Village Theatre although he has had extensive experience in Pennsylvania community theater.

This is a three set play, which is not exceptional, but there are seven scene changes within the two acts that must be accommodated within 20 to 30 seconds for the action to proceed smoothly.

Fairman's challenge came not only with the three set changes but with the fact that Prospect High has very little wing space — the area off stage where storage space is available.

Fairman has incorporated a wagon for one of the scenes which rolls onto stage on a steel track, folds open and must fit within a quarter inch of position to lash properly to the flats. Set furniture is then put in order and the action begins . . . hopefully within the 20-second limit.

ALTHOUGH THIS "railroad" procedure is not new to professional theater, it is unusual in community theater.

Heading up the back stage crew are the production managers, Carolyn Burkett, Arlington Heights, and Judith Fairman, Elk Grove. Wendy Gruen, Mount Prospect, is stage manager. Lighting and sound will be handled by Ed Herman, Arlington Heights.

The cast for "40 Carats" includes Lynn Jensen, Arlington Heights, as the admiring-to-40 Ann Stanley; John Grayson, also of Arlington Heights, her ever-on-hand former husband, Billy Boylan; Billly Dailey, Des Plaines, Peter Latham, her youthful suitor; and Paul Cary, Palatine, her wealthy real estate client and personal admirer, Eddy Edwards.

HALITA BOTKIN, Arlington Heights, and Kate Clarke, Broadview, appear as Ann's zany mother, Maud Hayes, and teenage daughter, Trina Stanley. Phyl MacCowan of Glenview, Polly Johnson of Palatine, Sonya Leraas of Schaumburg, George Corral of Rolling Meadows and Vince Bonanata of Des Plaines round out the cast.

Reservations may be made at 259-3200 between noon and 6 p.m. "40 Carats," adapted by Jay Allen, will be presented tonight and tomorrow and again next weekend, Oct. 12 and 13, at 8:30 p.m. at Prospect High.

'Oh Dad' cast announced

The cast has been announced for the Schaumburg Festival Theatre production of the unusual farce, "Oh Dad! Poor Dad! Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad."

The play, by Arthur L. Kopit, takes place in Port Royale, in the Caribbean, in a lavish hotel suite. Action centers around an eccentric woman, Madame Rosepettle, who carries her dead husband in a coffin wherever she goes.

In the leading role of Rosepettle is Ginny Boyer of Park Ridge. Harding Stephens of Hoffman Estates stars as her stammering-tongued son, Jonathan, who listens only to Mother. The babysitter across the hall, played by Dana Langner of Elmhurst, unsuccessfully tries to seduce Jonathan, and ends up like "dear old Dad," Bert Simmons of Des Plaines appears as Commodore Roseabove, a suitor of Rosepettle.

The cast includes Chuck Beck of Arlington Heights as the Head Bellboy. Other bellboys are Dan Carrigan of Streamwood and Brian Bandow, Steve Schlosser and John Sorenson, all of Schaumburg. Michael Woulka of Schaumburg is directing the play, assisted by Lorraine Swiatek of Hoffman Estates. The producer is Sandy Reimann of Schaumburg; set designer is Frank Getz of Palatine.

"Oh Dad! Poor Dad!" will be staged at Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane, Schaumburg, Oct. 19, 20, 21 and Oct. 26, 27, 28. Friday and Saturday curtain times are 8:30 p.m.; Sunday performances begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students. Group rates are available. For information and advanced reservations, readers may call 882-1894.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

Not long ago a friend asked me to help her sort out her aunt's belongings which had been stored away since the '30s to determine if there were any valuables, so that she might give some of the things to her relatives who liked family heirlooms.

"I think a lot of it is pure junk," she confessed on the phone, "and I'm having the things in the garage picked up by the junkman in the morning, before you come over."

I asked her to have me over FIRST, before the junkman, because I have often heard stories of people discarding things which were more valuable than the things retained. One sad tale was that of a neighbor who sold her old pine spice cabinet that hung on the wall, complete with the original stenciled labels and white porcelain knobs, for $1, because her husband couldn't stand looking at it. After I told her what it was worth, she couldn't stand looking at HIM!

BUT IT TURNED out, in my friend's case, that she had pretty good intuitive taste, for she had "tested" herself by setting aside the things she thought were better from those which were of little value and had done a good job. She didn't know the names of the things she preferred, but she made few mistakes.

What some people don't realize is that common household articles of the 1920s and '30s are being collected by someone, somewhere, and that an antique dealer would be interested in buying them. True, they aren't worth a fortune, but dollars and dimes add up and contribute to the total assets of an estate.

Old trunks, for instance. These are in great demand, especially the "hump top" or curved ones, but condition is important. Usually the leather handles are missing or broken, and the quilt decoorative paper inside may be missing or in bad condition. But they can be restored. Picture frames, especially ornate ones, have a big market. By the way, it's the frames, not the photos inside, that people are interested in. No one is interested in your great grandpa but the family, unless, of course, he should happen to have been Daniel Boone or Robert E. Lee. Make sure it's a photo, not an old primitive oil painting, because in that case, great grandpa would become valuable. (I always say, this is a funny business.)

CANNING JARS have to be a different color from clear or blue-green, even if dated. Dates are only patent markings which were renewed over and over. But you may check these out with me, if you would empty the pickles out first. My then 7-year-old daughter once discovered a rare amber colored half gallon "Lightning" jar, complete with moldy crab-apples.

Other things to watch for and save are tin bread boxes or tin containers in general, scales, coffee grinders, ice tongs, wooden tools and utensils, rug beaters, choppers, graters, cutters, and iron and old enamel ware in good condition.

If you don't know a reputable dealer to call in to help you, take a look around several antique shows or flea markets. A good show coming up is the Naperville Heritage Society show at the Naperville College Fieldhouse Nov. 2, 3 and 4. Tickets are $1.50 at the door or $1 in advance from Mrs. Robert Oberhelmen, 945 Elizabeth, Naperville, Ill. 60564. This is a large show with a great variety of merchandise.

The Book Stall

AGING IN AMERICA

by BERT KRUGER SMITH
Beacon Press, $8.95

The problems of America's elderly are hidden away, kept mostly out of sight in nursing homes, state hospitals, small apartments and houses that can no longer be afforded.

Bert Kruger Smith's book takes you into some of those places. Though not the comprehensive treatment this subject deserves, "Aging in America" gives a good summary coverage of problems the elderly face in coping with life today. Among the facts:

—Five million older persons live in poverty in the United States, many of them alone, many others congregated into homes.

—By the year 2000, at least 23 million Americans will be 65 or older.

—Life expectancy of Mexican-Americans in this country today is only 57 years.

—In 1970, some 7.2 million families with heads aged 65 or over had incomes of less than $3,033 per year. For black families headed by a person 65 or older, 40.8 per cent lived in poverty.

—Mental factors may play a more important role than physical factors in the process of aging.

"THE EQUATING of retirement with leisure; the concept of aging as a period of inactivity; the outlook of the older years as empty ones, all of these help further a mode of life which demonstrates that 'old' is useless," says the author.

Her book gives heavy emphasis to the emotional troubles of older persons. In some ways, the elderly have adjustment problems similar to those of adolescents. Emotional handicaps that can be held in check during the adult years often break out again when a man or woman nears the end of life.

"The person who has learned to cope with stress, to meet problems and to maintain emotional health in youth develops skills to cope with similar problems in later years," she says. "Aging as a continuum of the coping mechanism can be learned from childhood."

The elderly, moreover, have the social, emotional and physical needs of everyone else. The things that make life meaningful for all of us are the same. Association with others, recognition as an individual, a sense of security, a feeling of usefulness — as they wither away, so does life.

THE NEED FOR ACTIVITY is paramount. Happiness in later years, the author says, can be measured in terms of participation and involvement. Indeed, "stress itself may be vital to the maintenance of health."

The book also takes note of the increasing recognition that humans continue to have sexual needs, often well into their later years.

Fears of ridicule or failure unnecessarily keep many older persons away from sexual relations that could enrich their lives. "The mandatory age of retirement has, in this culture, had its mandatory counterpart in sexual restraint, a taboo which may well have its effect on the lives of thousands of older people," says the author.

Most important is the attitude of the community. A culture that idolizes youth and abhors wrinkles tends to shun the elderly and their problems. In 1970, for instance, Americans spent $5 billion on cosmetics and hair coloring but only $1.86 billion on Old Age Assistance.

AND, AS THE author points out, "if we want to see how a community treats its older people, we have only to look at how it treats its infants, children, poor, mentally ill and others."

The problem is especially acute in suburbia, where the lifestyle is geared to middle-aged families at the height of their earning power. Until communities are planned and administered with all age groups and income levels in mind, the elderly will continue to be out of place in America.

His selection in the oils and acrylics category included Christi Hansen of Mount Prospect, first; Villa Hamm of Winfield, second; Melvi Wheeler of Riverwoods, third; and Betsy Harrigan of Redondo Beach, Calif., honorable mention.

In watercolors, his own specialty, Jones selected Robert Lossman of Mundelein, first; Stan Hansen of Chicago, second; Tom Lynch of Des Plaines, third; Floyd Town of Northbrook and Geno Vitale of Oak Park, honorable mentions.

Mixed media winners included Walter M. Peris of Glenview, first with his photography; Tom Prochaska of Des Plaines, second with his prints; Donita Decker of Chicago, third for her feather-craft; C. L. Sizemore, Highland Ind., honorable mention for collages, and Helen Henry of Des Plaines, honorable mention for ceramics.

"Sound The New Year" is the title of an oil painting by Sandra Z. Welles of Skokie, October exhibitor in the Art Corner at Des Plaines National Bank.

It heralds the High Holy Day season currently being celebrated by those of the Jewish faith.

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Marvin Gaye has turned back to the romantic ballad for his new "Let's Get It On" album (Tamla T329V1) and injected the soul ballad with a new eroticism. The result is an album of fine, soulful listening.

In 1971, Gaye's "What's Going On" album was an unqualified masterpiece and one of the top two albums of that year. The music was a brilliant fusion of soul, jazz, pop and Latin sounds. The message, mostly ecological and social consciousness, was gentle but biting.

The new Gaye album isn't quite as good because it isn't as revolutionary. Yet "Let's Get It On" is a more complex continuation in many ways. There is more jazz making for a smoother sound and the music itself is very intricately interwoven.

This is sophisticated, alive soul at its best. The album projects a feeling of joy from start to finish. The lyrics pulse with life, life that does include sex.

THE BEST EXAMPLE of Gaye's new, risque approach is "You Sure Love To Ball," the album's best song. Gaye's singing is that of a very contented male — happy with his world, his life, his woman. (It should be said that hold as some of the lyrics may seem, none of them are in bad taste.)

The other highlight of the album is the new Gaye single, "Let's Get It On." Multi-track vocals, complex music and smooth delivery — it's an indication of what the rest of the album's about. "Just To Keep You Satisfied" and "Keep Gettin' It On" are two other strong songs.

Gaye's celebration of life and love should be shared. The man continues to be the best soul singer in the business.

"THAT LADY" is the latest in a row of hit singles for the Isley Brothers. "3+3" (T-Neck K23453) is the album containing the single.

The name comes from the addition of three more Isleys to the group — Ronald, Rudolph and Kelly — but the addition may have been a bit too much. The album is less exciting than previous Isley efforts probably because the talent was spread too thin.

For me, Ernie Isley's electric guitar work, in the Hendrix distorted style, is what has made the group a very good one. On "3+3" the problem is Ernie just doesn't get enough chance to take off on "wow" guitar riffs.

When Ernie is "let go," as on "That Lady" and Seals and Crofts' "Summer Breeze," the results make the album worth keeping. But the sorry attempt at the Doobie Brothers' "Listen To The Music" gives the opposite impression.

"That Lady" is the best of the five original Isley tunes, although "You Walk Your Way" and "What It Comes Down To" are better than average too. Among the other songs, they do James Taylor's "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight" and Jonathan Edwards' "Sunshine (Go Away Today)."

AN EVEN GREATER disappointment, however, is "Deliver the Word," the new War album (United Artists UA-LA128F). Most of the songs are too drawn out or too disjointed. Furthermore, on some cuts, the vocals actually have to be shouted to be heard.

"Gypsy Man" has been pulled from the album for the group's latest single and it's pretty good. Unfortunately, the album version is about twice as long, with long instrumental breaks, and lacks the single's punch. The title song is worth at least one listen.

The Staple Singers have come up with a good, solid album in "Be What You Are" (Stax ST3015). The group's sound is distinctive with its lead singer's punctuated delivery and the Memphis musicians (none credited on the album).

The songs, some originals, are full of love, brotherhood, truthfulness, friendship and other virtues. The album's a nice pick-me-up.

Hallmark's winter concert will be performed Jan. 6.

A Halloween Hag

Halloween
Halloween

To make this witch you'll need construction paper, scissors, paste, crayons and black thread. Fold a large square of black construction paper in half diagonally. Put the folded edge of the triangle toward you. Fold one cut edge of the triangle down along the folded edge (figure A). Turn the paper over. Fold the cut edge of the triangle down along the folded edge, as on the other side. This is the witch's body.

Cut two circles of light-colored construction paper. Paste them together over the most pointed end of the witch's body. Color her face. Add a black paper hat and long stringy black paper hair.

You can hang up this Halloween hag by tying a long black thread through a tiny hole poked in her hat.

Actor's Workshop starts new season

Des Plaines Theatre Guild's highly successful Actor's Workshop will start a new season Wednesday. Sessions will be held weekly on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in Guild Playhouse, 620 Leo St. (U.S. 45), in series of 10 weeks each.

Coordinating the 1973-74 workshops is Steve Strong of Chicago, DPTG board member, director and actor in professional and community theater.

Participants will have opportunity to become involved in a psycho-drama to be presented by DPTG workshopers for the Maine Township Adult Evening School-Forest Hospital lecture series at Maine South high school later in the season.

Workshop sessions are open to guild members at a fee of $15 for each ten-week session or $2 for each workshop meeting attended. DPTG memberships, which offer other advantages such as discount on play tickets, voting privileges, etc., are $6 for individuals or $10 for couples.

For further information about membership activities and/or the Actor's Workshop is available from Betty Kandlbinder, membership chairman, 358-2354, or Guild Playhouse boxoffice, 296-1211, between noon and 8 p.m.

Acting classes for children (first grade through high school) and opportunities to participate in live theatre productions are offered through DPTG Children's Theatre Tuesday nights at the playhouse. Persons interested may contact the box-office number, or Kathy Hugo, Children's Theatre chairman, 724-4159, after 5 p.m.

'South Pacific' final curtain

The month-long run of "South Pacific" at Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines will end with a final performance of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical tomorrow evening.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., and tickets may be reserved by calling the box office, 296-1211, between noon and 8 p.m.

Seven "enchanted evenings" with the ever-popular "South Pacific" story have already played to packed houses at the Playhouse, 620 Leo St., Des Plaines.

Following Saturday's final curtain, the set for "South Pacific" will be struck on Sunday to make way for the guild's second production of its 24th season, "40 Carats," now in rehearsal. Performance dates are Nov. 16, 17, 23, 24, Dec. 1 and 8.

Season subscriptions for the 1973-74 schedule may still be purchased at a savings of $5 over the single admission price for five shows.

A sixth play, "Butterflies Are Free," will be produced in mid-December as a bonus to theatergoers in the area. DPTG will be the first community theater in Chicago area to stage this popular comedy. Dates are Dec. 13, 14, 15 and 16.

Guild Players presenting '40 Carats' at Vogeley Barn

'40 Carats' will be staged by the Guild Players of Hoffman Estates two weeks this month, Oct. 12 and 13 and the 19th and 20th, at the Vogeley Barn, 150 W. Higgins Road.

Bill Schumacher is directing the comedy which stars Marian Woesche of Bartlett as Ann Stanley, the 40-year-old real estate businesswoman who finds romance on a holiday in Greece. Bill Lindgren, a Harper College student from Arlington Heights, plays her young lover, Peter Latham.

Ken Bouteille of Hoffman Estates will appear as Ann's ex-husband, Billy Boylan, who remains on the scene to check on family happenings, and Charles Levy of Hoffman will play Eddy Edwards, a 45-year-old suitor.

Grandma Maud Hayes, who delights in wearing her granddaughter's clothes, will be portrayed by Jan Bouteille, also of Hoffman Estates. Rita De Marco, Harper student who resides in Schaumburg, plays the granddaughter, Ann Stanley's 17-year-old daughter, Trina.

PLAYING PETER's parents, who make a strong pitch to discourage his romance with Ann, are Iris Tompkins, Lombard, and Bob Moriarty, Hoffman Estates.

The cast also includes Irene Kaufmann, Hoffman Estates, Mrs. Margolin, Ann's secretary; Louise Parenti, Roselle, Mrs. Adams, a client; and Bill Page, Arlington Heights, another Harper student, as Pat, young golf partner of Peter's mother.

Louise Parenti, 529-9262, may be called for further information or ticket reservations.

Masque-Staff sets 'Carats' rehearsals

Rehearsal schedules have been issued and set construction programmed for the forthcoming Masque and Staff production of the comedy, "40 Carats." Play dates are Oct. 26 and 27 and Nov. 2 and 3.

The first play of the season for the Elk Grove Village-based theater group is to be given at Dempster Junior High in Mount Prospect. Tickets may be reserved by calling 437-5137.

A general membership meeting is scheduled Thursday evening at Mr. Duke's Villa di Domenico on Irving Park Road in Wood Dale. The dinner meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. Reservations are required and may be made at 437-0679.

Morrison to celebrate 60th wedding anniversary

Long-time Des Plaines residents William and Jean Morrison, 1778 Webster Lane, will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m. at an open house at the First United Methodist Church, Graceland and Prairie, Des Plaines.

The Morrises moved to their present address in Des Plaines 38 years ago when there were only three houses in that area and a cornfield in the back. "At that time we had an acre of ground," said Mrs. Morrison. Today they have a corner.

William is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, who also lived in Des Plaines for a time. He was born in Chicago July 15, 1893. Jean is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Driver and was born Oct. 6, 1894.

THE COUPLE MET while working for Western Union and were married on Oct. 6, 1913, Jean's birthday. Often called "Mr. NCHA" (National Champions and Hikers of America), William was the founder of that organization in Illinois. Still active, he and Jean recently returned from a camping trip. He also started the Des Plaines camera and slide club.

Following a job at O'Hare Field William opened Morrison's Food Shop on Center Street, Des Plaines. He retired 15 years ago. Mrs. Morrison said her husband used to bake over 300 loaves of bread a week in those days.

The couple has six children. They are Mrs. George Hutchinson, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. William Cline, Camdenton, Mo.; Mrs. George Marinek, Wheeling; Mrs. Ray Sisi, Arlington Heights; William T. Jr., Winfield, Ill.; and James A. (Lefty), Des Plaines. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison have 16 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

BPW district meeting at Navarone Oct. 10

Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will hold its annual District III fall meeting next Wednesday at the Navarone Steak House, Elk Grove Village. Cocktails will be served at 6:15 p.m. and dinner at 7:15 p.m.

Representing the federation will be Alna Holland, state young careerist chairman, who will speak on establishing a successful program for attracting young high school and college women for membership in the federation. A musical program will follow.

ERA coordinator

Phoebe Sulca, 906 Des Plaines Ave., Des Plaines, has been named district coordinator for the 5th Legislative District by ERA Central, the statewide education organization working to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois.

The Equal Rights Amendment has been ratified by 30 states since it was passed by Congress in 1972. Ratification by another eight states is required by 1979 for the amendment to become law.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My problem is how to take care of a Danish teakwood table. It's a rich, reddish-brown color. I was told to use linseed oil and couldn't extract another bit of information from the saleslady. Can I use my regular furniture polish on it, too — and where does one get linseed oil? — Mrs. N. L.

What the saleswoman should have said was boiled linseed oil. It comes this way from the factory — you don't boil it yourself. You shouldn't use any wax on this type of table. Leave it alone the first year, just dusting. Then wash the table with either the mild white or castile soap, carefully rinse and dry. After this, apply the boiled linseed oil with a soft cloth and wipe off with another soft cloth, working with the grain. Do not touch for 24 hours. This treatment should be done only once a year as each time the wood will get a hair-shade darker. Boiled linseed oil can be obtained at hardware or paint stores.

Dear Dorothy: When I freeze peaches and apricots, I use one small can of frozen lemonade, diluted. Just pour enough to coat the fruit or it will get too sloppy. When defrosted, the peaches look as fresh as the day they were cut, no matter how long in the freezer and the lemonade does not detract from or change the flavor. — Mrs. T. M.

Good hint. If I were freezing fruit that needed ascorbic acid to keep it from darkening, I would never have thought of this add-on. I'm certain lemonade has all the ascorbic acid necessary.

Dear Dorothy: I notice all the tedious ways suggested to remove tar and thought I'd mention the simple one I've used for years: Moisten the stain with cold water and rub naphtha soap into the stain. Then the fabric is rubbed between the hands until the tar is loosened. Rinsed with cold water and laundered, the stain is no more. — Angela Simon

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 220, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Kemmerly Real Estate

The staff at Kemmerly Real Estate is proud of the phenomenal growth of this company from a staff of three at its inception 12 years ago to over 70 salespeople — a large percentage of whom are brokers.

The number of sales associates, however, is far less important than the quality of personnel, and "we are proud to have so many brokers who are devoted to serving the public and who have a sincere desire to help the customer have a satisfying experience," said Jack Kemmerly, president.

Kemmerly's staff have been rewarded in 1972 and thus far in 1973 for their hard work by selling more homes and listing more homes in the MAP Multiple Listing Service than any other firm in MAP — many of the homes sold through cooperation with MAP members.*

Throughout the years of service, Kemmerly has instituted many firsts to better serve the public. In 1961, when the first office was opened in Palatine, the hours were from 9 to 9, seven days a week. Kemmerly had the first office in MAP to serve Schaumburg, thus opening that area up to fellow brokers and to Chicago-area lending institutions.

As a service to buyers coming into the area, the firm has a display board at the Holiday Inn featuring homes for sale and a "Hot Line" direct to the Kemmerly offices to put the buyer in immediate contact with the sales staff.

Kemmerly clients and sales associates are very grateful for the wide and varied advertising program. Extensive advertising is done in the Tribune, the Herald, Homes magazine, Countryside Green, Topics, WGN and WBBM radio as well as selected local periodicals, especially the firm's own "Showcase of Fine Homes," a magazine which is mailed to over 75,000 local homes and apartments.

Weekly ads of the firm's listings appear in the Kansas City Star inasmuch as this area has many transferred personnel from Kansas City who can call collect to Kemmerly offices to learn of the real estate picture here. Consistent advertising in the "Community Guide," "Locator Magazine," and the "In Chicago" convention paper keeps the firm's name before the public's eye.

From the beginning, the Kemmerly organization has been interested in supporting community projects. At present, Kemmerly Real Estate sponsors 15 bowling teams, 15 Little League teams and six football teams in the areas it serves. This year the firm sponsored the Arlington Heights American Legion State Championship ball team.

Kemmerly Real Estate had committed to them early this year millions of dollars in mortgage funds by large mortgage houses in the metropolitan area as a shield against a possible mortgage money squeeze which has taken place generally throughout the United States. Mortgages are still available to good buyers at competitive rates, Kemmerly said, some with as little as ten per cent down and 30-year financing, especially through FHA and VA sources which Kemmerly has.

There is much cooperation and interplay among the eight offices located throughout the northwest suburbs. "The seller is thus provided with the best exposure for his home and the buyer with a salesperson with up-to-date information and available facilities in many areas," Kemmerly noted. "It is like having a multiple listing service within a multiple listing service."

Dan Briel, left, manager of the Hanover Park office, and Jack Miller, manager of the Hoffman Estates office, learn the latest housing information from Kemmerly's hot line in the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

TOPPING-OUT this month is predicted for The Churchill, 60-unit condominium in downtown Glen Ellyn. Already 20 per cent sold, well before model apartment completion, The Churchill at 515 N. Main St. is within two blocks of Chicago & North Western station and main business district shopping. Builder Mel Collins has arranged two-way financing for purchasers (condo purchase and sale of old home) through Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Glen Ellyn luxury condos report 81 per cent sales

Only six of 31 luxury condominium apartments remain at Scope Development Corporation's Riviera, 40 S. Main St., Glen Ellyn. That is the report of builder Mel Collins, who also notes 20 per cent pre-completion sales at The Churchill in Glen Ellyn's downtown district.

Remaining two- and three-bedroom Riviera units range from $40,500 to $49,900. The twos contain 1,450 square feet with two bathrooms and the threes, 1,900 square feet and 2½ baths. The threes measure 80 feet in overall length. The Churchill has experienced more than a dozen sales to date. Sixty one-, two- and three-bedroom condos will range from $33,295 to $51,495. A furnished model apartment will be ready in late October.

At 515 N. Main St., The Churchill is only two blocks from Glen Ellyn's downtown shops and Chicago and North Western's commuter station. It is a similar distance from Glenbard West High School and Lake Ellyn.

More than $30,000 in landscaping has been planned for the site by Collins and co-developer Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association Service Corporation.

The $147-million Berwyn financial institution has also assured two-way financing for The Churchill and Riviera buyers and the purchasers of properties they intend to sell.

Lincoln's president Frank J. Kinat has indicated 80 per cent loans based upon The Churchill and Riviera selling prices. Amount of mortgage granted to purchasers of secondary properties will depend upon age of building and ability to repay.

What is a mortgage? It consists of two legal documents, signed by the borrower. The first pledges the property being bought as security for borrowed funds. The second part is the bond or note, which is your promise as a borrower to repay borrowed funds in the prescribed period of time and at the prescribed rate of interest. Therefore, when you sign a mortgage, you have both pledged your property as security, and promised to repay the amount borrowed.

OPEN FIREPLACE of the three-bedroom Acadia model at Atrium-Elmhurst serves both the formal dining room in background and the 14 foot by 22 foot 3 inch living room. Furnishings include a custom made paisley print on natural linen in deep blue and rust. Paper art work by Krimp Art of Evanston rests on an oval coffee table of English Chippendale. Near the fireplace are a wing chair in beige and white English flame stitch and a pull-up cane chair in dark brown. A wood carving of natural leaves, typical of French wood carvings, hangs over the fireplace. At right is an antique reproduction of a clock and shelving units. Stairway beyond entry foyer, right, leads to upper level containing master bedroom suite with private den and two other bedrooms.

14-wide mobile homes may now be moved

The recent signing of Illinois House Bill 1052 gave authorization to transport 14-wide mobile homes through the state.

"The Illinois Mobile Home Association played a large role in the passing of this legislation. The mobile home economy in Illinois will increase dramatically, which means more jobs in the state," said Joel Gooch, chairman of the state legislative committee for Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association.

The new law was written by the Illinois Department of Transportation and contains all the rules and regulations governing the shipment of 14-wides. After Oct. 1, no homes larger than 14 feet by 85 feet may be transported through the state.

Spring Mill highlights landscaping

Maples, locusts, lindens and other shade trees, Austrian pines and Colorado green spruce and a variety of ornamental trees and shrubs soon will grace what earlier in the year was a weed-grown and eroded hillside in Hoffman Estates.

The landscaped green space will surround residents of Spring Mill, planned community of townhomes now under construction just south of Higgins Road (Rte. 72), about two blocks west of Roseville Road.

"Extensive landscaping of the 80 per cent of the 20-acre site that won't be covered by housing conforms to our policy of enhancing the environment in every development," said Ned Simon, president of The Simon-R-G Group, Inc., Spring Mill developers.

With 16 tree-planted lawns will separate clusters of two- and three-bedroom townhomes, which are grouped around landscaped "driving courts." These courts, giving access to surrounding townhomes' attached garages, also provide guest parking areas.

"But while we have planned convenient access for the automobile, living areas in the two-story and split-level homes are oriented to green spaces, not asphalt," Simon pointed out.

SPRING MILL'S 20-acre site is bounded by Grand Canyon Parkway on the east, Bode Road on the south and Spring Mill Drive — a new street built by the developers on the west boundary of the property. It will be dedicated to the village to connect Bode and Higgins Roads. The north boundary will be defined by a tall perimeter planting of Zabelle himeyauckie, to screen the community from commercial development along Higgins Road.

Graceful weeping willow, Marshall seedless ash and American Linden will surround a man-made lake in the southern portion of the community. They will be interspersed with Russian olive, hawthorn, a variety of flowering crabapples and mass plantings of redtwig dogwood.

Landscaping of the driving court serving the first for-sale townhomes — scheduled for occupancy in November — will be typical of the eight clusters that eventually will provide 200 townhomes.

Four large improved silver maple trees will be planted at the corners of the raised, lawn-sodded core of the one-third-acre court, at the center of which will be a cluster of six- to ten-foot-tall Austrian pines.

FROM THE opposite sides of their homes, residents will look into green spaces planted with honey locust, ash, weeping maple, Colorado spruce, Greenspire linden and such ornamentals as Amur maple, Russian olive, Washington hawthorn and several kinds of flowering crabapple.

Spring Mill's clubhouse and swimming pool will be surrounded by locust, spruce, ash, hawthorn and mass-planted shrubbery.

The Franz Lipp-Marvin Wehler Partnership, of Winfield, landscape architect, has designed the environment to blend with the earth tones of brick and vertical aluminum siding in the townhomes, that provide up to 1,635 square feet of living space. They are priced from $38,950 to $46,950.

Sales office is open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., daily and Sunday, and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays. Entry is south from Higgins Road via Spring Mill Drive.

Veterans' News

Q — I am a veteran living in a state which has no burial space left in its national cemetery. Will the Veterans Administration pay anything toward the cost of a burial plot in a private cemetery?

A — Yes, Public Law 93-43 (June 18, '73) allows VA, starting Aug. 1, to pay up to $160 in plot and interment costs of veterans who die on or after that date, and are not buried in a national cemetery.

Q — The Veterans Administration turned down my disability claim, and I'd like to contest the decision. How can I do this?

A — You may appeal it to the VA Board of Veterans Appeals, appearing in person, or having someone or an organization represent you.

Kennedy Bros break ground at 'Hidden Creek'

Kennedy Brothers have broken ground for their fourth planned unit development in two years on a site lo-

for an attached garage between units with very little common wall space. "It is as close to a single-family home as possible," said Bill Kennedy. "The 'dust' units, with only two homes per structure, will have no common wall - just garages side-by-side between the townhomes."

THE RUSTIC contemporary architecture also permits varying levels within the townhomes featuring two-story living rooms, lofts, studio ceilings, and other dramatic structural designs.

The recreation complex in the first phase will feature two small lakes with boating and a clubhouse overlooking one lake. Clubhouse facilities include a lounge with fireplace and kitchen, teen room, men's and women's dressing rooms, and offices. Outdoors there will be an Olympic-size swimming pool and tennis facilities. This complex will be for the use of all townhome (cluster) residents. Subsequent phases of construction will include two additional recreation complexes for condominium and garden apartment residents.

cated at Ill. Rte. 63 and Dundee Road. Plans for the development were announced by Bill Kennedy, vice president of the building firm.

To be called "The Groves of Hidden Creek," the project is a joint venture for Kennedy Brothers with Edelberg-Mayer & Associates, commercial developers in Chicago, who will be responsible for the leasing and management of the commercial section.

There will be four "units" of construction, with plans for townhomes, garden apartments, and several types of condominiums—including mid-rise structures—as well as recreational and commercial facilities.

The first residential unit will comprise 308 townhomes and recreational facilities. The two-, three-, and four-bedroom townhomes will be available in ranch, two-story, and Cape Cod designs. The unique architecture allows

Plans for the commercial area include a variety of service stores and specialty shops. It is expected to serve residents of The Groves of Hidden Creek as well as those of neighboring areas.

Hidden Creek is valued at $50 million. A preview center has been established on the property, on Dundee Road (Rt. 68) just 1/2 mile west of Rt. 63 near Palatine, to provide sales information. It is expected that furnished model townhomes will go on display in early spring with initial occupancy about one month later.

THE R. J. FRISBY Manufacturing Co. is awaiting completion of its new plant at 1500 Chase Ave., Elk Grove Village.

The new facility is of brick and masonry construction, encompassing 100,000 square feet, and accommodating up to 300 employees. Founded in 1945 by Robert J. Frisby, the company has grown from a two machine operation in Chicago to a large, well equipped factory manufacturing precision components and parts for a variety of machines, vehicles and appliances.

Illinois Bell building wins design award

Illinois Bell's new regional toll switching center in Northbrook recently won top honors for architectural excellence by the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. The award was presented at special ceremonies at the Art Institute of Chicago.

The award-winning structure is located at 2306 Sanders Rd., adjacent to the Tri-State Tollway. It was singled out for the AIA Honor Award from among 110 entries designed by Chicago architects.

The citation which accompanied the award read: "The Illinois Bell Telephone Company has established a tradition in recent years for building fine buildings in the Midwest. This clean lined but obviously functional building is a credit to its owners and their architects. It stands proudly in the tradition of excellence for which Chicago is noted throughout the world."

The three-story structure, which was designed by the architectural firm of Holabird and Root, uses laminated glass panels over a structural steel and concrete frame.

When the switching center becomes operational in April, 1974, it will provide additional interoffice trunking for Chicago metropolitan communities and give callers faster and more direct access to the nationwide long distance network.

Randville condo in Palatine conducts survey

Morris Wrobel, president of Mor-Well Builders, recently announced the results of an informal survey of home buyers at Randville, the condominium community currently being developed on the border of Palatine in an unincorporated area of Cook County.

Phase I of the $7 million complex consists of two 24-unit two-story buildings and two 48-unit three-story buildings with heated garage. The one-, two- and three-bedroom condominiums are priced from $24,800 to $40,000 respectively. When completed, Randville will comprise approximately 600 residences.

ACCORDING to Nancy Silberman, sales representative at Randville who compiled the survey, most of the Randville condominiums have been purchased so far by married couples, ranging from the twenties to retirement age. However, many singles — men and women alike — also have invested in Randville because "they're tired of renting," she said. "They just want to own their own home."

The survey shows an equal number of condominium buyers that formerly owned their own homes and those that rented apartments. About one-third of the residents came from Chicago, while the balance came from suburbs within a 15-mile radius of Randville.

EACH CONDOMINIUM has an extra large living room, dining room and spacious kitchen with a breakfast area. There is an abundance of closet space for linens and storage throughout every residence, including an additional storage room on each floor with individual lockers for each condominium.

The survey also reveals that buyers appreciated having such a large variety of condominium floorplans available for their selection.

Each condominium has a private patio or balcony with insulated sliding glass doors off of the living room.

Each residence is equipped with a dishwasher, self-cleaning, gas range with eye-level double oven; flip-top exhaust hood; double-door refrigerator-freezer with automatic ice-maker; double-bowl stainless steel sinks with garbage disposal; simulated leather or suede countertops; and custom cabinets.

The survey also shows that buyers find the contemporary architectural design of the buildings most appealing. Residents like the solid masonry construction; the drive-in underground heated garage (available on an optional basis along with outdoor parking facilities) and the landscaping of the community.

The clubhouse, which is available for the use of residents, features a billiard room, card room, party rooms complete with fireplaces and kitchen facilities for entertaining, and dressing rooms. There is a large outdoor swimming pool with a sundeck. Also, there are bicycle trails and walkways throughout the community.

OTHER FEATURES of Randville are the security intercom system, wall-to-wall carpeting available in a wide choice of colors and styles, and individually controlled heating and air conditioning.

Randville is located on Rand Road, one-half mile south of Dundee Road. It is close to schools and churches of all denominations, forest preserves, golf courses and shopping centers, including Woodfield Mall and Randhurst. The Chicago & North Western Ry. is convenient for commuting to Chicago's Loop from Palatine.

Model condominiums are open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. including weekends.

I'm Ben Pekin.
My company built Baybrook Park Condominiums. When people tell me they love what they see here, I tell them they should love what they don't see.

There's nothing wrong with people getting excited about extra large living and dining rooms, or 47 foot balconies, or big closets, or kitchens with a window. Those are the kinds of amenities that have made Baybrook Park Condominiums sell so well. I don't have to point them out to anybody. They speak for themselves.

But there are other things to look for when you're buying a condominium home. Things that will affect your pleasure and ease of maintenance while you live there, and your resale price when you move.

Consider my checklist below.
Construction: We built Baybrook Park Condominiums with concrete and steel construction throughout. Which may not mean anything to you until you talk to your insurance broker and find out it means lower fire insurance rates.

We build with the finest materials... or we don't build. Makes for a costlier building. And a more valuable one, too. Both for us to sell you, and for you to sell to someone else.

Developer invites you to get back to nature

Return to nature. Spend an afternoon with the family identifying native trees, plants, shrubs, and other flora, walking a nature trail arranged by the Kane County Environmental Control Department.

"Walk The Windings" Oct. 13 or 14 from 1 to 5 p.m. enjoying the countryside beauty of the Fox River Valley, as it still exists. And it's all free.

"The nature walk is a significant and enriching educational event for the entire family, affording everyone (mom, dad, and children, young and old) an opportunity to communicate with nature," said Dick Young, director of the Kane County Environmental Control Department in Geneva.

"There's an immeasurable ecological value with a labyrinth of horticultural plantings enhancing the path," Young said. Varieties of native and unique species amidst woodlands, ravines, and open meadows highlight the trail.

THOSE WHO come out to walk the land will see clusters of hawthorne, ironwood, black cherry, walnut, white ash, and maple growing along the trail, Young said. Mingled here with the shrubbery are tall matured red and white oaks, some standing since the Indians occupied the land over 300 years ago, added Young.

"The Windings will be ablaze with dramatic autumn colors . . . yellow and red leaves that you don't see in the city. It'll be a tremendous learning experience, children won't soon forget. The walk might be one of their first chances to experience nature . . . rub elbows with nature . . . as it really is. For adults, the walk will be spiritually refreshing and emotionally pleasing," said Young.

In the interest of the Fox River Valley communities, The Brannigan Organization seeks to provide an educational event to promote a better awareness of the Fox River Valley's natural beauty and country atmosphere where families can spend an afternoon together, said Jon Hull, project director of The Windings of Person Creek. Brannigan has preserved 37 acres of woods-open "greenways" in a mini-arboretum designed to be enjoyed by everyone, Hull added.

"There'll be plenty of flora to identify along the nature trail. Families could spend hours studying plants, bird watching, or just hiking," Young said. With less and less open public space available, Young feels it's extremely important that private groups become involved in land preservation.

"Northern Illinois is one of the most 'park-starved' regions in the state. And Illinois is one of the worst states in providing adequate open space for its citizens," said Young. Over 70 per cent of Illinois' open space is situated in the nine southernmost counties, pointed out Young. "Families from our area can't really enjoy nature, without having to drive half-a-day. But now here it is . . . right in their back yard."

"MAN HAS always sought nature for spiritual refreshment. Unwinding with nature is a valuable approach to creating a better environment . . . a more relaxed society. Experiencing nature in one of the best ways for man to be at peace with himself and learn to appreciate life more," said the director of the Kane County Environmental Control Department.

Isolated from the sounds and disturbances of the city "families will experience a complete metamorphosis from the frenzied weekday pace."

The nature walk has been designed to preserve the natural country amenities of the Valley, allowing families to spend a relaxing afternoon with nature, Young said.

To "Walk The Windings" drive west on Route 64 (North Avenue) through St. Charles or Route 38 (Roosevelt Road) through Geneva to Route 47. Take Route 47 one-half mile north of Route 64 to Empire Road. Turn right at Empire Road to The Windings of Person Creek.

Study says rural land boom on way

"Give me land — lots of land" is the plaintive cry of many of the 120 million Americans who now live in 248 urban areas.

"Although more than one out of four of these people actually prefer city living, seven out of 10 consider small towns and rural areas as the ideal place for their homes — present and future," according to a recent study issued by GSI, Inc.

GSI is the financial services division of Esmark, Inc., Chicago-based diversified international industrial complex.

GSI, Inc. is one of Esmark's fastest expanding and most profitable areas of diversification. Its increasing operations in real estate are conducted by National Property Development Company. Through its other subsidiaries, it provides insurance coverages of all types, engineering, and investment and computer services.

"MORE AND more, the open spaces are attracting the urbanized American who yearns for going back where it all began — back into the quiet country. The sparkle and lure of big cities is becoming somewhat tarnished — slowly but surely giving way to the green grass and blue skies of rural America," the report notes.

Reporting that 58 per cent of the nation's population are living on less than one per cent of the land area, GSI notes "there is small wonder they want to get away from it all."

The great urbanized areas consist of a central city of at least 50,000 population — plus surrounding built-up territory. The land area amounts to less than 1 per cent of the 3.8 million square miles in the United States.

Total population within this land amounts to 118.9 million in the 248 central cities — with the remainder on the fringes.

REAL ESTATE and construction industries — and the financial services organizations who are involved in real estate — are striving to meet the demands for adequate building in the areas where people want to live.

The population density for all urbanized areas is about 3,376 persons per square mile, compared to a density of 24 persons per square mile outside those areas and the real estate and construction industries are building on this undeveloped land.

"Don't be surprised on your next drive out into the country to see giant cranes and rigs looming over the trees," the report concludes.

Baird & Warner dollar volume up

Baird & Warner Inc., diversified Chicago-area real estate company, reported an increase in dollar volume for August while the number of units sold dipped slightly below year-ago levels.

Dollar volume climbed $1,035,610 or 5.8 per cent for the month, to $18,765,726 from $17,730,016 last year. The number of properties sold in August was 322 compared with 327 in the same month last year.

Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, said "the results produced in August by our 30 offices were surprisingly strong in the face of the credit crunch and tight mortgage situation which has existed since early July."

The residential division racked up 297 property sales in August valued at $15,243,712.

Mace Cole, vice president and sales manager, commercial, investment, and industrial division, reported the sale of 25 properties in August and a dollar volume of $3,521,814.

Cumulative results for the first eight months of the year show the company ahead of their record year in 1973 in both categories. The number of sales participations is up 5.46 per cent, from 2,712 units to 2,880. Dollar volume is up 21.5 per cent, from $137,788,536 to $167,446,174.

Luxury items are standard in Villas Salceda homes

One concept of adult condominium living is now on view at Villas Salceda, a community of two and three-bedroom homes by Red Seal Homes, Inc. in Northbrook.

When completed, it is planned to contain 225 luxury homes on a 50-acre tract on Willow Road just west of Shermer Avenue in Northbrook and across from the Red Seal Homes' successful La Salceda community.

The El Matador, El Emperador and El Conquistador home models are all built around a private courtyard-patio area, with patio doors and windows of each home opening into the courtyard.

Entrance walks and courtyard patios throughout the new community are constructed of Bomanite cobblestone.

Every home is constructed along Spanish-Mediterranean architectural lines. Homes range from 1,775 to 2,350 square feet of living area, plus oversized two-car garage and large basement.

PRICES OF homes range from $68,000 to $86,500. Items included in the price are: an automatic garage door opener for the two-car garage attached to each home; complete exterior landscaping; seven-foot high courtyard wall with steel door controlled by key or electric release; handsome steel double front door with decorative facing and Spanish-designed door hardware; wood-framed insulated glass patio doors and windows; and a security system which covers every home opening — even attic trap doors.

Also included with each Villas Salceda home are oak-patterned interior doors; textured acoustical ceilings; gas-log equipped fireplaces in the informal activities room; custom dishwasher and other kitchen appliances; humidifier with humidistat; complete air conditioning; quality wood-paneling in the informal activities room; wall-to-wall, high-pile shag carpeting; two full baths; decorator vanities and medicine cabinets; and a selection of quality vinyl floor coverings, ceramic tile and Formica counter tops. Each house is equipped with a gas barbecue grill.

Kitchens in Villas Salceda homes feature skylights or luminous ceilings, perimeter accent lighting, roomy breakfast area, disposal, double-bowl castiron sink, custom furniture WoodMode hand-rubbed oak or maple cabinetry and self-cleaning eye-level double oven with vented exhaust system.

VILLAS SALCEDA homes are being built in small groupings on private entrance streets. Off-street parking is provided for visiting guests.

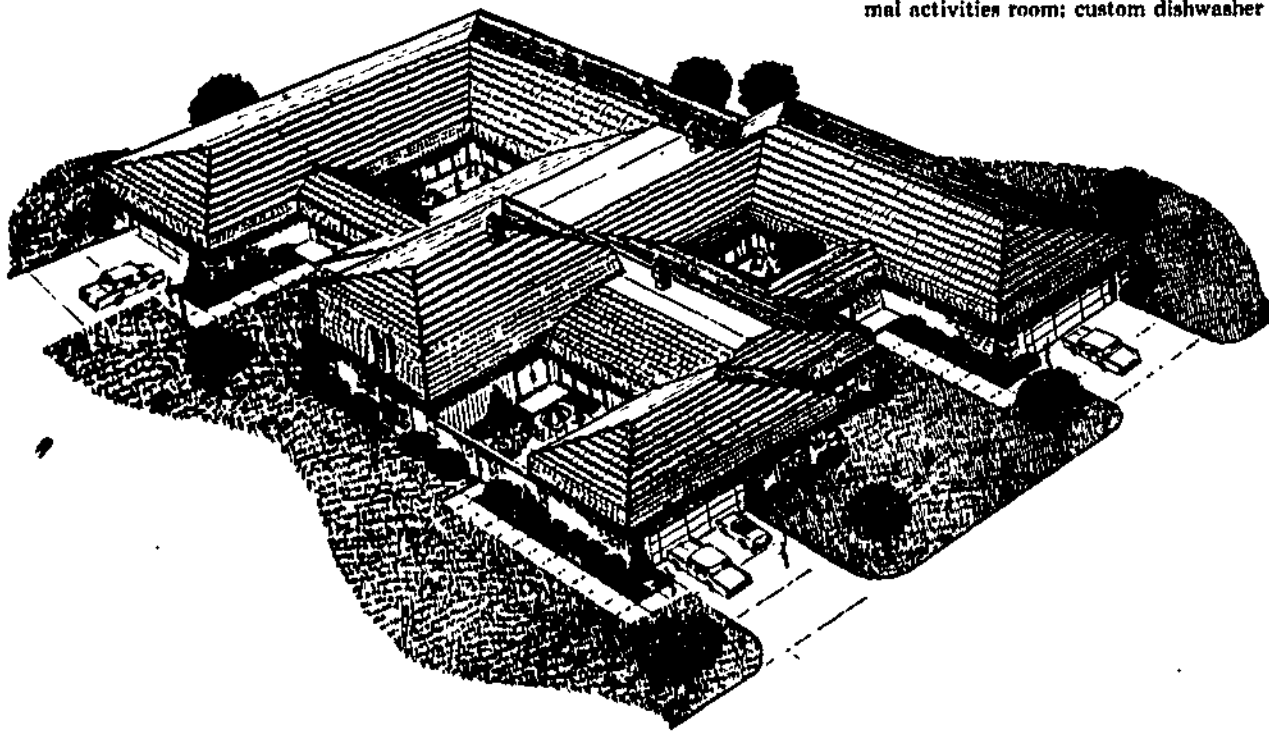

Each home has a large basement for storage, recreational or hobby use, and an 18-foot wide driveway including concrete ribbons on each side of the asphalt paving. Each driveway is lighted with a gas postlight which also holds the street numbers for each home.

Lawn and landscape maintenance, snow removal and exterior building maintenance is taken care of for home owners by professional management.

The first phase of Villas Salceda consists of 63 homes.

The El Matador, El Emperador and El Conquistador models are open daily from 10:00 a.m. to dark.

Optional membership in a planned adjacent recreational center will be available to Villas Salceda owners, allowing them to use tennis courts, swimming pools and the recreational building.

LUXURY VILLAS Salceda homes are being constructed (center foreground) and two 2-bedroom El Conquistador in small groupings, such as above, on private entrance streets within the new adult community. This grouping is made up of a three-bedroom, two-story El Matador home Red Seal Homes' successful La Salceda community.

Even world champs can commit crucial blunders

Chess is a great leveler. Class, race, age and even sex may recede into relative insignificance as two persons engage over the chessboard. Yet the juxtaposition of opposites sometimes leads to the dramatization of psychological quirks as "background" differences assume central importance.

For example, the impoverished chess expert will "hustle" an eager and more affluent "patzer." The expert will not only pick up a wager or two but will take pleasure in demonstrating a superiority over his higher status adversary who has wandered into his domain.

The "patzer" on the other hand, though he may love money, will occasionally win a game and has many near-misses that spur him on masochistically to new encounters with his nemesis.

The person who is hustled has a rare experience in his first hand knowledge of a usually unapproachable chess talent. His familiarity teaches him or deludes him to think that he too would be a stone's throw from greatness if he were to make the effort.

THOSE NOT given to such extravagant pleasures may enjoy a milder form of conceit, i.e., second-guessing world champions. Here are four positions in which a famous champion "blunders." Try your luck at seeing what they missed.

(Diagram 1)
In 1886, the great Steinitz, playing Zukertort, made the move 1) Nxb7?? thinking the black queen pawn was pinned. What is black's reply? Answer: 1... Pxb7, which simply wins a piece. For if 2. QxQ... RxR mate follows. While 2. RxR allows Nxb7 defending the black queen.

(Diagram 2)
In 1958, Botvinnik, playing Smyslov played 1... K-Q3? After white's 2. R-N6 check, black played 7... K-B4. He intends, now that his king is safe from checks by the rook, to push his pawns. But he had to resign after Smyslov's next move. What is it? Answer: 3. K-Q3, threatening 4. P-N4 and checkmate.

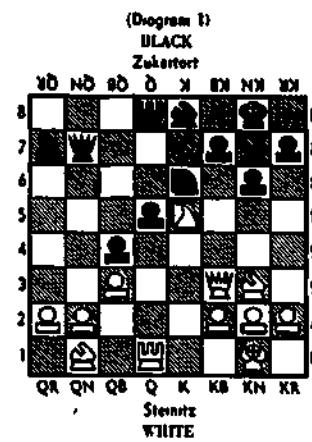

(Diagram 3)
In this position from the 1959 Candidates Tournament, the young Fischer could have won a pawn. How? Answer: 1. Q-R5. Black's... K-N1 does not work. Why? Answer: QxN1 followed by a knight fork.

(Diagram 4)
Perhaps the worst blunder of all is by Taimanov against Fischer in 1971. Here Taimanov played 1) RxP??? to the astonishment of all. What's Fischer's reply? Answer: Q-Q5 check (double attack). Taimanov resigned as he shamefacedly realized that Fischer would meet... R-B2 with 2. R-R8 check which wins the rook.

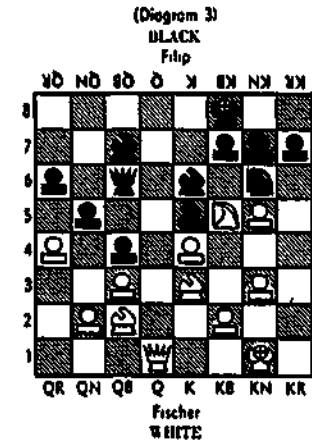

LYMANISM

If it is true as Fischer has said, that with proper training he should be able to beat the Chinese at ping pong because of his longer arms, then it is most likely also true that sitting closer to the board, they should win over him at chess.

Why is 1) RxP a horrible blunder?

The Doctor Says... by Lawrence E. Lamb

Trichinosis is uncommon, but...

I am writing about my 24-year-old son. About a year and a half ago he contracted trichinosis. He was very sick and still is. He complains of pains in the legs, back or something. Sometimes there isn't enough life in his legs to walk and he feels tired all the time. Once in awhile he gets very disgusted and feels he will never be well. I am worried. He sees these "hippies" and says "Why me?" He is a very good boy. Please, Dr. Lamb, help me as I am a very worried mother.

Trichinosis is a very uncommon disease, but it is more common in the United States than any other part of the world. It comes from pork infested with the trichinosis worm.

The incidence of trichinosis has declined sharply in the United States. It used to be quite high in New York City because the pork came from New Jersey and the hogs were fed on untreated garbage. New laws on meat storage and methods in raising pigs has helped.

A major method of transmitting the disease is from hamburgers in which the beef is diluted with pork or contaminated in the meat grinder. You can avoid this problem by grinding your own beef at home. Sausages and wursts are an important source of trichinosis.

IT CAN be prevented. The best approach is to eliminate the infection in hogs to begin with. All garbage fed to hogs should be heat sterilized.

You can't depend on routine meat inspection to eliminate infected pork. The only real protection you have is in how you prepare it. The meat can be frozen at minus 32 degrees centigrade for several hours — but the low freezing levels required are not possible in the home so you have to depend on well cooked pork.

All pork should be cooked at 140 degrees for 30 minutes for each pound — and that means internal meat temperature. Anything less than this may not kill all the trichinosis.

YOUR BOY must have had a very severe infection since mild cases are usually cured within a much shorter time. Theabendazole, a relatively new medicine, has been very useful in most cases. Mild infestations often recover on their own. Residual muscle damage after an acute infection is unusual — but it does occur. After severe infestations muscle weakness and stiffness can persist for months or even years. The parasite actually invades the muscles and, even in some cases, the nervous system.

If the infection has been completely arrested then the process is really one of regaining muscle strength which is related to developing new muscle tissue. With patience and a consistent effort, muscle strength and a feeling of well-being can be regained.

I hope you have talked this over with your doctor. If he is confident that the infestation has been well controlled he might consider a physical program to regain strength. During the infection phase, however, patients are usually placed on limited activity or even bed rest. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Carnegie medal — sometimes it pays to be a hero

By TOM TIEDE

PITTSBURGH — Not long ago in New York, a Puerto Rican businessman rushed to the aid of a policeman who was being set upon by thugs. For his effort the heroic citizen got nothing but lip. People in his neighborhood called him a "cop lover," former customers stopped patronizing his store. In the end the man sold his business and moved away, harassed, confused and embittered.

And so it goes for some of America's heroes. The business of minding other people's business can be unrewarding. At best in the United States there seems a suspicion of such people. Why do they risk their lives? What's in it for them? At worst they can be ostracized or avoided as fools.

But occasionally, some 100 or more times a year, the courageous in the land are given their due. They're presented with the most impressive, if not the most familiar, civilian citation in the land: The Carnegie medal for heroism.

JOHN J. FEIGHTNER, for example. Last year in Largo, Fla., he saw an occupied automobile stranded on a railroad track at the time of an approaching train. The driver, 65, was too stunned to move. Feightner ran to the car, pulled the driver clear, and as the train hit and demolished the vehicle, pulled the fellow 12 feet away. This year Feightner was given the 6004th Carnegie medal and $500 appreciative cash.

"Wonderful," he says. Wonderful, indeed. In a nation so preoccupied with antisocial behavior it is wonderful, to however obscurely, recognize social involvement. It is something of a further wonder than in 69 years of investigating heroism, the Carnegie medal people have filed 54,000 acts of heroism in North America, a mere fraction of the deeds which have actually occurred.

The Carnegie Medal Fund, now operating out of quiet midtown Pittsburgh office, was established in 1904 by steel pioneer Andrew Carnegie. A Scotsman who belied the stingy reputation of his heritage, Carnegie believed that something should be done for people who risk their lives to save other lives. He gave an original endowment of $5 million in bonds. Over the years $13 million more is currently committed.

THE HERO FUND, according to its manager David Oliver, awards three medals — bronze, silver or gold. Bronze is the usual. Silver is for greater heroics. The gold prize has not been given since the Nova Scotia mine disaster of 1969.

In addition, the fund gives money. Carnegie's original thought was that people should not have to suffer financially for heroism. Thus the fund now mails 160 checks monthly to incapacitated heroes, widows of heroes or heroes continuing their education. One widow has received nearly $50,000 over a 48-year period. And all young heroes, on reaching their 17th birthday, are contacted by the fund as to educational needs. Says Oliver: "If they need money for college, we help out."

As it happens, there are numerous young heroes in the Carnegie file. A fund survey of the years 1965 through 1969 revealed that youths between 12 and 19 were the most frequent medal winners. Forty-seven 17-year-olds won awards during the period. And one eight-year-old.

The Hero Fund organization is admittedly short on the philosophy of heroism. "We're not trying to promote heroism, we recognize it" — thus the whos and whys of courage are not studied. Yet patterns naturally arise from repetition. Often, as example, heroes are not aware of the risks they've taken until after they've explained it all to Carnegie officials. Often, too, heroes, by process of elimination are forced into their deeds.

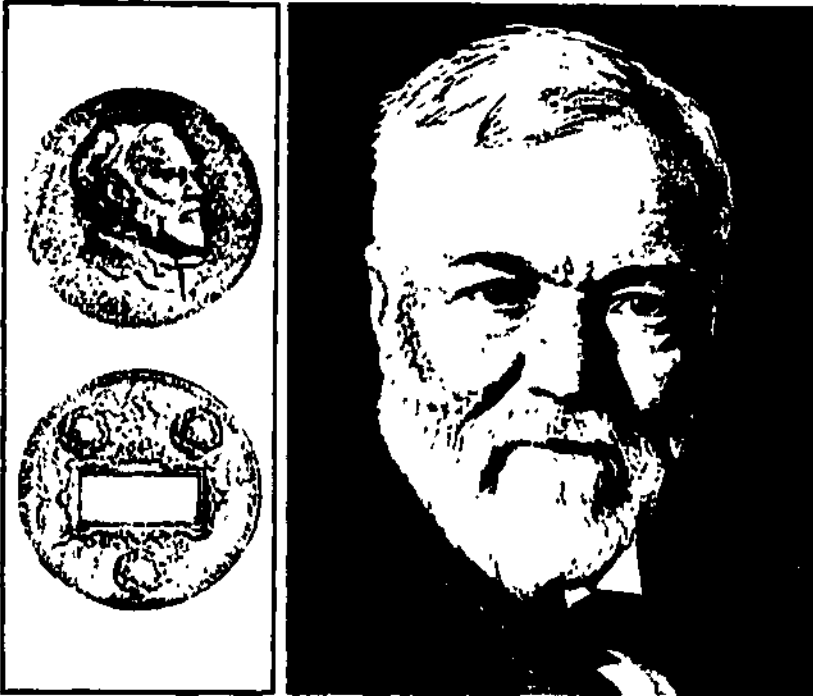

A classic example of the latter hero is described by a long-time Carnegie investigator, Herbert Eyman: "I remember a case of a man drowning near a beach occupied by two people. One of the people was a big 250-pound all-American football player. The other was a 98-pound girl. The football player tried a rescue first, but gave up when he decided he couldn't make it. That left the girl. She had to go out because she was the only one left. She could not stand by and watch someone die."

BUT WHATEVER the reasons for their actions, Carnegie's heroes are eminently deserving. Incredibly detailed reports on each candidate — including personal interviews with one of five fund investigators — assure accuracy. On one occasion the fund may have been fooled, by a convict whose heroism is still under suspicion, but the duds and fakers are rare.

No doubt the Carnegie winners are virtually all like Bill Whiteacre of Cupertino, Calif. He was recently cited for saving a woman from her estranged husband. Whiteacre interfered when he witnessed the husband shooting at the woman. He ran to the man with the gun and put his hand in front of the hammer. Incredible? Yes. But not so surprising. If we paid better attention, perhaps, we'd find the good guys in the land still outnumber the bad.

Counterfeiting crimes increasing

"Beware of the Counterfeit." The U. S. Secret Service, guardian of the nation's currency since 1865, is facing an ever-increasing investigative caseload. From 143,042 investigations conducted in 1972, the figure has climbed to an estimated 161,000 in 1973 and is expected to reach 155,500 by the end of fiscal 1974.

Director James F. Rowley told the Senate subcommittee on appropriations that this was the eighth consecutive record-setting year for counterfeit currency, with $27.7 million being produced, an increase of 3.2 per cent over fiscal 1971.

While $22.9 million of the counterfeit's output was seized before it entered circulation, public losses still reached a record $4.8 million, an increase of 38.7 per cent over the previous year.

DURING FISCAL 1972, the Secret Service made 2,331 arrests for counterfeiting, 32 per cent over the 1,766 arrests made in 1971.

Rowley dramatized the challenge by noting that during the entire five-year period from 1968 to 1972 the total counterfeit currency produced amounted to only $9.3 million, an average of $1.87 million a year.

From 1963 to 1967, bogus currency output climbed to $33.7 million increasing the yearly average to $6.7 million for a 260 per cent increase over the preceding five years. "In the five-year period ending with the close of fiscal year 1972, counterfeiters produced $101 million in counterfeit notes for a yearly average of $20.2 million. Nearly 1000 per cent increase over the base period," Rowley noted.

"The modern counterfeiter's desire for profit, overriding his fear of apprehension, has increased his tendency to deal with conspirators outside his immediate circle of associates and vastly expanded the availability of distribution channels. Sentences meted out by judicial authorities have certainly not been an effective deterrent."

DIRECTOR ROWLEY said this situation is serious, but not yet cause for personal concern to the average citizen.

The record 4.8 million losses for fiscal year 1972 breaks down to only a little over $13,000 per day nationwide and a per capita loss for the year of only 2.4 cents.

"We are, in fact proud of our record in suppressing violations of this type," said the director. "and of the $144 million produced by the counterfeiters during the past 15 years we have succeeded in seizing $121 million or 85 per cent before it was placed in circulation."

Rowley also noted an increase of approximately 15 per cent in incidents of forgery of government checks in the fiscal year 1972, but a jump of 29 per cent in the number of arrests. There was however, a decrease of 28 per cent in the number of U.S. Bond forgeries.

Vermont educates its drunk drivers

WATERBURY, Vt. — Drunken drivers don't last long in Vermont. Either they get caught and taken off the roads, get help with their drinking problems or get killed.

In the last years of the 1960s, Vermont officials decided something had to be done about the state's growing rate of drunken driving. Since "Project Crash" began in 1971 with increased law enforcement and an innovative school for drunken drivers, the rate has fallen off remarkably.

In the four counties where Crash operated during the first year of the program the rate of alcohol-connected fatalities dropped by 20 per cent, contrasted with a 13 per cent rise in the rest of the state. Although all data isn't in for this year, Crash Director Darwin Merrill said the trend seems to be continuing.

After Vermont was selected for federal funding and through beefed-up state programs, teams of state police were specially trained to spot drunk drivers and were sent out on the highways to get them. The drive included special concentration on "prime drunk" hours - late on weekend nights.

AT FIRST, Crash had to use the courts and probation to get people into its school. Now that new state laws have been passed, drunk drivers are given a choice of taking the Crash course and yielding their driver's licenses for a minimum of 90 days, or having the licenses suspended for a year.

In the beginning, Merrill said, members of the course resented being there.

"Now they clamor to come," he said. "The only resentment we get is when they are accused of being problem drinkers. We don't mind; we think people need someone to accuse them of being problem drinkers to shake them up."

"People who are convicted of DWI driving while intoxicated, for the most part, aren't normal drinkers. They're not just social drinkers."

Merrill said the "problem drinker" is an individual who drinks and does things he's likely to be sorry for later, or who does things to harm or upset other people.

Through Crash, 6 to 10 per cent of the students have come to grips with the fact they have serious drinking problems and joined Alcoholics Anonymous.

Another 10 to 15 per cent have joined Community Mental Health Center counseling programs for help.

So far, out of the 600 persons to take the Crash course, only 0.9 per cent have been picked up for an alcohol-related highway offense.

For a long time, Crash courses included lots of facts and figures about blood level computations, state statutes and technical information.

"We realized that was stupid," Merrill said. "When we had a guy in class and the idea was to make sure he never came back again. We realized he had to know enough about himself to make the prior decision not to drive once he takes that first drink."

"THE ONLY thing that's essential in that class is that a person understand enough about himself to make that decision not to drink prior to driving. We don't tell people not to drink; we tell them not to drink and drive."

Crash divides students into small groups to talk about their experiences, their ability to handle their drinking and how to help themselves.

The information is straight, just like the state's new drunken driver law. Anyone caught behind the wheel with more than 0.1 per cent alcohol in his bloodstream is convicted of drunken driving.

When he goes to Crash school, he's told plainly: "You are here because you are defined to be a problem drinker. You were arrested and convicted of the traffic offense of driving while impaired by alcohol. That could be injurious to yourself or others around you. That's problem drinking. Alcoholism is a disease. People with drinking problems are not morally weak or unmanly. They have a disease that is treatable."

For many, it's a tough to take message, but it seems to be working. (United Press International)

Kojak will be a 'real cop'

Telly Savalas confident about new detective series

by DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — There are some actors you talk to and all you get is wall-to-wall bland. And then there is Telly Savalas.

Over the years, Telly has proved to be what we in the columnist trade call about a screenplay he's written. He says it will be turned into a movie on the first break he gets from "Kojak." The script is based somewhat on his psychic experiences (he's a firm believer) and somewhat on his psychological background.

In it, the Devil takes the form of a beautiful young girl. (So what else is new?) He says four directors are fighting over the property. He also says his uncle, the psychiatrist, has slipped over the script.

HE THINKS Kojak has a chance to make it because he's going to insist on it being honest.

"If some hood has a gun," Telly says, "Kojak" will hide somewhere. If "Kojak" sees a prostitute on the street, he'll kick her in the rear and tell her to get lost. He'll behave like a real cop behaves, not like some TV Boy Scout-cops."

They've been after Savalas for years to do a series. He never wanted to but CBS sneaked up on him. When he did last season's very good TV movie, "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," there was a contingency thing in the contract, which meant that he'd have to do it if it became a series. He didn't want it to work. He says he hoped it wouldn't sell.

"Being in a series is too secure," he says. "My father made a million in the tobacco business, then lost it and piled his five kids in a truck and peddled cakes. He was happy. So were we. I don't want my kids to be too secure."

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Don't be 'Rusty' on car safety, here's how to cope with threat

Every few seconds, someone is injured by a car — and in the time it takes for a coffee break, someone dies on the highway! The National Safety Council points out that faulty vehicles contribute to at least 10 per cent of highway accidents — and rust is often the chief villain.

Many problems caused by rust can be detected and corrected ahead of time. Know how? Experts at Ziebart Process Corporation have answered this list of common questions from car owners:

I keep my car in a heated garage in winter, yet I have more trouble with rust than ever. Why is this? A heated garage can actually increase rusting by as much as 300 per cent. According to a University of Manitoba survey, ice on the car melts and becomes water, the electrolyte that completes the electrochemical circuit necessary for rusting.

Are there any areas in the U.S. or Canada where because of climate there is no rust problem? There is no area where rust is not a problem. It is less in arid areas because moisture must be present for rusting to take place.

Does frequent washing and waxing prevent rust? Car care helps, but unless the interior boxed-in areas of the car, where 88 per cent of all rusting starts, are protected, rust can still eat holes in your car. The rustproofing sealant must be sprayed at high pressure through strategically located holes.

What is the major safety problem caused by auto rust? Brake failure. According to the Lincoln Technical Institute of Detroit, this condition is a direct result of environmental conditions such as salt and moisture on our streets. Major fleet operators say that 40 per cent of their brake lines are rust damaged after two years of service. The LTI people further recommend that car owners protect their car and their life with a rust preventive process.

What about air pollution? Is there really enough contamination in our air to cause vehicle rusting? This is the finding of extensive investigation of rusting just undertaken by the Canadian Province of Ontario. In some industrial areas tons of sulfur dioxide gas are put into the air every minute. This is true of residential and commercial areas, too. Since sulfur dioxide plus rain water results in sulfuric and sulfurous acid which effectively accelerate rusting, your car has a bath of dilute sulfuric acid every time it rains!

'good copy.' He opens his mouth and out pour words with some meat to them. Maybe it's because he's bright. Maybe it's just because he's Greek. Who knows? Or cares?

Like now. He's up to his Greek hips in his new series. I'm glad that CBS has finally reached a corporate decision on how to spell it. They've settled on "Kojak," after experimenting with "Kojak," "Kojek" and "Kojagues."

Anyhow, Savalas breezed in and the first thing he said, after the usual socially graceful introductory phrases, concerned Sigmund Freud. It wasn't very pro-Freud, either.

"He was a villain," Savalas said, "equal to or surpassing Adolf Hitler in the breadth of his villainy. Don't forget, he ruined a few generations of kids with his ideas."

HE KNOWS what he's talking about in this area. He was a psychology major at Columbia University . . . before he went into the State Department . . . before he became a newsman . . . before he became an actor. Besides, one of Savalas' uncles, he says, is a leading psychiatrist.

"What we need," he says, "is more love!"

Apparently, in his mind, love is better than Freudian analysis any day. Or night.

All this was preparatory to talking

Veterans and the future

More Vietnam casualties to come?

NEW YORK — With American participation in the fighting in Southeast Asia apparently ended, we are left with, among other things, about three million Vietnam veterans.

And they present a problem: How has the war affected them and their future role in American society?

Will their experience make them activists seeking to improve their communities, more or less like the four veterans in a fanciful new movie, "Gordon's War," who use their knowledge of guerrilla warfare to quadruple-handedly destroy the narcotics traffic of Harlem?

Will their experience leave them bitter and valueless potential revolutionaries, as psychiatrist Robert Jay Lifton suggests might happen in his recent book, "Home from the War?"

Will their experience be important to them only as individuals and will they have no more serious impact on society than did the apolitical veterans of World War II and Korea, as Veterans Administration officials argue?

THE QUESTIONS are muddled by the same political and moral overtones that confuse most discussions about Vietnam. How one defines such words as heroism, atrocity, victory, cowardice and guilt depends to a large extent on how you feel about the war, which makes it difficult to find anyone detached enough to make unprejudiced judgments even about veterans.

And the only veterans who have had a tangible effect so far have been those whose experience has left them opposed to the war, most notably and publicly the Vietnam Veterans against the War, the do-gooder vigilantes of "Gordon's War" having thus far been confined to fiction.

Lifton, a Yale University psychology professor, admits that he opposed the war and that most of the veterans he talked to in researching his book were antiwar veterans who were already motivated enough to seek out "rap sessions" to explore their own usually-troubled feelings about their participation in the war. And he also concedes that most of them were white and relatively well educated.

But he says: "While they are not typical, they do represent a useful model for men who got into a process they saw as tainted."

"ANY VETERAN in a combat situation develops enormous reservoirs of rage that can lead to violence if they are unloved and unmanageable and I have seen some tendencies like that among the men I've been in contact with."

"These men have learned to use weapons and that could present serious consequences to society, from the left, where the veterans now oppose the government and the military, or from the right, where veterans have joined chauvinistic groups or law enforcement agencies that provide an outlet for violent feelings."

Lifton also argues that most Vietnam combat veterans feel guilt about fighting in the war, which may turn out to be traumatic for the country.

"The real American casualties of the Vietnam War," he says, "at least in numbers, may well be those who see no psychiatrists and bear no psychiatric or medical labels, yet are nonetheless plagued and diminished by numbed guilt they can neither animate nor even recognize. Even a society whose leaders are bent on numbing cannot hide these casualities; we shall hear of more and more of them bringing their bitter guilt and rage, which they are unable to reorder, back to a society already suffused with dislocation and bitterness."

Lifton is not the only one to be concerned about the emotional problems of Vietnam veterans. Dr. Chair Shatan, a psychiatrist and New York University professor, says that "significant numbers of Vietnam veterans, especially those with extensive combat experience, are deeply troubled emotionally" by what he calls "the post-Vietnam syndrome."

And a former Army psychiatrist, Dr. A. Carl Segal, told the American Psychiatric Assn. last year that at Fort Benning, Ga., "increasing numbers of combat veterans were being seen by the post's mental health staff for rage reactions, anxiety, depression and psychophysiological symptoms. These often appeared to be associated with depressed and repressed guilt about their combat roles."

PENTAGON STATISTICS, however, say that there were fewer victims of "combat fatigue" and "shell shock" in Vietnam than there were in any previous war. And Dr. Eugene Caffey, the Veterans Administration's associate director for psychiatry, said in an interview that his agency has seen no signs of widespread mental problems among Southeast Asia vets.

"Some veterans of this armed conflict may stay away from the VA because they want to avoid the 'Establishment' or are worried about getting in drug problems, so we don't see everybody who is upset," Caffey says. "But we do see a good chunk of them and I think there is a real question whether the aftermath of this war is any different from the aftermath of any other war.

"You have to remember this was the most carefully selected and trained group of people who have ever fought in a war and I believe that those with mental problems constitute only a very small part of the millions who passed through Vietnam."

All of which adds up to a not surprising conclusion: like so many other aspects of the Vietnam war, its effects on the men who fought it are still undetermined and likely to be a source of controversy for a long time.

Body-paint shop cleanliness key to quality of its work

The body and paint shop you look for is the one with the facilities that will give you a good as-factory finish. How to qualify a good shop? Simple!

An outstanding paint shop will have a good reputation. A few well placed questions among close friends and business acquaintances will bring forth some interesting facts, regarding quality of work, service and price.

Insurance companies are another excellent source for determining the best paint and body shops in town. About 85 per cent of the body rebuilding and refinishing business is done on a bid basis with insurance companies. Responsible shops are known by their good reputation for square dealing and top notch workmanship.

Browsing through a paint and body shop, one can further qualify it. Out in the shop notice if they thoroughly clean the car body with clean-off liquid and remove the wax, and if the body is washed underneath? Is the car sanded, primed, masked and all chrome removed?

Look around. What kind of house-keeping is maintained out in the shop? Is there sandpaper lying around in the spray area? This would mean that the dirty dusty sanding operation is done in the spray area. In a good practice shop, the sanding takes place in a remote specified area in order to avoid surface contamination on the job site.

Notice how the painter is dressed. Does he have a clean starched uniform? A soiled, lousy shop coat throws off particles that can mar a wet surface.

Is the paint shop equipped with well kept tools? Although the paint spray equipment may not be readily discernible, is there a spray booth with a filtered air intake or at least an enclosure with adequate exhaust to assure a contamination-free paint job?

How about room temperature? Is it in the comfortable 70's? This proper level of temperature has a bearing on the properties of paint and the ultimate quality of the paint job.

Are there quick dry ovens to reduce surface contamination while drying? The presence of all or most of these features usually indicates a volume business resulting from good work.

You can't always judge the shop by its advertising. Be cautious of extravagant claims and bargain prices. A proper paint job takes so much time to do and the cost will be commensurate to the good-as-factory finish.

On the other hand, many responsible promotion-minded shops will intentionally give an honest price break on a complete paint job instead of a partial when body work has been done. Don't mistake this as a hard-sell practice. They only do this because it is very hard to match new paint with old no matter how skilled the painter may be and how hard he tries. The responsible shop recognizes this and wants to avoid dissatisfied customers.

A CLEAN, CLUTTER-FREE work area is one of the most vital things to look for when selecting a quality paint shop. Even the look of the technician's clothing is important since a clean and a starched uniform prevents lint from getting into the paint. A first-class paint job costs more but is worth it in the long run.

Chess champ offers all-comers contest

Jude Acers, U.S. chess master, holder of the world's record for simultaneous chess exhibition play, will take on all challengers at 3 and 7 p.m., Oct. 9, 10 and 11 in Schaumburg.

Acers will return to the grand court of Woodfield Shopping Center, Rte. 53 and Golf Road, where he tackled players last year.

Chess fans of all ages are welcome.

but to assure playing each must bring his own chess board and pieces.

Acers gives simultaneous chess exhibitions when he isn't competing in tournaments. In simultaneous exhibition he plays any number of players at the same time moving inside a circle of tables making one move on each board in turn.

A sweet gift goes to 'Sugar' Schwartz

A white mink floor length coat will keep Mrs. Adrienne "Sugar" Schwartz warm this winter. The coat is a gift from Robert B. Green, president of MGM Realtors, for handling all the administrative duties of the firm's four offices during the summer months.

A lifetime member of the Million Dollar Club of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, Mrs. Schwartz also kept up with her sales responsibilities over the busy summer months.

Keep a wary eye on non-motorist

Motorists are not the only ones who use the streets and highways. Pedestrians often jaywalk, children hidden by parked cars dart into the street, cyclists sometimes ride as if they were in an empty field, and animals give little heed to traffic.

All such irresponsible behavior is aggravated during bad weather, when people become more impatient.

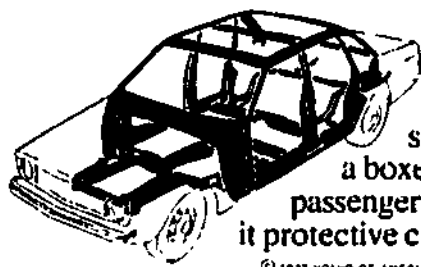

Keep your eyes moving to spot these potential emergencies. Don't depend on others to know the safety rules.

Mustang II: Ford's new 'throwback'

by ROBERT COCHNAR
NEW YORK — If the Mustang was Lido Anthony Iacocca's baby back in 1964, then the 48-year-old president of the Ford Motor Co. is about to become a grandfather.

It was probably inevitable, for Ford has a habit of returning to the successes of yesterday, renewing them and presenting them to a new generation of car buyers. The Lincoln Continental, you'll recall, returned as the Continental Mark IV. And the company's successful Maverick was said to be, at least by the advertising agency, the contemporary Model T.

Since generations these days seem to be half of the traditional 20 years, 1974 appropriately marks the debut of Mustang II.

THE NEW Mustang may well be another indication that Ford's old crystal ball ("There's a Ford in Your Future") didn't follow its corporate symbols like Reddy Kilgus, the "time to retire" kid and Buster Brown into advertising oblivion, but is peered into regularly by Ford fortune tellers.

Iacocca admits, however, that Mustang II is more the result of luck than perspicacity. Back in 1969 when the Mustang II decision was made, who could have predicted that this year small cars would represent nearly 40 per cent of new car purchases and a reported fuel crisis would make "economy" a popular word?

Mustang II is considerably smaller (6.6 inches) than the original 1964 model and a whole lot smaller (18.8 inches) than last year's car. Moreover, the standard engine is a 2.3-liter four-cylinder, with a V-6 option. The big V-8 power-plant, which made previous Mustangs terrors of the road, is simply unavailable.

LEE IACOCCA is a supersalesman, which is amply demonstrated by the fact that nearly three million Mustangs have been sold since 1964. He is also not known for pussy-footing prose. Says he:

"We set out to one-up every other small car in the world. Mustang II is a low-weight, efficient, high gas mileage car with a hell of a lot of class."

Many Americans, the Ford president explains, have long associated small cars with cheap cars, not necessarily in the money sense. "There is that feeling," he observes, "that small cars are inherently junky, that corners are cut in the manufacturing process and the owner winds up with economy and little else.

"Well, Mustang II is a little jewel. We've paid attention to little things like moldings (they fit) and standard equipment like cut-pile carpeting. There are dozens of these little touches on the car, and they all add up to class."

WHY, readers might rightly wonder, did Ford allow its 1964 small car to grow into another big, fat gas-guzzler, adding pounds and inches through the years and then turn around and retrench?

"A car grows for a lot of reasons," Iacocca says, "half of them mandated by government and half by market conditions. The new bumpers, for example, add 200 pounds to the car."

"When you get detailed legislation, there is a tendency to put more on the car than was required in the first place."

Although the base price of Mustang II is intended to be under $3,000, Iacocca expects the car to be quite profitable for, as he points out, "people don't buy stripped cars in this country. With all the myriad options available, the margin will be respectable."

THERE IS another factor crucial to profitability: "The highest margin ever obtained was a prewar Packard," Iacocca says, perhaps apocryphally, "but they only sold one of them. Volume makes the difference."

Filter change increase life of car

An often asked question is, "Should I change oil filter when I change oil?"

Typically, the $4.00 filter doubles the cost of his oil change. Is it worth it? Or should he, as some car manufacturers suggest, change oil filter with every other oil change?

Readers Digest, in a report to consumers, answered the question this way:

"To protect your engine and your warranty, changing the oil filter frequently is important. The filter removes the heavy grit and dust that your engine has sucked in; eventually it gets clogged and can take no more."

If you change oil after 4,000 to 6,000 miles, it certainly pays to install a new filter each time. If you change more frequently you may want to replace the oil filter at each second oil change."

For the experienced car buff or mechanic the answer is simple: change filter whenever you change oil without question. Why? There are three reasons:

A filter holds a quart of oil that does not drain with the five quart crankcase. An oil change without a filter change is thus only an 80 per cent change, and the new oil is immediately contaminated.

Car manufacturers' recommendations are for ideal conditions that seldom exist — sustained turnpike driving in dust-free regions with temperate climate. Stop-and-go short hop neighborhood driving is tough on engines since they never get hot enough.

Stop-and-go motorists should not only change oil filter at every oil change, they should also change oil more frequently. Warranties spell this all out under "exceptions" but the average motorist is not reading the fine print.

Dirty oil really beats up an engine. Don't get careless because you can't see the wear like you can a dirty shirt. Here's how bad it is: a car maker some time ago tested engines over 15,000 miles, changing oil every 2,000 miles.

One set of cars had oil filters, the other identical set had no oil filters. Results: filtered cars had 86 per cent less main bearing wear; 93 per cent less connecting rod bearing wear; and 84 per cent less cylinder bore wear.

The responsible car owner can increase the life of his engine as much as 25 per cent by changing oil and filter together.

In 1966, Ford sold 549,436 Mustangs, which represented a 6.1 per cent share of the industry and a 74.4 per cent share of the market segment.

Sales shrunk to 127,062 in 1971, which was a 1.2 per cent market share and a 29.1 per cent segment share.

Clearly, a new Mustang was inevitable. The question is whether Mustang II is the right car at the right time. Lee Iacocca had the correct answer in 1964 and he wasn't even president at the time.

Nelson joins referral service

The real estate firm of Robert L. Nelson Inc. has joined All Points Relocation Service as their exclusive representative in the greater Northwest Chicago Suburban area, Jim Warriner, general sales manager of the firm, announced recently.

The All Points affiliation enables Robert L. Nelson, Real Estate to provide a total relocation service to families moving anywhere in North America. Working in cooperation with Western Airlines and Southern Airways, member brokers are able to assist with every detail of the family's move.

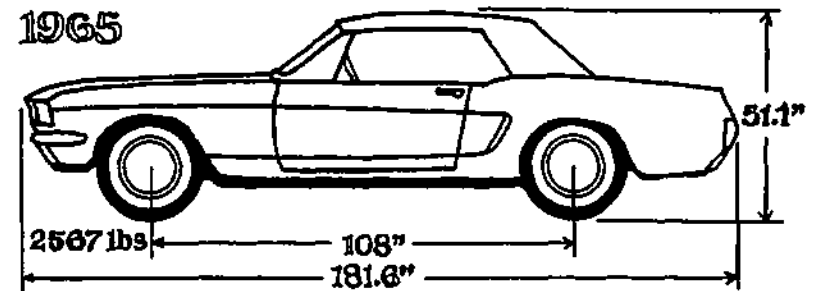

Through these cooperative agreements, the All Points network coordinates all the services involved in relocation. As soon as a member lists the home of a transferring family for sale, he alerts the member broker in the city to which the family is moving. The destination broker immediately contacts the family and furnishes them information and photos of residences in their requirement range as well as general information about the family's new city.

Nelson Real Estate arranges all air transportation and motel accommodations for the incoming buyers.

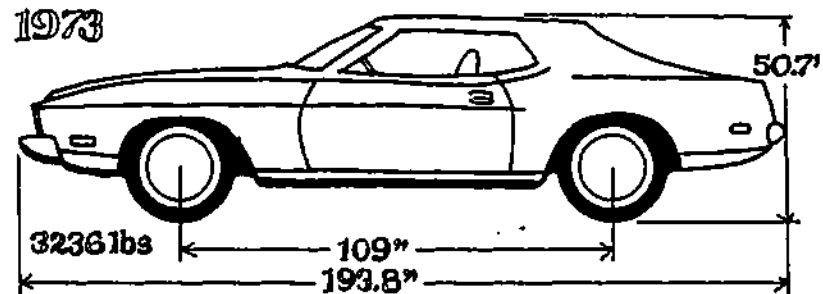

"Our company has always sought to offer the most complete real estate service available in the greater Northwest Suburban Chicago area," Jim Warriner said, "and we welcome this opportunity to expand our services."

"There is no charge by All Points for its part in arranging these services," Warriner added.

The evolution of a Mustang

Avoid pushing stalled car, depend on jumper cable

Back in the good old days, whenever they were, the wise motorist always carried a rope in his car — especially if it was subject to fits of stubbornness.

More than one driver, cloaked in dust and goggles, has been seen tying the rope to his front bumper so he could haul the car out of the mire.

Later, man learned about pushing one car with another — mainly to get the faulty one started. But car makers recommend against pushing or towing by novices today.

In addition to the distinct danger of damaging your automatic transmission, it is altogether possible that your particular car cannot be started with a push.

So today's emergency measure, other than the nearest telephone, is jumper cables — long cables that permit you to transfer current from the strong battery in one car to the dead one in your own.

Jumper cables cost only a few dollars in your auto store. They are good insurance — if you know how to use them.

First, be sure you have good ones. A heavy current load might melt inferior cables before they can get your car started.

Second, double check with your service dealer to be certain you know how to hook them up correctly. This isn't hard to do, but on some cars you can ruin your charging circuit if the cables are reversed.

So the thing to do is take notes when you are discussing the matter with your service man. Write an instruction sheet and attach it to the cables to slip it into the bag they come in.

It isn't a bad idea to go through the procedure in your driveway at home. Then you'll feel perfectly confident to give your rescuer directions when he offers his help.

Volvo tells plans to open new plant in Chesapeake, Va.

Pehr G. Gyllenhammar, president of AB Volvo, Scandinavia's largest industrial firm, announced today that Volvo will build a manufacturing plant in Chesapeake, Va.

The factory, which will cost more than $100 million, will make Volvo the only foreign automobile manufacturer in the United States.

Plant construction is scheduled to begin in early 1974. Car production will be underway in late 1976. The plant's planned yearly capacity is 100,000 cars in two shifts by the late '70's.

Volvo expects to employ approximately 3,000 people by the time the plant is in full production.

All cars manufactured at the Chesapeake plant will be marketed in the U.S.

Volvo will incorporate many of its innovative assembly line techniques in the Chesapeake plant. These improvements are designed to upgrade the job environment of assembly line workers and minimize many of the psychological problems associated with assembly line work.

One such innovation presently in operation at Volvo's Torslanda assembly plant is a tipper trolley. The tipper trolley, which has been designed according to proposals suggested by Volvo assembly line workers, turns the car body on its side during assembling to enable workers to stand next to the car body rather than underneath it in a pit.

MR. GYLLENHAMMAR said the decision to build here was motivated by Volvo's growth potential in the U.S. market, where approximately 25 per cent of the company's car production is sold. Volvo's projected sales for the U.S. market is 68,000 cars for 1973 and 100,000 units by 1980.

Chesapeake was selected, Mr. Gyllenhammar explained, because of many factors. It has excellent port facilities and provides superior highway and railway systems to facilitate the distribution of cars to U.S. dealers.

Volvo has exercised an option to purchase a 500-acre site for approximately $3.8 million. The entire project will be financed by loans secured in the U.S. and by the parent Volvo company. The investment is subject to formal approval by the Swedish government, which has to approve all foreign investments.

Bjorn Ahlstrom, president of Volvo of America Corporation, noted that the project, coupled with the recent completion of Volvo's multi-million dollar corporate headquarters in Rockleigh,

N.J., "is dramatic evidence of Volvo's commitment to America and the American car buyer."

"Our commitment extends to providing the same high Volvo quality control for the cars produced here as we have in our assembly plants in Sweden," Mr. Ahlstrom said. "By placing a manufacturing facility in the American market, we will provide the American car buyer with a Scandinavian-designed car built by Americans, for Americans right here in this country," he said.

"Another advantage of placing our plant in the U.S. is that our dealers will have closer contact with the factory to help us better adapt our product for the American car buyer," Mr. Ahlstrom concluded.

THE CARS PRODUCED in the U.S. will be built with components from European and American suppliers. Production will involve body assembly, surface finish and final assembly.

In Sweden, the Torslanda plant will continue to operate at full capacity and the new Kalmar plant, which will start up in 1974, is expected to reach its full capacity of 30,000 units annually by 1976. The car assembly plant in Halifax, Canada, which this year expanded its production capacity from 20,000 to 16,000 units, will continue to supply cars for the Canadian market. Plans for the Belgium plant call for a steady increase in production up to 100,000 units annually.

With the addition of cars built at the U.S. plant, Volvo's worldwide automobile production will increase from today's figure of about 250,000 annually to approximately 400,000 by 1980.

Volvo began marketing cars in the U.S. in 1956. In 1972 the company sold 64,200 units here through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Volvo of America Corporation, and anticipates 1973 sales to reach 68,000.

Chevy offering 4 fewer models

A total of 44 models are being offered by Chevrolet for 1974... four less than in the previous model year.

Greatest change is in the Chevelle line where a new sporty Laguna Type S-3 coupe is added while a luxurious new Malibu Classic series replaces the Laguna series at the top-of-the line. The Malibu becomes the standard series replacing the former DeLuxe designation.

"Improvements all across the board add value to all our car lines," says F. James McDonald, Chevrolet general manager.

"Later in mid-year of the 1974 model run," McDonald added, "further excitement will be added with the introduction of the special performance Cosworth Vega. Heart of this limited production option," he said, "will be the Cosworth Vega engine with dual overhead camshafts and 16 valves — four per cylinder."

In addition to the various styling and mechanical advances, Chevrolet is equipping all cars in 1974 with a sequential ignition interlock in the seat belt system that calls for the driver and front seat passenger to be seated with belts buckled before the car will start. Seat sensors and buckle switches operate sequentially to help prevent defeating the system.

There are three distinct bumper systems on Chevrolet cars in compliance with the more stringent government impact regulations.

THEY INCLUDE the hydraulic-pneumatic energy-absorbing systems on the regular Chevrolet, Chevelle, Monte Carlo and Nova; the new spring-mounted aluminum bumpers with resilient impact strips on Camaro and Vega; and the body-colored urethane "soft" bumper covers with aluminum and cast iron reinforcement and draw bolts on the Corvette.

Engine power ranges from the Vega's aluminum alloy block four-cylinder 140-cubic inch power plant and the standard 250-cubic inch six-cylinder on up to an optional 454 cubic-inch V-8.

In compliance with emission standards, California engine availability will be different from the rest of the nation. Basically, all California V-8s will have four-barrel carburetion. Additionally, Chevrolet is making a four-barrel 400 V-8 standard for all big Chevrolet wagons and a two-barrel 400 V-8 standard for Chevelle wagons... both for improved performance.

Various sizes of steel-belted radial ply tires are standard on Corvette, Monte Carlo and Laguna Type S-3 and available as extra cost options on all others.

Headlining the broad variety of other Chevrolet developments for 1974 are new front and rear styling for standard-size cars; new styling for the Chevelle and Vega lines; new front and rear appearance for the Camaro; and styling refinements for the Monte Carlo.

The five coupes in the standard Chevrolet and Chevelle series have new roof designs. There are new bumper systems using for the first time extruded aluminum bumpers for Camaro and Vega.

Important chassis and structural improvements for greater driveability and durability also have been engineered into many 1974 models.

Other features for 1974 include wear sensors and indicators for disc brake lining and front suspension ball joint; new battery flame arrestor caps; a low internal resistance battery and a more simplified air conditioning system.

Basic highlights of the new Chevrolet lines are:

1974 Standard Chevrolet

There are two distinct appearances in front and rear styling... one for Caprice models and one for Impala and Bel Air series. Caprice Classic coupe and Impala Custom coupe have new colonnade-type roof design with long rear quarter windows nearly 50 per cent larger. The new Impala sport coupe roof features formal hardtop styling.

A new heavier gauge frame as well as rear suspension lower control arms are given a new anti-corrosion treatment. Added body insulation gives Caprice models quieter ride while extra acoustical package is available as extra cost option on Impalas and Bel Airs.

Self-folding operation in the big Chevrolet three-seat wagons, as well as Chevelle models, is made even easier. All seats can be operated from a single position at right hand side of wagons.

1974 Chevelle

Chevelle adds to its prestige in the intermediate field with new front and rear styling and new model lineup covering all car needs in luxury, sportiness and utility.

The new styling includes metal die cast grille and roof treatment featuring an opera window for the Malibu Classic coupe, the Landau and the Laguna Type S-3.

A high level of roadability is attained through numerous chassis refinements resulting from an extensive road testing program at both GM Proving Grounds and other studies. Improvements include re-tuned body mounts and improved engine mounts and front and rear suspension revisions.

Base power plant is the 350 V-8 with the discontinuance of the 307 V-8.

Adding to the design appeal is a double rear panel... also used on Monte Carlo... that has a glass reinforced polyester panel on the outside and conventional steel panel inside. The outer panel is non-corrosive and easier repaired.

1974 Monte Carlo

Car-of-the-Year Award winner for 1973, the Monte Carlo has an even more impressive luxury look in 1974.

Featured in the new look is a completely new chrome lattice-work grille. Highlight of the line is the Monte Carlo

S model while the basic coupe offered in 1973 is discontinued.

The Monte Carlo S features optional radial ply tires, custom suspension, automatic transmission and improved acoustics. Landau model equipment features special vinyl roof cover, distinctive trim and special wheels.

1974 Nova

A sporty new Nova SS option is offered in 1974, featuring a dual striping treatment along the hood and fender edge and rear deck.

The option is available in either coupe or hatchback models with choice of any engine.

Standard V-8 is the Turbo-Fire 350 replacing the discontinued 307 V-8.

The lineup includes the two SS options and six full models.

1974 Camaro

The 1974 Camaro sports a new look that features a new front end with a miniature lattice-work split grille and shield emblem. An extruded aluminum front bumper, with rubber impact strips splits the upper and lower grille levels.

Interior luxury appointments are also added.

With the discontinuation of the Rally Sport, the line includes two models... the regular sport coupe and the Type LT. A Z28 option, with special trim and equipment package, also is offered.

Added for 1974 is a longer range 21-gallon fuel tank. The 350 engine is the standard V-8, replacing the discontinued 307 V-8.

1974 Vega

Award-winning Vega takes on a new look of liveliness for 1974 with changes in front and rear styling dictated largely by government bumper requirements.

Featured are a large-louvered sloping metal grille and matching style in the rear. The variety-packed model lineup includes notchback and hatchback coupes, Kammback wagon, panel express, GT sport, Vega LX and Vega Estate wagon.

The Turbo Hydra-matic is used as the automatic transmission. The Powerglide was discontinued in mid-1973. A wide range of vehicle refinements add to the Vega's capabilities and quality.

Among new features is a 16-gallon fuel tank... five gallons larger than the 1973 tank.

1974 Corvette

America's only true sports car, the fiberglass-bodied Corvette changes its looks and adds to its roadability and durability in 1974.

New rear end styling complements a new "soft" bumper system, a new optional "Gymkhana" performance package and anti-corrosion treatment for the frame assembly.

The stiffer Gymkhana suspension is available with all Corvette engines.

There is a new 10-inch rear view mirror and the anti-theft alarm switch is relocated next to the Stingray nameplate on the left front fender.

U.S. Home names vice president land division of U.S. Home, the nation's largest on-site home builder. The announcement was made by U.S. Home division president Lowell Siff.

McNeil has an extensive background in marketing, having formerly been vice president of sales for Enterprise Paint Company, Chicago, and national sales manager for another major firm.

"McNeil has a number of new and innovative ideas in the marketing of single family and attached condominium homes," said Siff. "We feel he will help us be Chicago's number one supplier of quality housing."

As vice president of marketing for U.S. Home, McNeil will be responsible for the total marketing and sales activities of the division. The company currently is active in seven Chicago area housing developments. They include: Cherrywood, Cherrywood Village in Bolingbrook; Monterey Village in Park Forest South; Countryside in Lake Zurich; Cedarbrook in Arlington Heights; Larkspur and Hanover Square in Hanover Park. These communities contain a diversified range of housing, including conventional single-family homes as well as attached condominium units. The homes range in price from $20,000 to $75,000.

NEW ROOFLINE — the coupe, convertible, sport sedan, top-of-the-line Chevrolet Caprice Classic Coupe offers a new colonnade-type roof design with a styled center pillar extending into the roof panel. Rear quarter windows are nearly 50 per cent larger. The Caprice Classic line offers five basic models: a

Housing proposals get OK from brokers

The housing policy recommendations submitted to Congress recently by President Nixon received a strong general endorsement from J. D. Sawyer, president of the National Association of Realtors.

"The President's proposal to provide immediate relief to the hard-pressed home mortgage market should alleviate an extremely serious threat confronting the home-building industry," Sawyer said.

Nixon announced that the government would move to allow savings and loan associations to provide an additional $2.5 billion in mortgage loan commitments. Such credit has been virtually shut off since June, because of the diversion of savers' funds into high interest-bearing U.S. Treasury bills and other investments. Under the administration plan, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board will provide "forward commitments" to savings and loan associations, guaranteeing that money will be available to them at some future date to cover present home loan commitments that they could not otherwise make.

SAWYER ALSO welcomed the administration's announcement of an attempt to attract $3 billion in private funds into the mortgage market for new housing construction. This move will involve a revival of the so-called "Tandem Plan" of the Government National Mortgage Association, under which the government buys mortgages at prices favorable to the seller, then sells them back to the originator or other investors at discounts sufficient to provide a fair market yield. The effect of this strategy is to provide money for FHA-insured mortgages at interest rates below the market level.

Sawyer noted that both of these steps can be taken by the administration immediately to help the housing credit squeeze, without waiting for Congressional action on other phases of the administration's housing plan. Such action is not expected before next fall.

"These measures are necessary in the short run," the real estate industry spokesman said, "to help relieve conditions caused by the unprecedented rise in interest rates. Taking a longer view, however, we are especially pleased to see reflected in Mr. Nixon's proposal our recommendation for a plan to provide direct cash assistance to low income families to permit them to choose their own homes, rather than forcing on them new housing, with its inevitable 'housing project' stigma. We believe this will not only provide more decent housing for those who cannot otherwise afford it, but will have the added virtue of effectively utilizing the nation's supply of existing homes."

"ALSO WELCOME is the President's intention to seek legislation which would update and improve the existing laws governing mortgage credit by permitting homeowners to pay fair market rates on FHA and VA insured loans. We believe that such legislation would have the effect of helping to prevent wild fluctuations in mortgage rates, while insuring that home buyers would have an adequate supply of mortgage credit payable at reasonable rates," Sawyer said.

The administration also has announced its intention to seek legislation aimed at encouraging more financial institutions to invest in residential mortgages by establishing a sliding scale of tax credits on such loans.

Sawyer also strongly backed the President's reaffirmation of his administration's intention to vigorously pursue a wide range of efforts to enforce fair housing and equal opportunities laws enacted by Congress in 1964 and 1968. In endorsing these government policies, Sawyer noted that the National Association of Realtors has formulated an official Code for Equal Opportunity, pledging its members to "offer equal service to all clients or prospective clients without regard to race, color, religion or national origin, and to refrain from any activity which has the purpose of inducing panic selling."

We defy you to order a car dealer's "rustproofing" now that you know all about Ziebart rustproofing:

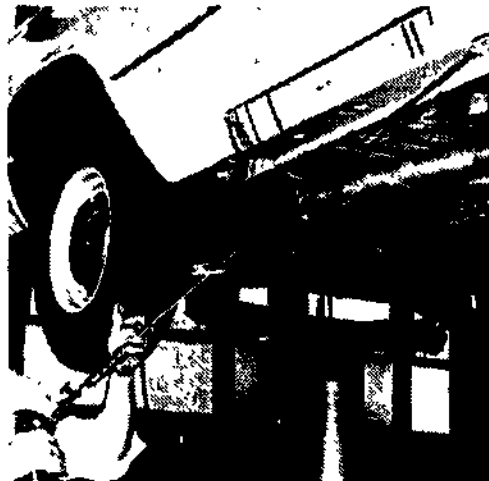

1. If you think your car dealer's "rustproofing" is factory approved, forget it.

No car manufacturer has the facilities to train rustproofing specialists. Or technical manuals for each and every car. Or specialized tools. (Where most "rustproofers" have two or three tools, we have nine. All patented.) Whatever a car dealer offers you is his own responsibility.

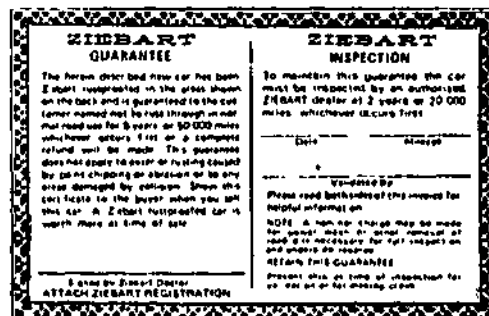

2. The Ziebart Process. Guaranteed to run and drip. And work.

Anybody who says he has "drip-proof" rustproofing doesn't have real rustproofing. Our sealant runs so it can penetrate seams—even welded seams. It runs, covers, spreads — protects. That's why rustproofing takes a full day at Ziebart. Only after the running and dripping is complete do we give you your new car back.

3. Would you believe we know more about the inside of your new car than any car dealer?

Being specialists, we are experts in our line of work. We use new car drawings as well as blueprints to determine exactly where the boxed-in, hidden areas are on every car. And just as important, we know where not to drill holes that might weaken or even damage your new car.

4. We give you a guarantee you can depend on.

It's a real guarantee. A full, money-back guarantee. A 5-year/50,000-mile new car guarantee against rust-through that's good at any Ziebart location worldwide. If you need service, your guarantee will be honored.

5. 1,000 car and truck fleet managers could have picked any "rustproofing." Instead, they picked Ziebart.

Ask the guys who make their living buying and selling cars and trucks. We rustproof for the U.S. government. For the City of Detroit. For major companies like Olin Corporation. For N.A.S.A. And unlike some "rustproofers", we don't use one grade of sealant to meet government specs and another grade on your car. We have only one grade—the best.

6. It's all we do for a living. We have to do it better.

Rustproofing is what we do all day, every day. Our people are all trained in Ziebart technical schools. All of them use our exclusive patented spray tools.

7. The only way to get rustproofing "as good as Ziebart" or "the same as Ziebart" is to get Ziebart rustproofing.

Sure, you may be told by your car salesman that you'll get something "as good". Because word gets around about just how good our process is. But now you know that there is no way to get Ziebart rustproofing from a car dealer. No way. The best thing you can do for your new car is to say "No thanks." Then come see us.

And if you don't get it here, you're not getting Ziebart rustproofing:

How's thermostat operating? Check before winter arrives

If your car's engine is running hot, or if your automatic transmission seems to be sluggish — have your thermostat checked.

Thermostats open and close to regulate coolant flowing through the cooling system to maintain proper engine temperatures. Functioning correctly, thermostats should open to allow coolant to pass through the system when the coolant reaches the exact temperature level for which its engine was designed.

If the thermostat opens before the coolant reaches this desirable temperature, the engine will run too cool. This will result in excess wear on moving parts, accumulations of sludge in the crank case and decreased fuel economy, among other things.

However, should the thermostat fail to open when the proper temperature is reached, the engine is subjected to overheating. With the thermostat closed, coolant flow is blocked off from the radiator. Until the stat opens, the coolant becomes hotter and hotter. When this occurs, the engine will deteriorate rapidly as metal parts are tortured by extreme temperatures.

Newcomer wins top prize for sales

Mary Ford

A newcomer to the staff of Gladstone Realtors' Elk Grove Village office won top prize in the office's monthly sales competition. Sales associate Mary Ford, after only four months at Gladstone, totaled $120,000 in gross sales in the residential division.

A graduate of Siena High School and of Gladstone's own Real Estate School, Mrs. Ford has been a resident of Elk Grove Village 10 years. She and her husband are the parents of four children.

'Million-dollar' mark quickly hit

Tom Portera

Tom Portera of Village Square Realtors has reached the coveted million dollar sales mark in less than one year. He was the sales leader for August. This is the third time Tom has won this award. He achieved "almost the impossible," by selling three homes in one day.

Watch those tires

If you will be using a trailer, camper or motor home be sure to check the weight you are putting on your tires. Surveys show about 20 percent of all recreation vehicles are exceeding the maximum loads their tires should carry.

You can check with your tire dealer, your vehicle owner's manual or your dealer to determine maximum tire load. Then have your vehicle weighed, fully loaded, on a public scale.

A vehicle with overloaded tires will handle poorly and in case of a blowout control problems will greatly increase the chance of a serious accident.

ILLINOIS TRAFFIC SAFETY ALERT

Drive Alert In Illinois

It's a Great Place to LIVE.

It's a good idea to have your car's cooling system tuned up before cold weather sets in.

In addition to inspecting the operation of the thermostat, careful attention should be paid to radiator and heater hoses, hose clamps, fan belts, and safety pressure caps.

Should they fail, any of these key cooling components can lead to serious, and costly, engine troubles.

ROCK CITY GARDENS high atop Lookout Mountain near Chattanooga, Tenn., offers some of the most beautiful natural scenery in the south.

Camera buffs who visit the ten-acre attraction find its picture taking possibilities limitless.

Rock City Gardens: a scenic wonderland

A vacation is not complete without picture-taking, and tourists see most of America's scenery through the viewfinder of a camera.

Rock City Gardens, a ten-acre travel attraction high atop Lookout Mountain near Chattanooga, Tenn., offers some of the most beautiful natural scenery in the south and makes it easy for travelers to take good pictures.

At the start of the tour through the rock wonderland, each visitor gets a full-color guide card showing the 20 most photogenic spots in Rock City. Some of the most frequently photographed are Lover's Leap, High Falls, Tortoise Shell Rock, 1000-Ton Balanced Rock and Mushroom Rock.

Rock City's flagstone path leads through the Needle's Eye and Fat Man's Squeeze, where pictures show who needs to go on a diet.

Another favorite photo spot is Deer Park, where a herd of white fallow deer are kept. The rare deer are ideal subjects. One minute they are as still as statues for their pictures and the next they are gracefully bounding across the park for the amateur movie cameraman.

At the mountain's edge is Undercliff Terrace, where an observation point seems suspended in space. In the background are Lover's Leap and High Falls, the most photographed points in Rock City. Lover's Leap presents a breathtaking panorama of Chattanooga and its surrounding farmlands.

And no camera buff would dare leave Rock City without taking candid shots of his family or friends daring to cross the Swing-Along Bridge.

In Rock City's Fairview Caverns and Mother Goose Village the magic of black light makes fairytale characters seem to come alive. Since black light takes special filters, Rock City offers a series of slides which portray the brilliant colors of the scenes.

Rock City Gardens is a photographer's paradise. It is an exciting place to vacation. And a vacation to relive through pictures.

Complete information on Rock City Gardens and an illustrated color brochure may be obtained by writing P. O. Box 108, Chattanooga, Tenn. 37401.

Hardware is dominant in Do-It-Yourself Show

Hardware items are playing a dominant role, both in exhibits and demonstrations, in the first revival of the popular Do-It-Yourself Show, Chicago's International Amphitheater, Oct. 30 through Nov. 4.

Exhibitors of hardware items will be the major beneficiaries from demonstrations by nationally known improvement and remodeling experts. Al Carrell, King Features Syndicate's "Super Handyman" and Florence Adams, radio and TV personality and author of "I Took A Hammer In My Hand." They will be joined by Harry McIntire, commentator-authority of the WHBM radio show, "Workshop Notebook."

Stanley Tools have developed a special exhibit, one of the largest in the Do-It-Yourself Show. It will contain a wall of tools, displaying over 100 varieties essential for the home owner. Stanley is also contributing prizes which will be awarded in a special Craftsman's Contest.

Demonstrations on the installation of heating ducts, and featuring replacement or extensions will be presented by the Berkheimer Company. The newest in the skill line of power tools will be a twice-a-day feature; and a new model table saw will be presented by Rockwell Manufacturing.

Instructional courses on the installation of wrought iron railings, plywood paneling, tiling ceilings, and floors will be frequent presentations.

According to Ronald P. Ranke, managing director of this Do-It-Yourself Show, produced by American Exposition Corporation and Metro Sports, "hardware dealers and manufacturers are certainly stealing a march on those producing arts, crafts and leisure time products by concentrating their promotion efforts in an area where the average person must now buy materials and equipment from hardware stores, or leave the home projects having dormant. This I know is truly an age of do-it-yourself, or do-without."

An attendance of 200,000 is projected for this first revival of the show which in the early fifties drew more than five million avid do-it-yourselfers in 21 major markets. "And Ranke stated," the economy in those days was loose enough so that the Do-It-Yourself movement was not as imperative as it is today."

Safety precautions are urged as follows:

A thorough washing of the skin with soap and water, or a flushing of an exposed eye with clean water only, may reduce irritation and the chance for permanent injury.

Always read labels before using sprays or dust, noting warnings and cautions each time before opening a container.

Always store pesticides in original containers; keep them tightly closed. Never keep them in anything but original containers.

Never smoke or eat while spraying or dusting.

Avoid inhaling substances. Wear protective clothing, masks and respirators whenever labels direct.

Do not spill sprays or dusts on skin or clothing. If accidentally spilled, remove contaminated clothes immediately and wash them thoroughly.

If symptoms of illness occur during or shortly after working with pesticide compounds, seek medical attention immediately.

In all cases of exposure, call a physician as soon as emergency washing is completed.

Keep America green.

Take stock in America.

Worn windshield wipers can endanger safety of driver

Like so many other crucial devices, your car's windshield wipers are most likely to fail just when you need them most. During the winter months, windshield wipers have to fight snow, ice, slush, and road salt, as well as the usual rain.

That is when clear vision is extra important, due to hazardous road conditions. So now is the time to check your wiper blades carefully, and to replace them if they're not in perfect condition.

How should they be checked? And what are the signs that a wiper blade isn't up to par?

The best time to check your blades is during a rainstorm, or just afterwards, when there's dirty water on the roads. Or you can check them by using your windshield washer or as you go through a carwash. Or even by having someone spray water on your windshield with a hose.

Whenever you choose to test your wipers, you should be sure to check them at all wiper-speed rates they can be set for. And also be sure to check for all of the following signs of malfunctioning.

Streaking — arcs of unwiped moisture within the wiping area.

Hazing — a thin, hard-to-see-through film covering most or all of the wiping area even after the blade has just wiped.

Hopping — a jumpy motion, accompanied by a "chattering" noise as the blade sweeps across the windshield, with some areas left unwiped.

Scalloping — a ragged outer edge in the wiping pattern.

Rattling — no visible signs of problems, but the wiper blade assemblies sound as if they're very loose.

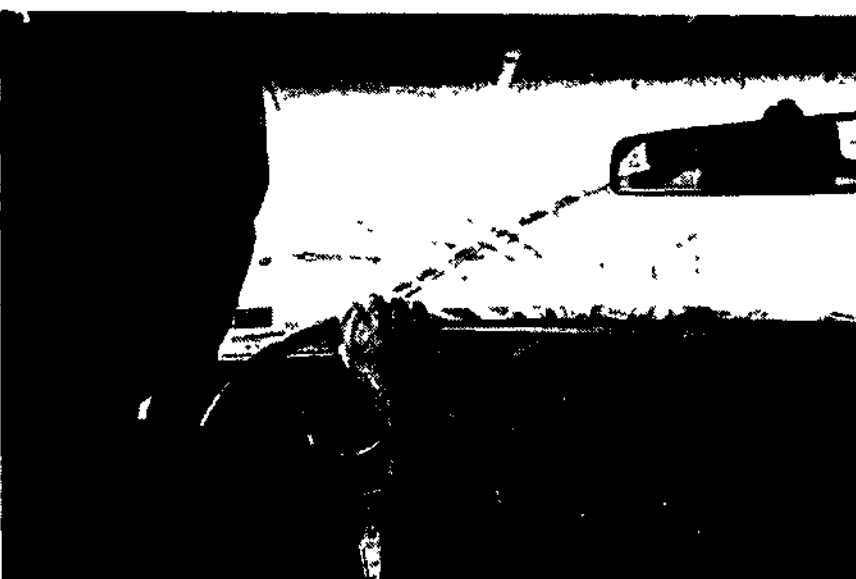

If any of these symptoms are present, you should replace as much of your wiper assemblies as is necessary to eliminate the problem. In many cases, all that's needed is new squeegees (the rubber strips that actually wipe the windshield). Try replacing the squeegees first, and if this doesn't solve the problem, replace the entire wiper-blade assemblies.

When you do replace all or part of your wiper blades, replace both at the same time; if one is "shot," the other is usually about to give up, as well. And good vision is too important to risk for a few dollars.

One final tip. If you're replacing your wiper blades, consider the new, molded polycarbonate variety. They last longer than the old metal type, and cut down on glare and rattle, as well.

Do your standard transmission gears grind on a cold winter morning? The likely cause is that your gear lubricant is too heavy for the temperature, especially when starting out. Have your favorite mechanic check the condition.

The slowpoke on the expressway is just as dangerous as the speeder. If traffic streams past you or you are leading a slow parade in your lane, speed up or get off the expressway. You are a hazard when you block traffic.

A WINDSHIELD SPLASHED with winter road slush can provide a moment of terror to any motorist. For a fraction of a moment he is practically blind. It takes good wipers to clear away the obstruction as quickly as possible and restore safe visibility. Replace those worn wipers before poor winter weather sets in.

Credit hurting housing market

The first available figures on the condition of the housing market indicate that, in the first month of the credit crisis, the worst predictions of its effects on housing sales may have been overly optimistic, according to a spokesman for the real estate industry.

Testifying before the House Banking and Currency Committee, Albert E. Abrahams, director of governmental affairs for the National Association of Realtors, contended that the slowdown in growth in housing is greater than that for other segments of the economy.

In addition to figures on interest rates, Abrahams cited figures on sales volume obtained from reports from 79 participating real estate boards.

"The rate of growth for the months of May, June and July 1973 just before the mortgage money crunch hit was nearly 8 per cent over the corresponding 1972 period. During August the rate of sales growth fell sharply below August 1972 figures — to 1.7 per cent — reflecting an initial drop signaling real trouble for the housing economy in the weeks ahead."

"We believe our figures begin to show that the usual two to four month lag before a substantial rise in interest rates reflects in the actual slowdown of the volume of housing sales has been en-capulated in even a shorter time frame," he said.

AMONG STEPS recommended by the brokers that Congress and the Administration should consider are:

Maintenance of rate control on savings deposit interest rates. Rate differentials between those paid by commercial banks and the principal mortgage lenders should be increased and should be expanded to cover certificates of deposit in excess of $100,000. The so-called "wild card" certificates lacking interest controls should be permitted during tight money only for financial institutions which invest most of their funds in housing.

The Federal Home Loan Bank advance mechanism should be greatly strengthened by Congress to provide FHL Banks with access to inexpensive funds which can be borrowed by housing lenders. These funds could be loaned to the bank system by the Federal Reserve or Treasury or could be appropriated directly by Congress.

Ways should be found to get more private money into housing for low and moderate income families. One device would be provision by Congress for a tax credit for investment in mortgages by those institutions which do not invest substantial portions of their assets in housing; for example, commercial banks, pension funds and insurance companies. In addition, a tax exclusion for depositors on the first $10,000 of savings, as an incentive to deposit.

Other recommendations made in the REALTOR testimony include those to rely more heavily on responsible fiscal policy; to establish minimum levels on investment in Treasury obligations, reducing government competition for housing dollars and to discourage corporations from issuing low denomination securities; consideration of Federal Reserve study and development of selective tools of monetary control, including utilization of a dual prime rate; and strengthening the secondary mortgage market.

ABRAHAMS COMMENTED on the suggestion made last March by Committee on Interest and Dividends (CID) and Federal Reserve Board Chairman, Arthur Burns, that a dual prime rate be established, which brokers favor as a device to create equitable credit allocation during tight money.

"To strengthen his argument that the dual rate could be an answer," Abrahams said, "Dr. Burns indicated that the CID was concerned that 'regardless of the rates charged on very large loans, considerations of equity will require that the banks and other institutions continue to extend adequate credit to home buyers, smaller businesses, consumers and farmers."

"In addition, Dr. Burns gave the assurance that the CID 'will continue to do everything in its power to see to it that substantial restraint is practiced by lending institutions with respect to interest rates that bear most directly on our families and small businesses."

"It is our opinion that statements such as these amount to little more than political rhetoric."

"In his dual role as chairman of both the FRB and the CID, Dr. Burns must find a vehicle for justifying the Fed's policies. It appears that in this case the vehicle is his attempt to allege that somehow, somehow, the dual prime concept will have a beneficial effect on the housing finance market."

"We hope that this committee will prevail on Dr. Burns either to put the dual rate to useful effect or stop using it for purely political purposes to throw sand in the eyes of our industry while his one-way interest policies burn us from the other direction," Abrahams concluded.

Car air conditioners need winter action

In the wintertime, when a car's heater is in daily use, many motorists neglect to safeguard the cooling capabilities of their air conditioners. Even though the owner has paid $250 to $400 or more for an auto air conditioning unit, he cannot take its trouble-free operation for granted.

According to automotive manufacturers, the air conditioner should be turned on and allowed to run for at least five minutes each week in cold weather, or during periods when it is not in frequent use.

These workouts allow the fluids to freely circulate and flush the system, thereby reducing hose clogging. A weekly circulation of the air conditioner fluid also lubricates the seals and other fittings vital to its efficient operation.

The fluid — or refrigerant — might be termed the life blood of the air conditioning system. If circulation of the fluid is impaired or if it becomes contaminated with air or water, the air conditioner will not cool sufficiently — or it may fail completely.

Based on the average of 10,000 miles of driving per year, your car's air conditioning system should be checked and serviced once a year — or every 10,000 miles, whichever comes first. This inspection and service should include the following:

Check cooling system coolant; clean intake filters; clean condenser fins; test the pressure of the system; check Freon supply; tighten all hardware (compressor mounts, condenser mounts, and evaporator mounts); and inspect system for leaks (compressor, hoses, couplings and valves).

The five-minute weekly workout during cold spells or periods of infrequent use, plus the annual inspection and preventive maintenance as suggested here, are normally all that's needed to keep an air conditioning system in good working order year after year.

The cost of an annual inspection and tune-up won't break your budget — but major repairs or full replacement resulting from improper attention could.

Its value and many benefits notwithstanding, the auto air conditioner probably needs less attention than any other automotive system. But the attention it does require is important to its continued efficiency and to the owner's pocketbook.

Moving? Pack it yourself save big money

A few "tricks of the trade" can save you money when you're moving from one home to another.

There's no reason, said W. P. Salmon, president of Werner-Kennelly Company, Chicago's leading full-service moving and storage company, that you can't pack your household items yourself, saving the time and cost of having the professionals do it for you.

"When you have the time," he said, "you can do just as good a job of packing linens, books, dishes, kitchen utensils and all the other objects around your home that professional movers can."

But the packing has to be done properly so you not only protect your household goods but also save the professional movers' time, for which you're charged.

"If everything is in cartons — each of which should be closed — the movers can save time in loading the van at your home and also in unloading it at your new residence," he said.

THE "TRICKS of the trade" call for thinking first about the cartons you use. Werner-Kennelly, and other moving firms will rent cartons to you, but you can find your own at the supermarket or local TV and appliance shops.

"You must have the right carton for certain classes of household items. Bigger cartons should be used only for lighter goods, smaller cartons for heavier objects."

The cartons Werner-Kennelly uses are good examples of the sizes the do-it-yourself packer should use as examples.

The Dish-Pack is a carton made up of not one but three layers of heavy, corrugated cardboard. Its dimensions are 18 by 18 by 30 inches high. You can obtain a carton roughly the same size and line it with two or three layers of corrugated board for a "do-it-yourself" Dish-Pack.

Pack your heavy china in the bottom, but:

Always wrap each piece separately — top of the sugar bowl alone and the bowl by itself — in newspapers or other paper or in "gray wrap," a heavy gray packing paper movers can provide at a slight charge. This provides the proper cushioning each piece must have.

Always pack your wrapped dishes on end — never flat.

Pack your lighter things, like glasses and crystal, on top, wrapping each separately. Small pictures, knick-knacks and figurines can go in the Dish-Pack as can small kitchen appliances which aren't too heavy. Examples: a toaster is light, but a hand mixer is comparatively heavy.

Make sure, as you get near the top, that your items are not packed too loosely or too tightly. Use your best judgment on this. Items shouldn't be so loose that they'll hit each other or so tight that there's tension against the sides or top of the carton.

If you've got room at the top in a Dish-Pack, put some linens on top — saving space in your other cartons and providing additional cushioning for your breakables. Stuffing with newspaper can waste valuable space.

The Dish-Pack has other purposes, too:

For table lamps. Remove the shades and you may be able to get two or even three lamp bases into one Dish-Pack, but of course, you must wrap the bases carefully.

Other fine, delicate objects which need special protection like art objects.

The linen carton comes in two sizes. The large is 23 by 23 by 20 inches high, and the medium size is 18 by 18 by 18½ inches high. Both are ideal for linens, as the name implies, but you'll find other uses for these sizes in packing light objects — pots and pans, lamp shades, small toys, games. Remember, it may be possible to "nest" or "telescope" several lamp shades of different sizes so they take up less space. Be careful to wrap each shade separately in tissue paper. Unnoticed dust on the inside of one lamp shade could soil the outside of a second.

THE BOOK CARTON the smallest size — 16 by 12½ by 12½ inches high, and it is for the heaviest objects you have — books, records, your family files. A piece of paper or one book doesn't weigh much, but these items, when packed, represent the heaviest you own for the space they occupy. Remember to pack phonograph records on end — never flat.

The wardrobe comes in three pieces. It consists of a carton 55 inches high and 24 inches long by 22 deep. A rod which snaps into it for you to hang your clothes on, and a top which slips over the whole thing. That top is important to protect your clothes. Don't use it as an extra carton.

If you have certain art objects like paintings which you highly prize and may be a little squeamish about packing yourself, call the mover. Werner-Kennelly has special cartons and expertise in packing unusual objects. It has handled moving and storage for the Art Institute of Chicago for years.

Salmon offered these other helpful hints:

Normally, you can leave your dresser drawers, chests, and desks just the way they are. Don't bother to unload them unless they're packed with very heavy objects which could shift and cause internal damage by breaking glued joints. Loose objects — like silver settings should be cushioned so they don't shift.

Don't leave jewelry in a drawer or pack it with other materials going into the van. A small piece of valuable jewelry can be wedged into an inaccessible place in a dresser or can be inadvertently tossed out with wrapping paper when you unpack. Instead, take your jewelry with you personally.

Make sure you close every carton. An open carton invites damage to the contents. Sealing with tape is an extra precaution. One carton can be stacked on top of another more easily in the van and later on a dolly when the crew moves your furnishings into your new home.

Label each carton for the room it's going to in your new location. This will save your time later.

Unload a few drawers in a dresser before you're ready for moving day. The morning of the move, just take the bed linens and pillows off your beds, and pack them in the drawers. When you arrive at your new home, and the beds are in place, all you have to do is pull the linens out of the drawers and you're ready for a good night's sleep. You don't have to hunt for the sheets and blankets and pillows.

When you get desperate about those last few items, keep using cartons; never resort to a shopping bag which offers no protection for your belongings. One more trip to the supermarket for a carton is worth it.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The Jacoby transfer bid is good enough so that virtually every expert player uses it, but it isn't any wonder bid.

In particular, you don't need to use it every time your partner opens no-trump and you have a long major suit.

North wants to be in game after the no-trump opening, but he is not sure that he wants to play spades. He has five spades and four hearts. Hence, he responds with a Stayman two clubs and jumps to three spades after his partner denies any four-card major holding.

That jump to three spades is a game force. It guarantees at least five spades and shows a supplementary four-card heart suit by inference. Without those hearts North would simply respond with a transfer to spades.

South doesn't know how good his partner's hand is. South does know that he is looking at 17 of the best high card points that a man can hold and South announces this by his four-club bid. This bid leaves spades open as the final contract, but suggests a spade slam in case North has a really good hand.

North has just 10 high card points; no singleton and no ace; signs off at four spades and has no trouble making his contract plus an overtrick. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Julie Andrews

The multi-talented Julie's life began in Walton-on-Thames, England on Oct. 1, 1935. When she was very young, her mother married entertainer Ted Andrews, whose name Julie adored. It was he who started Julie with her singing lessons and that led to the discovery that her voice range is five octaves. By the age of 12, Julie appeared at a London Hippodrome and set off a chain of outstanding performances.

In 1969, Julie married producer-director Blake Edwards. She has a daughter, Emma Kate Walton, by a former marriage and Blake, a daughter, Jennifer and a son, Geoffrey.

J.T.M.
Mt. Prospect

"A man must be constantly striving for a goal. If he ever stops striving, he is as good as dead." These are the words of a man whose striving paid off—Flip Wilson! Flip, whose real name is Clerow Wilson, was born in Newark, N. Jersey 40 years ago, on Dec. 8th. He actually made his debut as a comedian when he was nine years old when he appeared in a last minute replacement for a girl who was to play Nurse Clara Barton. His classmates' laughter impressed him so much that he began to read anything available about comedy.

Flip Wilson

After four years in the service, Wilson took a job as a bellboy and persuaded the manager to let him do a comedy walk on during a dance act costume change. The reactions were favorable and it wasn't long before he decided to go on the road to see if he could make it and make it he did.

Flip was married for 10 years before his divorce in 1967. He is the father of four children. This year is to mark the last season for the comedian as he wants to go into club performing. Write to him in care of NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Avenue, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Is Karen Valentine married? How old is she? How did she get her show business? Please print her picture.

Arlington Heights

Karen Valentine

Twenty-five year old Karen planned to teach drama. She went to Dallas, Texas for the Miss Teenage America contest after winning the local competition. Ed Sullivan saw her performance of a lip-synced version of "Blame it on the Bossa Nova" and promptly booked her on two of his variety shows. As a finalist in the Miss California contest, she won two scholarships which she used to attend night classes at UCLA. She also studied acting and was on her way.

Karen and her husband, actor Carl B. McLaughlin, Jr. live in Beverly Hills, Calif. For hobbies, Karen enjoys sewing, cooking, gardening, and riding motorcycles.

Will you print a picture of Alan Alda and give me some information on him? Is he married? If so, how many children does he have? How old is he? How old was he when he started acting? Where was he born? Where is he now living?

Arlington Heights

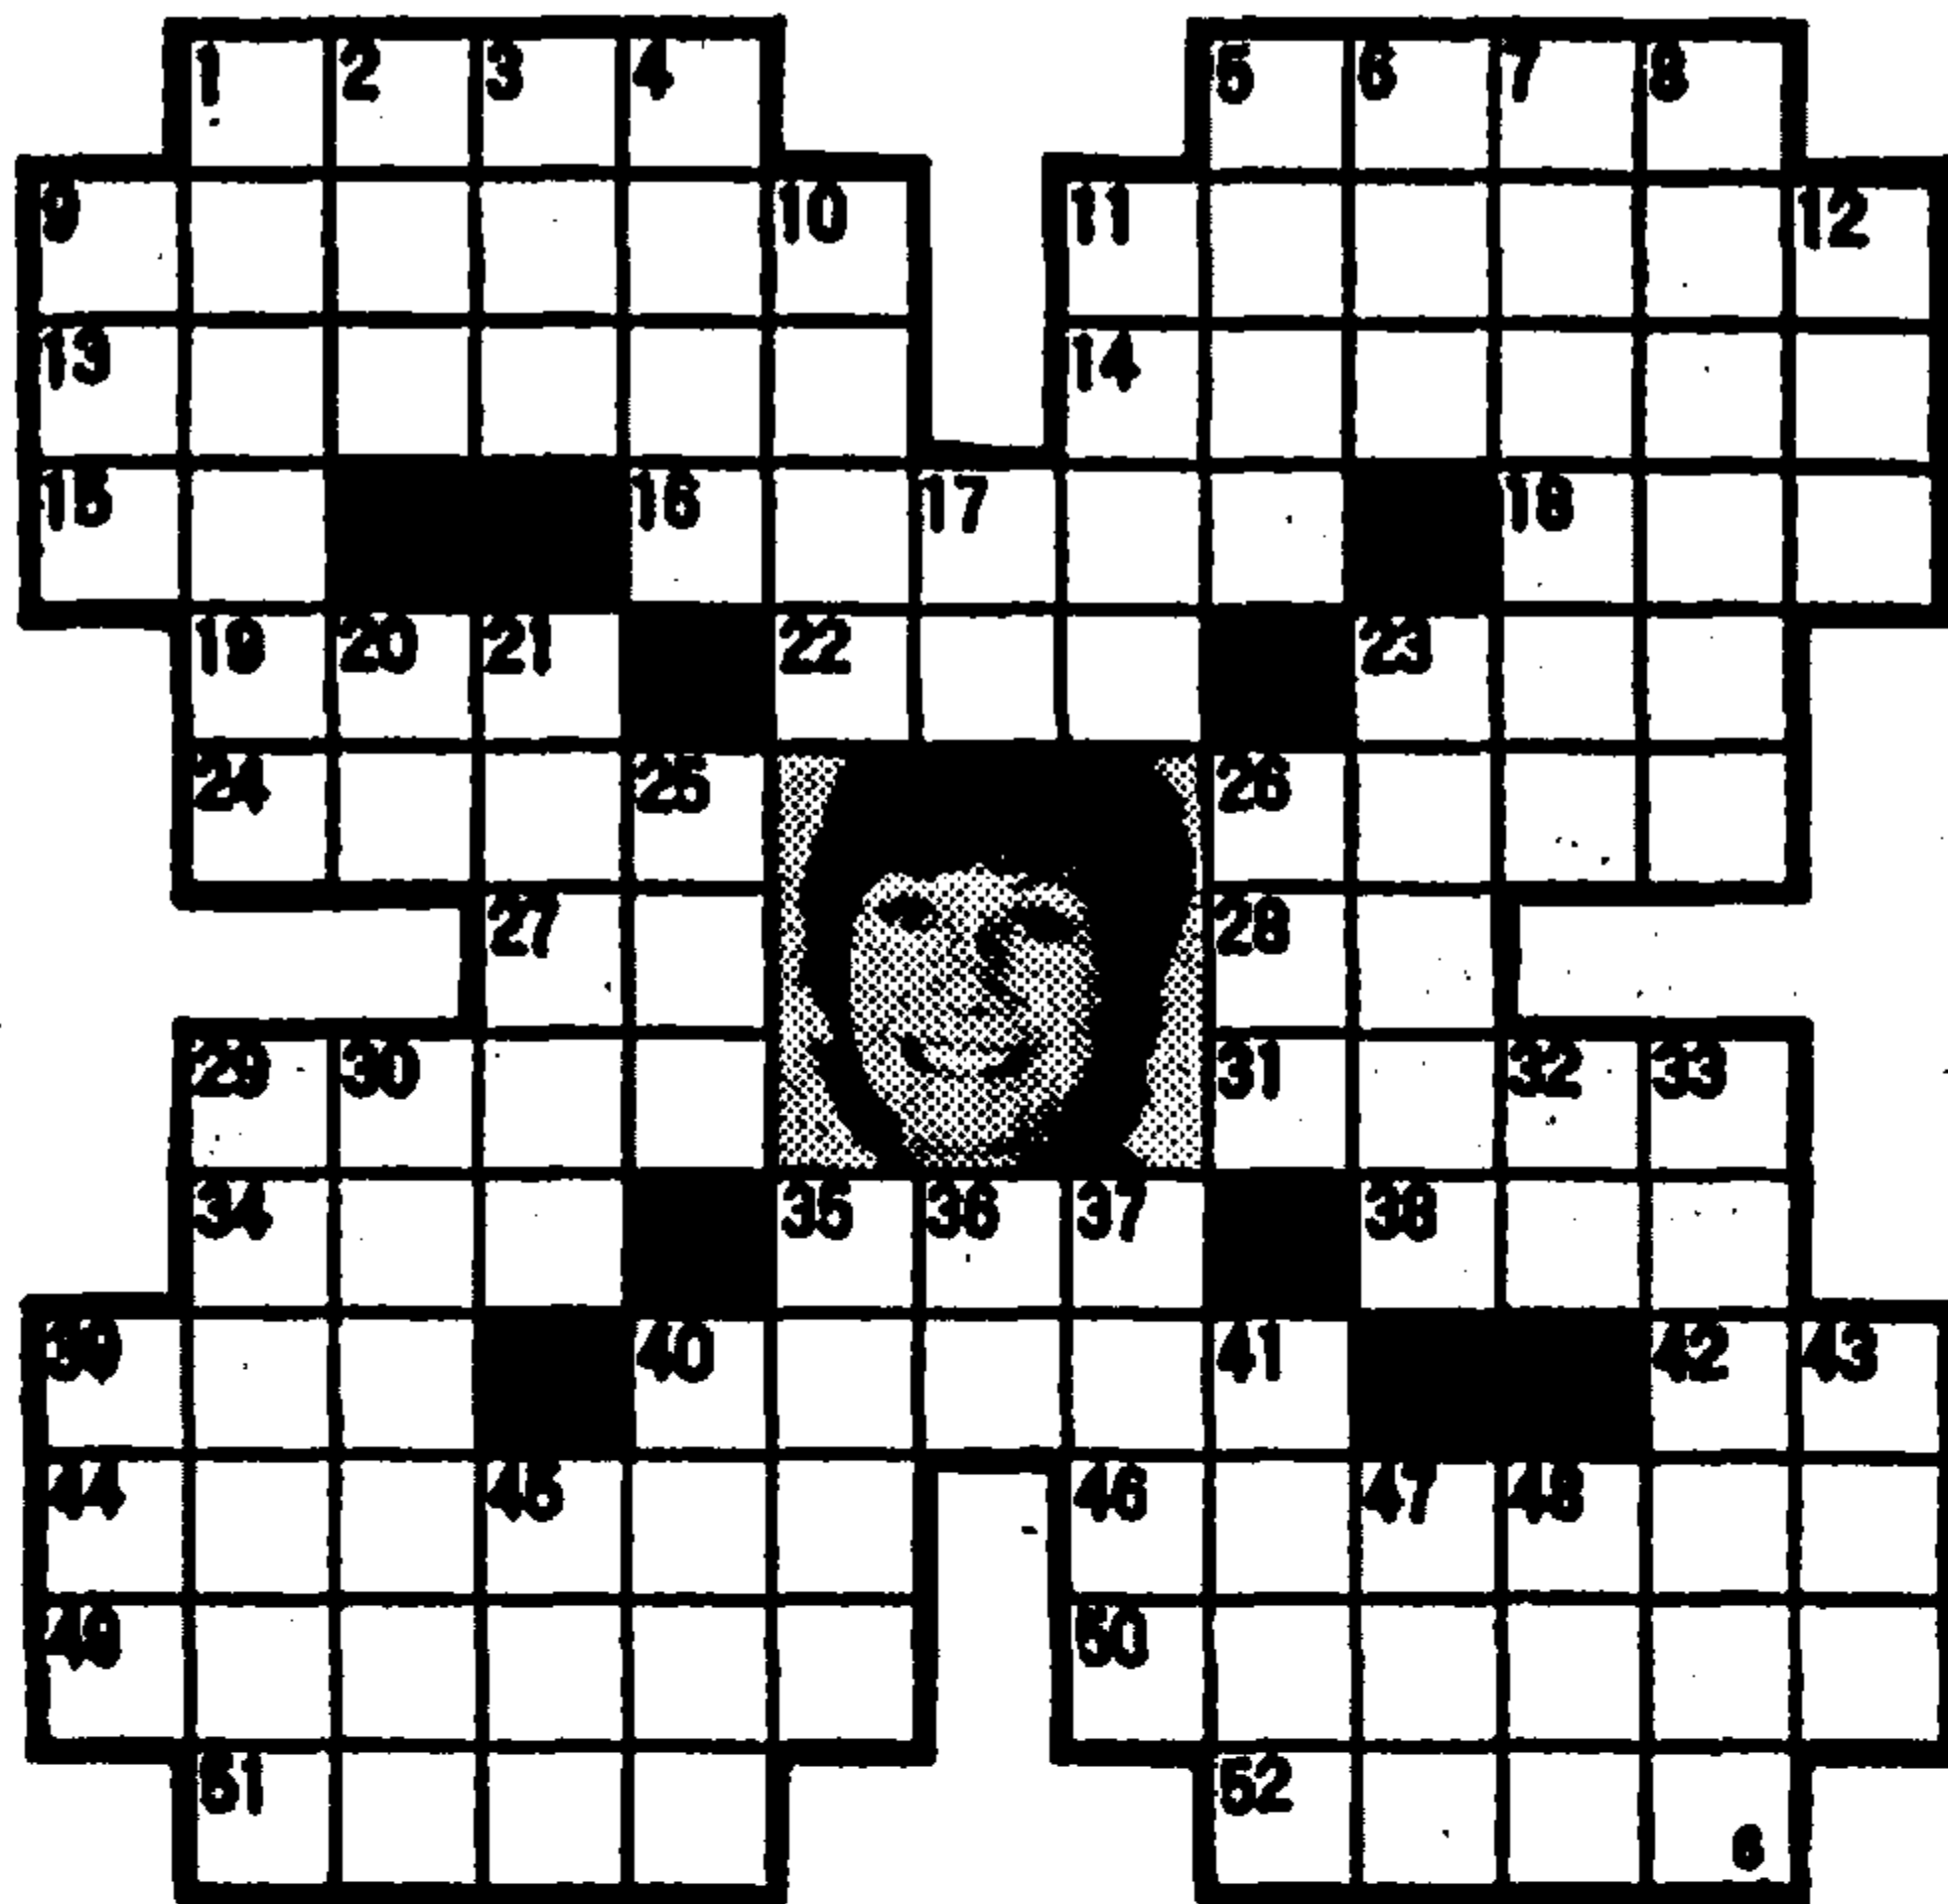

Alan Alda

Now 37, Alan first had a brush with the theatre at the age of 16 when he appeared in summer stock in Barnesville, Pa. His junior year at Fordham took him to Europe where he performed on the stage in Rome and on TV with his famous father—Robert Alda. Following college he studied at the Cleveland Playhouse and later acquired improvisational training with Second City in N.Y. and Compass at Hyanisport. Theatre background in political and social satire proved most helpful as he was a regular on THAT WAS THE WEEK THAT WAS.

Alan and his wife Arlene, a concert clarinetist, live in Leonia, N.J. with their three daughters—Eve, Elizabeth, and Beatrice. Oh yes, he was born in New York City.

"Gone West." Even before Horace Greeley had said "Go West, young man and grow up with the country," more than a quarter of a million people had pushed across 2000 miles of wilderness for a piece of land or a pan of gold in the Appalachians. Abstar Cooke traces the routes of the early pathfinders. In New Orleans, he tells how President Jefferson com pleted history's best real estate bar gain (the Louisiana Purchase of 1803, which doubled the size of the U.S. at a cost of about four cents an acre). And at St. Joseph, Mo., he re calls how one of the country's major supply centers served as a gateway to the west. Cooke also reviews his torical paintings of Lewis and Clark's expeditions (1804-06) and the shameful episode known as "The Trail of Tears." In 1838, 30,000 Che rokees were illegally driven from their ancestral lands in Georgia and marched by the cavalry to Oklahoma.

'Access' rule on way out?

Three years ago, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) created TV's "prime time access" rule, which limits major market network affiliate stations to three hours of network-originated feeds each night.

AS THIS column goes to press, the FCC is seriously considering scrapping the rule altogether.

The purpose of the edict was admirable. The results really haven't been. The major reason for instituting the rule was to create more prime television time for local affiliates, in hopes that program offering would become more diversified. The FCC commissioners evidently thought that what ABC, CBS, and NBC were feeding down-the-pike to their affiliates didn't offer that diversity. The burden of proof, then, was placed on the local stations to either purchase some new, innovative syndicated series or to fill the "access" slots with original, local programming.

AT FIRST, the networks fought the rule. They were making the lion's share of advertising revenues, and weren't exactly amiable to having their affiliates restricted to a mere three hours of prime feeds. Also, most local stations discovered that it was economically unfeasible to produce original programming on their own, and furthermore, the availability of those "innovative" syndicated shows was almost nil.

Recent surveys, for instance, reveal that while most net affiliates have bought newly-produced syndicated shows, the majority of these programs are merely rehashed versions of old network fare. Good examples are "Truth or Consequences," "The Price Is Right," "What's My Line?" "Hollywood Squares," "Hee Haw," "Lawrence Welk," "Beat the Clock," "To Tell the Truth," etc.

REGARDLESS OF how successful these shows may be—either in audience popularity or sponsor acceptability—the hard truth remains that few syndicated shows have offered what the FCC contemplated when it created prime time access.

Interestingly, most network execs now are changing their tune on the rule. Most would like it to stay. Their current reasoning is based precisely on that which has caused many of their local affiliate stations to favor the rule's demise — money. The networks discovered that they didn't have to produce the hours of programming they did before the access edict came to pass. Additionally, the nets were delighted that major TV advertisers (many standing in line to buy spots) were more than willing to pay jacked-up prices that the nets began charging when prime-time access began. The ad dollars gained have more than made up for the time the nets have lost. The local affiliates, meanwhile, have found that syndicated shows are often not desirable — in terms of either popularity or revenue as were the net shows piped to them before the rule.

IT'S A complicated matter, with major consequences in the wings for the nets and their local stations. For the viewer, however, prime time access has resulted in a virtual zero, in terms of "diversity" or "innovation" in programming.

*** **

Word from CBS' New York headquarters has it that the network's radio division will begin an all-new drama series next January. For those who can recall the hay-days of such radio standouts as "Suspense," "The Shadow," "Gunsmoke," et al...it will be very interesting if we'll see the day when night-time dramatic radio will draw a sizable audience away from the tube...

Though he obviously is fond of rabbits, the young man in this photo didn't grow up to be a magician. But he did get into show business. Robert, eight years old in this photo, and his sister, Arnett, are shown on the porch of their modest home in Seattle. Later, the family moved to Los Angeles, where Robert, during his high school days, was brought to the Mack Sennett Studios by his actor-brother and was paid five dollars for a day's work as an extra. He went on to appear in some hundred films and to star in TV series. Who is young Robert? It's Robert Young, the kindly "Marcus Welby, M.D.," of the top-rated ABC Television Network series, which airs Tuesdays.

Though trustees favor idea

Caution urged in decision for a unified fire district

by JOE FRANZ

Five Buffalo Grove Village Trustees said this week, although they would prefer having the community under the jurisdiction of one fire department, the village should not make any hasty decisions.

The comments came after a Herald story this week told of plans by a special fire committee to recommend the village hold a referendum to annex into the Wheeling Township Fire Protection District, which now serves Cook County residents. The referendum would also call for the disannexation from the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District which now serves the Lake County portion of the village north of Checker Road.

The recommendation is expected to be made to the village board in two to three weeks.

TRUSTEE Edward Osmon, chairman of the special committee said the recommendation will be made because one department can better serve the village. "Right now that looks like the way to go. It's the only way that's financially feasible," he said.

THE SPECIAL committee was appointed several months ago after an independent consulting firm recommended formation of a municipal department within two years. Village officials, however, have decided that the tax base to support a municipal department will not be adequate for at least two years.

Of the committee's probable recommendation to disannex from Long Grove, trustee Randall Rathjen said, "My general thought about it is it would be a logical step to the formation of a municipal department."

THE LONG GROVE District has said although it will not oppose formation of a municipal department, it will oppose an effort by the village to disannex its area into the Wheeling district.

Trustee Thomas Mahoney said, while he appreciates Long Grove's concern over losing the area and the tax money that goes with it, he thinks the ultimate goal should be the good of Buffalo Grove. He said the village should give the Long Grove district "equitable warning" prior to leaving the district.

Trustee Clarice Rech said she would like to see the village under one department, but will not make a commitment until she looks into the matter. "I think this (disannexation from Long Grove) is a step toward formation of a municipal department, but I would like to hear Long Grove's objections before deciding," she said.

The primary reason Mrs. Rech would like to see the entire village in the Wheeling district is because of its paramedic program. "I think it should benefit everyone in Buffalo Grove, not just those who happen to live on one side of a line," she said.

Rathjen agreed, saying, "This would be a better fire protection district. From what I can see Wheeling can provide more and better services."

Trustee Jerry Driscoll said although he would like to see the village under one department, with everyone benefiting from the paramedic program, he will not make a decision until he has studied the possible proposal more thoroughly.

Parks postpone fish derby until Oct. 13

The Buffalo Grove Park District has postponed its fishing derby at Willow Stream pool originally planned for tomorrow until Oct. 13 because of Yom Kippur, a Jewish holiday.

The park district plans to stock the pool with 250 pounds of trout for the derby. From 10 a.m. to noon children eighth grade and under can fish for half-hour periods for 25 cents. From noon the general public can fish for $1 an hour.

Those participating in the derby should bring fishing poles and bait.

Volunteer firemen's fall dance tomorrow

The Long Grove volunteer firemen will sponsor their 44th annual fall dance tomorrow at the Long Grove fire station.

The dance will begin at 9 p.m. and will feature music by the Valvatones. Tickets for the dance are $2. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of new firefighting equipment.

Hospital planners await medical survey results

by LYNN ASINOF

Developers of a proposed full-service hospital in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove are waiting for the results of two surveys on medical needs in the area before deciding to file for a hospital permit with the state.

Norman Davis, hospital consultant for the unnamed group of developers, said yesterday these surveys are not yet complete. He said planning for the hospital cannot proceed until developers review the surveys to see if there is a need for a hospital in the Wheeling area.

Preliminary response to a survey of the professional medical community in the area has been good so far, according to Davis. He said about 60 of 125 surveys have been returned.

"It's been a pretty good response," he said. "I was quite surprised." Davis said, however, he is now waiting for a survey of area residents to be completed. He said this survey is actually more important to preliminary studies on the proposed hospital.

"That's the thing that I'm waiting on. It's like a Gallup Poll-type thing," he said. "That will show medical habits and where they're going and why, and that will really help us determine our service area."

THE COMMUNITY survey, however, has not yet been started, according to Village Pres. Ted Scanlon. "We're completing the work on it so we know what we're doing," he said. "I have to get the paper work ready first."

According to Davis, the local survey is going to be conducted by a village community organization. Scanlon said he has not yet decided which village group will handle the survey.

When he announced plans for the hospital last month, Scanlon said the community survey would be under way in about a week. He also said the village was about "six inches away" from finalizing plans for the hospital which would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, western Northbrook and areas just north of Wheeling.

SCANLON SAID the hospital size would range from 200 to 450 beds. He declined to name the group developing the project, but described the developers as a not-for-profit organization.

The group has been negotiating for the Childerly Retreat House property at 505 McHenry Rd., The Herald has learned. No action has been taken to purchase the site since plans for the hospital are still tentative, Davis said.

If the survey shows a positive need for a hospital in Wheeling, the developers will then file with the state for a permit and submit plans to Comprehensive Health Planning Inc., a quasi-governmental planning agency.

"If this survey was positive in that it showed a need for a hospital of 150 beds on up, we'd be willing to take a crack at it," he said. "But there's a possibility this thing may show there's no need, and then we'd say goodbye."

DAVIS SAID he did not think it would take long to finalize the feasibility study once the data from the surveys is available.

Scanlon said he has been contacted by some people who have expressed opposition to the hospital. He said he is planning to meet with Alan Weinstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, who has questioned the need for another hospital in the area.

According to Scanlon, the meeting will be "to see what the problems are and to discuss the pros and cons."

Weinstein and other regional health planners have said that a new hospital in Wheeling may prove an unnecessary facility which will increase health care costs in the area.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE and KAREN BLECHA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forearm. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found near scene

Body of murder victim found in Busse Woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

EL NETTLES, 1437 Mill Creek Dr., Buffalo Grove, says he rides Metron's bus so that he does not have to wake his wife and their small child for a ride to the train station every morning. Nettles hopes the commuter bus service will catch on so that it can be continued.

Such a comfort to leave you-know-what to Metron

Our 'new' vehicle? It's called a bus

by KURT BAER

I was skeptical. Buses in Arlington Heights were like ambulances in Disney World — necessary maybe, but not really part of the environment.

But there they stood. Buses, all glass and steel and unmistakable. Standing near the Arlington Heights train station. Their owner's name and telephone number stenciled on their flank: Metron Systems Corp. 398-8500.

For months I had reported the steps leading up to the start of this commuter bus service. Now I was there to ride. It was 5:50, the height of the evening's rush hour, when I climbed aboard.

The bus was readying for the second of three evening runs on Metron's "Yellow Route" to Ivy Hill, Northgate and Windsor Woods. Its new purple-and-white seats are empty, unworn and uncreased. This is a new service.

The first paying customer is Richard Monasterio, 2436 N. Chestnut, a 10-month resident of Arlington Heights.

"It would be a very swift ride home if you didn't have to go across Palatine Road," he says, referring to the stop-sign bottleneck at Arlington Heights and Palatine roads.

MONASTERIO says the Metron bus is convenient for him and he is satisfied with the $15 fare for a monthly pass. During the summer, he sometimes rides a bicycle to the station and he thinks Metron may pick up other bike riders when the weather turns cold.

Another rider, El Nettles, lives in Buffalo Grove's Mill Creek subdivision and has to walk about 300 yards to the Metron bus stop.

"I think it's great. Otherwise my wife has to get up and drive me to the train, or I have to take a taxi," he says.

Nettles says he was spending $2.50 three times a week for a one-way cab ride. Now he rides the bus.

"You can't beat the time in a car. It's a great service and I hope they can get it off the ground. I don't think there's been enough advertising, though. Numerous people, if they were aware of the bus, would grab hold of it," he says.

As the 6:08 C&NW train pulls away from the Arlington Heights station, Metron Bus No. 1 turns north out of the commuter parking lot. There are six passengers aboard.

Metron's president, Claude Luisada, says he has now sold 15 monthly passes for the two routes, with the number increasing slowly each week.

I SOON SUSPECT, by the way she guides the 33-passenger GMC Coach through Arlington Heights' rush-hour traffic, that driver Nellie Neal is no rank beginner.

"Twenty years as a school bus driver," she informs me. "I watched all these homes grow up out of cornfields . . ." Her reminiscence is interrupted by a cheer from the middle of the bus.

"That's the greatest thing since ice cream," a man cries pointing ahead to a still unactivated traffic light hanging darkly over the intersection of Palatine and Arlington Heights roads.

The lights had been hung that morning and are expected to begin flashing their time- and temper-saving messages later this fall.

For Steve Goldspiel, Metron's bus does not go far enough. Goldspiel lives in Buffalo Grove's Strathmore subdivision and he had not planned on riding the bus today or any other day. But his car broke down and now he is glad for a lift.

"They should run this up to Buffalo Grove. If this bus traveled up Arlington Heights Road to Buffalo Grove I'd definitely ride it, every day," he says.

THE BUS WINDS its way through Ivy Hill and an oncoming motorist stops his car and stares expressionless. Three blocks later, two small children stop their games to run to the curb to wave hello.

Metron passenger Steve Goldspiel lived in New Jersey before moving to Buffalo

Residents vote 'no' on collecting for snake hunt

Residents of Buffalo Grove by more than a two-to-one margin have said the village should not attempt to collect, from the keeper of Seymour the snake, the cost of the recent search.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said Wednesday, of the 51 persons who expressed their opinions, 35 said the village should not collect the money, 15 said the village should collect and one said the village should pay 50 per cent of the cost.

Following the escape of Seymour, the village board passed a resolution to bill the keeper of the snake, David Pearson, 18, of 568 Maple Dr., or his father, Harold, for the cost of the search. Seymour, a harmless rat snake, originally believed to be a deadly Egyptian cobra, escaped from the Pearson home Aug. 25 and has never been found.

THE RESOLUTION states that if the Pearsons cannot or will not pay the bill, the village should initiate court action to recover the costs.

About three weeks ago the village mailed a bill for $1,338 to the Pearson home to cover policemen's and firemen's salaries, equipment operation costs and the cost of exterminating the home.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the Pearsons have not contacted the village concerning the bill. They could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Young Pearson, several weeks ago, on the advice of his attorney, refused to say if he would pay the bill. Earlier, however, he said he would not pay it because police, prior to the snake's escape, told him he could legally keep the snake in his home.

THE OPINIONS expressed by residents, along with the fact that the disorderly conduct charge against Pearson was dropped because of insufficient evidence, creates some doubt whether the village will make a vigorous attempt to collect the bill.

Armstrong said he is not sure what action the village board will take. He indicated however, the board might reverse its decision to bill the Pearsons.

The opinion poll was started by a neighbor of the Pearsons who mailed an open letter to The Herald asking residents if they felt the village should bill the Pearsons for the cost of the search.

State Department rapped

Young asks probe in Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 23, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommate were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

School news notes

Parents of children in the sixth grade class of Michael Mattson at Sandburg School in Wheeling may have noticed that they have less trash to throw away these days.

The children have brought a lot of it to school to use in "junk art" sculptures.

The resulting masterpieces have been on display in the school's learning center and office.

There will be an open house at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15.

Parents will follow an abbreviated school day and be able to tour the school and meet with their children's instructors.

The London PTA will provide coffee and the wrestling team will sell taffy apples.

Whitman-School students are collecting Campbell soup labels to earn an overhead projector for the school.

The Campbell Soup Co. told the children they would send the school the projector if the students can collect 9,500 labels.

The children need the red and white labels from regular size cans — 26 ounces, 50 ounces and all Chunky Soup cans. There is a deposit box for the labels outside the school office.

The "Pride in Whitman" student committee is in charge of sorting and counting the labels. They will maintain a graph near the box to monitor the progress of the collection.

Several girls at Jack London Junior High School placed first in a recent girls' cross country meet with Sunset Ridge.

Seventh grade winners were Pam Smith, Clare Erickson, Julie Rosset, Deanna Hogarth, Deb Krakora, Toni Madsen, Edda Adamicka, Vicki Sherman, Janet Dill, Surita Mansokhana and Barb Plontek.

Eighth grade winners were Toni Perrone, Annette Colucci, Sandy Rainey and Janet Higgs.

Backstage at mock airplane disaster

by JOHN MAES

The Maine West High school gym was transformed yesterday into a makeup studio in front of an on-location shooting of a major Northwest suburban production.

There were hundreds of victims to be sitting around and waiting to see their scripts to find out whether they were to be burned, lacerated or dead.

At makeup tables, nurses, hospital personnel, firemen and civil defense workers were applying the hideous-looking makeup of cuts, lacerations, and fractures with all the fine touches and imagination of a 20th Century Fox makeup artist.

THE PRODUCTION — a simulated airplane crash and disaster drill. The cast — some 200 Maine West students, along with rescue personnel from several Northwest suburban fire departments and hospitals. The location — Aigouin and Mount Prospect roads, near O'Hare airport.

Produced by Local Civil Defense authorities. Directed by Lt. Richard Arthur, Illinois Civil Defense Council president and chief inspector of the Des Plaines Fire Prevention Bureau.

Bloodmobile comes to city Saturday

Des Plaines still needs more than 70 blood donors to reach its quarterly quota for the cooperative blood assurance program.

Kay Wall, coordinator of the blood program in Des Plaines, said persons interested in donating blood can do so Saturday.

A special bloodmobile will be at Des Plaines Fire Station Number One, 405 River Road, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to accept donations.

Persons wishing to donate blood can make an appointment by calling the Des Plaines Health Department at 824-3136 today. Mrs. Wall said the appointment is not needed.

Persons who donate blood to the program will be able to receive blood for themselves and their families for an entire year.

According to Ronald Mills, chairman of Maine West's speech and drama department, each participating student was assigned a simulated injury and instructions for acting out an emotion.

"Some were instructed to be hysterical, others frightened, or in shock," Mills said. The students have been studying sensitivity in drama classes which Mills said "ties in with the realism of the drill."

AT ONE makeup table, Des Plaines firefighter Rick Ormberg was preparing one of 39 make-believe fatalities.

"We might give them some lacerations but most of them will have died of burns or internal injuries."

Another star of the intense drama was

James Brown, a United Airlines pilot who was to play the part of one of the fatalities. Dressed in his uniform, his face was smeared with stageblood and latex to resemble a severe burn.

As a Marine Corps aviator, Brown was involved in two helicopter crashes. He said the "real benefit" of the drill would be to "the young folks who don't really know what a disaster entails and are not familiar with the rescue services available to them."

BROWN SAID airline personnel can only brief travelers as to what to do if a crash occurs but if crash victims could get out of the plane as quickly as possible they might survive.

"But unfortunately, passengers are overcome with a negative shock and just sit there even though the fire hasn't hit the cabin yet."

Ruth Cervone, United Airlines stewardess, had also been cast as a fatality. "It's interesting to see what kind of backup we would have if something like this did happen," she said.

The production would never be a box-office smash, but for the producers, directors, stars and set hands, the experience would be a worthwhile one.

Mayor Herbert Behrel has proclaimed next week as "Respect Life Week" in Des Plaines.

In making the proclamation, Behrel said that the week will be set aside so that all residents can consider the "need for increased need respect for life."

The request for the special observance was made by a coalition of groups including the Illinois Right to Life Committee, Clergy Concerned for Life, Archdiocesan Pro-Life, Col. Andrew S. Miller of the Greater Chicago Unified Command of the Salvation Army, the Chicago Board of Rabbis, the Illinois District of the Wesleyan Church and an organization of Christians and Jews.

Officials spend $800 at municipal meet

Des Plaines officials spent more than $800 at the recent Illinois Municipal League conference, but the total is far below the amount spent in past years.

The city annually pays the bills for officials who attend the weekend convention which deals with municipal problems. Monday, the city council approved payments totaling $822.17 for city officials attending the sessions.

In past years, the expenses have been a great deal higher including a cost several years ago of more $3,000 when the conference was held in Peoria.

This year Aldermen Gerald Meyer (8th), Carmen Sario (6th) and Spencer Chase (3rd) said they did not plan to turn in expense accounts for the sessions.

Several city officials, who were actively involved in the conference, reported expenses of more than $100.

ACCORDING TO city records, officials turned in the following expense reports for the conference: Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), $70.50; Ald. John Seitz (7th); $16.03; Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), $95.48; Ald. Daniel Kisslinger (4th), $18.38; Ald. George Olen (2nd), $10.20; Assistant Comptroller John Raycraft, $81.87; Treasurer Thomas Mahon, $10.64; City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, $127; Deputy Clerk Marilyn Trost, $32.25; Assistant Engineer Ellis Perl, $32.35; Director of Zoning and Planning Michael Richardson, $141.14 and City Atty. James Bouril, $16.34.

Mayor Herbert Behrel had not turned in his expenses at the time the bill list was prepared.

Des Plaines has made it a policy to pay the expenses for city officials who attend the conference each year, because valuable information about municipal problems can be obtained, Behrel said recently.

Council kills pair of zoning pleas ings constructed on property would subject the neighborhood to additional ecological stress.

OTHER ALDERMEN argued that the city should not rezone property commercial just because it is along a busy street. Others noted that the homes represent valuable residential area because it is near several schools.

"Just because we have a lot of traffic there now is no reason to believe that there will always be a lot of traffic, remember mass transportation and the fuel shortage could eliminate traffic," said Chase.

Harold Kahrer, a local developer, who represents the property owners could not be reached for comment, but Behrel said he would not be surprised if the city was sued for refusing to grant the change.

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found nearby

Find murder victim body in woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kenneth, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kenneth, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kenneth. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

Fire Prevention Week here; residents to meet EDITH

Make a date with EDITH during Fire Prevention Week — it could save your life.

Fire Prevention Week begins Sunday and the Elk Grove Village Fire Department is joining in a state-wide program to encourage people to meet EDITH.

Pres. Charles Zettik has proclaimed Oct. 7-13 as Fire Prevention Week in Elk Grove Village as part of the national fire prevention week program.

EDITH is "Exit Drills In The Home." Fire Chief Allan Hulett urges residents to practice EDITH in case they are forced to evacuate their home during a fire.

In planning emergency evacuation, Hulett suggested:

- Plan at least two routes to the outside for every room in the house, especially a bedroom.

- Remember that a closed door, especially a bedroom door, will hold back fire and smoke, allowing extra time to escape.

- When evacuating upper floors, use any porch or garage roofs, ladders, even trees as a means of getting to safety.

- Select a certain assembly point outside the home. Make sure all members of the family know where the point is and instruct them to go there immediately and stay there.

- Work with your neighbors and learn how to call the fire department from their phone. Call the department as soon as everyone is out of the burning home.

WHEN PRACTICING EDITH, Hulett suggested that everyone in the family go to his bedroom. Have one person place a box in a hallway or doorway to simulate the location of the fire.

When the order is given to evacuate the home, the family must take a route that keeps them away from the "fire."

An Illinois proclamation asks all residents to practice EDITH at 5:55 p.m. Tuesday.

EDITH is only one of a host of activities and suggestions the fire department has for Fire Prevention Week.

On Sunday and again on Saturday, Oct. 13, the department will have an open house at all three stations from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

WHEN VISITING the fire department, residents can pick up a fire safety check list printed by the American Insurance Association. The check list covers possible fire hazards in the home. Using the list, a resident can locate and eliminate these hazards.

Among the hazards to be alert for are defective heating units, faulty wiring or electrical appliances, carelessly stored flammable materials and blocked exits.

The department has a list of cautions for babysitters to observe whenever they are working in a home other than their own. These lists can be obtained at the fire stations, along with the village telephone stickers which list the emergency phone numbers for police, fire and ambulance services.

Congressman asks probe in youth's Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 21, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT's role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommate were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE and KAREN BLECH

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forehead. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teenagers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Daytime quiz show moves from TV to the classroom

by BOB GALLAN

No one sleeps in social studies class at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village. Who can with all the clapping, cheering and shouting going on?

Once a week, social studies classes take on the look of a game show as classes compete against each other to see who knows the most in current events.

Competition is heated, especially when a seventh grade class goes against an eighth grade class. The game is conducted much like the television show, "Jeopardy." A teacher asks questions from a commercially prepared list of questions while the other teacher acts as referee. The first student who raises his hand gets to answer the question. Questions carry various point values. If the student misses, the other team gets to answer.

"BY THE END of the year, these kids will know more about what's going on in the world than most parents," said Lou Horton, one of the social studies teachers at Grove. "We do little or nothing to prepare them to answer the questions. The kids prepare themselves by reading the paper and watching television," he said.

All 24 social studies classes at Grove participate in the weekly games, according to Chuck Meyers, social studies teacher. "The kids really look forward to it," he said.

The questions asked aren't easy. Visiting adults are sometimes embarrassed when they can't come up with the answer while 55 kids around them are confidently waving their hands.

The questions are taken from categories such as science, politics, sports, arts, national affairs and odds and ends. The most popular type question is one which asks a question about a television series or special, which could give an idea of where the kids get all their information from.

A SEA OF HANDS answered the question, "CBS recently televised a movie about what pair of 1930s bank robbers?" Although only one could respond, "Bonnie and Clyde," everyone made it clear with grinning faces that they knew the answer.

Sports questions are just as popular, not only among the boys, but girls as well.

Very few questions actually stump the entire class, but some do, such as some

DAMP membership possible

Village may share lake water cost

The most advantageous source of water for Hoffman Estates in the future would be the City of Chicago, a village board water committee was told this week. And the cheapest way to get it would be splitting costs and the water with the villages of Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

The committee met Gerald F. Rehm, an engineer with Greeley and Hansen water consultants, to discuss possible membership in the DAMP water commission, including Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

DAMP was formed in 1957, with Des Plaines also a member, to improve water supply for member communities by obtaining Lake Michigan water. Des Plaines has since withdrawn.

Rehm advised the committee not to look to DAMP as a water source. The commission has been caught in extensive legal battles to win water allocations which would reduce the amount allocated to the Metropolitan Sanitary District, he said.

WITH DAMP, there is no guarantee of a water allocation, and no assurance any allocation would be increased for future needs, said Rehm. DAMP and similar organizations "are all kind of in a state of limbo. If they will get off the ground in five to 10 years is hard to say," Rehm said.

The village could install a pipeline to Des Plaines, and purchase water from that city, which already is buying from the City of Chicago, Rehm said. But Hoffman Estates then would be subject to potential rate increases or supply limits that Des Plaines could impose, he noted.

"You would be far better off to run (a pipeline) to the City of Chicago" directly, Rehm said, suggesting a possible route could be from Mannheim Road through Elk Grove and to Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg along Higgins Road. The villages could all receive the water, and the cost would be much less for each village than if they ran separate pipelines, he said.

Lake Michigan water would be an alternative to continued use of deep wells to obtain water from underground lakes. Rehm said the level of those lakes is dropping an average 16 feet per year, and cited a state report which said wells at a depth of 1,000 feet soon will be common.

REHM ESTIMATED a possible cost for a pipeline system at $4 million for the pipeline, a pumping station and sufficient reservoirs, enough to store a 3-day supply for each village.

Greeley and Hansen could conduct a detailed study of such a project for the village in from six months to a year, said Rehm, who was unable to estimate the fee.

Trustee Bruce Lind, committee chairman, said he would relay Rehm's information to the village board within the next two weeks, and the board may ask Greeley and Hansen for a firm estimate of the study cost.

Bus service?

'Let's start it'

"To heck with more surveys and studies; get the bids out and let's buy a bus for the elderly," said John Jensen, Schaumburg Township auditor.

Jensen, irritated at a delay in buying a bus to serve elderly residents of the township, pushed for action at last week's meeting of the board of auditors.

Auditor Dan Stowe, co-chairman of the senior citizens transit panel, reported the committee has $15,000 to begin the service, but it is losing its most active members.

He complained the committee has not received bids from mini-bus companies because 1974 models will soon be released and new specifications must be drawn.

Stowe was urged by Jensen "to seek bids immediately, buy a mini-bus and then worry about beefing up the ruling committee."

Jensen maintained it would take three months for delivery of a vehicle, which is "plenty of time to work out schedules," he said. He noted the group has been meeting for almost a year. "No wonder our elderly members got discouraged and dropped out. Once they see we mean business and the bus in the driveway, we will have all the help we need to run a transportation program," he said.

ENTHUSIASM ABOUNDS in social studies class at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village, especially when the topic is current events. Classes in the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school meet weekly to test student's knowledge in a variety of topics ranging from sports to politics.

Public library running over its budget

The Schaumburg Township Public Library is spending more money this year than it budgeted for utilities, library assistant's salaries and administrative expenses.

At Wednesday's library board session, Jack Lucas, library trustee, expressed concern about dwindling and deficit accounts.

Librarian Michael Madden said the library expected to spend approximately $28,000 this budget year on utility payments. But in the first seven months, $22,814.43 has been paid in utility bills and the account is down to $5,185.57.

"We did not anticipate such big utility bills in our new wing," Madden said.

The library had planned to spend approximately $97,000 on salaries, but has already spent $57,196.82 in seven months.

More persons were hired than was expected. "People will be paid, we will just have to owe that fund also," said Madden.

For administrative expenses, $4,500 was earmarked for conferences, dues and travel. But $5,235.99 has been spent with that account facing a $735.99 deficit.

"ALTHOUGH THE library has about $9,000 in a contingency fund, a couple months of utilities bills will eat it all up," said Lucas.

He called for an immediate budget committee meeting to begin work on the next budget.

Madden said several other accounts will have surplus balances. "We cannot transfer from fund to fund but in the end it all gets straightened out," he said.

He explained budget transfers cannot be made during a budget year but the surplus funds are pooled at the end of the year.

Lucas's concern was that other funds may also become deficit.

He requested Madden prepare an addition to the budget report, showing projections of revenue and expenditures for each of the remaining five months.

Daytime quiz show at school obscure areas of science or politics.

For example, "The Food and Drug Administration said last week that it had tested more than 35,000 cans of what common food substance and concluded that, despite what the Consumer's Office had stated recently, there was no danger of high lead content?"

AFTER SEVERAL guesses at various types of seafood, there were moans, groans and quizical looks when the students found out the correct answer: evaporated milk.

Plans call for a playoff at the end of the year, according to Meyers. Representatives from each of the 24 classes participating will compete. The one answering the most questions wins an award for his home room.

Until then, there won't be any lack of enthusiasm on "game day," even though first prize isn't an all-expense paid trip to the Bahamas or a washing machine.

300 teen-agers ready to work

Need a Spanish-speaking babysitter? How about a garage painter or typist? Just call the Youth Employment Service at 956-0310 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

More than 300 Elk Grove Village teen-agers are available to work after 3 p.m. weekdays and all day on weekends, according to Mrs. Lynne Helvie, Y.E.S. director. "Local teens earned almost $33,000 during the summer," said Mrs. Helvie, by filling job requests called into the service by residents.

Mrs. Helvie asked that all Elk Grove Village residents be sure of their plans before calling the service with a job for a teen-ager. "A lot of time has been wasted lately in lining up a teen for a job only to have the job canceled," said Mrs. Helvie. "It's a big disappointment for the teen," she said.

The Youth Employment Service will be the topic of discussion during part of the television show, "Different Drummer," which will be aired this Saturday at 1 p.m. on Channel 2. Mrs. Helvie will appear during the second half of the 30-minute program, talking about the service.

Flood plan gets Senate panel OK

The U. S. Senate Public Works Committee approved a resolution yesterday for the funding of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

Only action by the U. S. House Public Works Committee has to be taken before federal funding for about half of the $24.5 million program will be approved. House hearings are scheduled for later in the month and passage of a resolution is expected.

A spokesman for U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said the resolution was quickly passed after brief testimony was presented.

Stevenson submitted a statement to the committee calling for the passage of the resolution because the plan would provide "flood control for thousands and recreation for millions."

Stevenson called the plan, "an example in cooperation between local, state and federal governments."

The Senate resolution and the expected House resolution do not appropriate any funds for the flood control project. The resolutions, however, permit the U. S. Soil Conservation Service to use part of its already appropriated flood control budget for the Upper Salt Creek project.

Work on the Upper Salt Creek flood control project has already begun using state approved funds. The project, expected to take nine years to complete, would reduce flooding in the creek by up to 60 per cent.

Schaumburg Township earmarks $53,200

Federal funds go for mental health

A $53,200 share of Schaumburg Township's expected $189,000 federal revenue-sharing funds was allocated last week for mental health services, a newly chartered youth care facility and an Outreach worker's salary.

Elk Grove-Schaumburg Township Mental Health Center was allocated $40,000 as the township's share of payment for serving Schaumburg Township residents from August of this year to June 1974.

Shelter Inc., a youth care facility that provides emergency home care in the township for neglected, abused or dependent children has been allocated $5,000.

An $8,200 allocation is for the yearly salary of the township's newly hired Outreach worker.

ALTHOUGH ALL requests for funding received the revenue sharing committee's approval, township Auditor Dan

Stowe criticized what he termed "piecemeal decisions."

He reminded the auditors the committee was formed to consider all applications at once. He quoted Supervisor Vern Laubenstein's previous comment that "we only have so much money and each request affects the other guy."

"Are we starting a new policy now?" Stowe asked.

Laubenstein, who chairs the three-man committee, assured Stowe "although it may seem like the requests are being reviewed individually, the committee is aware of all possible requests and knows what to expect."

AUDITOR BRIAN CARY, a committee member, added "Those agencies that requested funds from the last allocation are expected to return again and are being budgeted for. Then we are just adding new ones."

In the last allocation period the township received approximately $103,000. All but $10,000 of it was allocated to various agencies.

In addition to the $53,200 allocation made Wednesday, the auditors have earmarked $30,000 to the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

Overhaul of library room rules seen

"An overall overhaul of policy rules," is the task of a newly appointed meeting-room committee, said Schaumburg Township Public Library Board President Deborah Miller.

Mrs. Miller will chair the committee, composed of board members Robert Lyons and Ruth McTressalt. Their jobs is to set policy for use of library meeting rooms.

Mrs. Miller said the library has received complaints about religious or political groups using the rooms.

"Policy established a year ago leaves too much to interpret, so we plan on making policy rules clearer," she said.

"I hope you don't want us to decide what is religion and what is not," said

Lyons. Mrs. Miller assured Lyons the committee will make practical decisions, not philosophical ones.

She added the library staff and committee will continue to schedule use of the room. The committee is now accepting applications for next year's dates.

Library board member Sonja Leraas complained she was not notified of a hastily called committee meeting. "I hope this doesn't happen in the future," she added.

House Speaker Blair doesn't attend lunch

Illinois House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, failed to appear at the Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce luncheon yesterday.

Blair was supposed to have spoken to more than 60 representatives of Elk Grove firms on the establishment of a Regional Transportation Authority.

Stan Klyber, association secretary, said no cancellation notice or reason for Blair's absence ever was received.

A spokesman in Blair's Chicago office said the speaking engagement was canceled by the association.

Klyber said, "no cancellation notice was ever given by this office." He said the last contact the association had with Blair was a letter sent Sept. 15 confirming the speaking date.

No notice yet to ex-police chief

Centner hearing date still not set—maybe Oct. 13?

Little progress has been made toward a public hearing for ousted Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner since the village board agreed to hold the hearing two months ago.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said yesterday he is aiming for Oct. 13, just one week from tomorrow, for the hearing date. But attorneys for Centner and the village have not met yet to discuss the charges.

"My client has received no notification that the hearing is even on the 13th," said John D. Hayes, Centner's attorney. Hayes said he was unable to meet with the village's special attorney, Jack Sie-gel, earlier this week, and has not been notified about another meeting date.

ONE OF CENTNER'S conditions for the public hearing was the presentation of formal charges from village officials before the actual hearing date. There is some doubt whether the filing of charges less than a week before the hearing will leave enough time for Centner's attorney.

"I haven't any idea of what the charges are," Hayes said yesterday. "So I won't know how long it will take to prepare the case."

Formal charges are expected to follow the line of questioning used by village trustees at a June administrative review of Centner. During the drilling, Centner was accused of ineffective personnel policies, a poor drug control program, no surveillance of taverns for underage drinkers in early morning hours and no patrols for overweight trucks in the village.

Siegel has received all of the village's information on the issue, Jones said. The attorney was hired to handle the Centner hearing since the hearing involves a village employee and the village board. Siegel was unavailable for comment yesterday.

CENTNER WAS FORCED to resign as chief June 25, after a two-week campaign to oust him by Republican trustees who form a majority of the village board. The former chief is working as a lieutenant in the department at his chief's salary of $19,200.

Strong public sentiment supporting a public hearing peaked last summer when more than 3,000 signatures on petitions were submitted to village trustees. Jones reversed his stand against a public hearing in early August.

Republican trustees claim they opposed the public hearing because of evidence against Centner that would hurt the former chief.

The hearing will be before the Palatine Police and Fire Commission in village hall.

Village still seeking bids on garbage bags

One more attempt is being made at purchasing garbage bags to distribute free to Palatine homeowners as a tax rebate.

New bidding specifications on garbage bags were sent out this week to more than 60 manufacturers of garbage bags. The bids will be opened at 2 p.m. on Oct. 29.

There are no major changes in the new specifications but they are enough lower and less restrictive to encourage more competitive bidding, said Richard Dawson, health director.

The village board of trustees voted last week to reject five bids on a year's supply of garbage bags although all the garbage bags had passed tests on strength and durability. Low bidder at the time was Chicago Transparent Products Co. at $61 per 1,000 bags.

Teachers vote to march to back pay negotiators

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 teachers voted yesterday to support their negotiators by marching on the district administration building during salary talks Monday night.

"The teachers are behind their negotiators," said George Sherman, head of the Classroom Teacher's Council which represents more than 90 per cent of the district's teachers.

The teachers, who started the year without a wage contract, are protesting the lack of a pay settlement. Wages are presently frozen at last year's level, though any settlement will be retroactive from the beginning of the school year, according to board negotiator Walt Sundling.

Sherman said the teachers will meet at Pleasant Hill School, 434 W. Illinois at 8:30 p.m. Monday. Then they will escort their negotiators to the salary talks being held in the nearby administration center, 505 S. Quentin.

No action is being planned for the weekend. "The teachers felt that more protest action would be harassment," said Sherman.

Auditors to hear U.S. fund pleas

The last group of revenue-sharing requests will be reviewed Monday by Palatine Township auditors at 8 p.m. in town hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Agencies which will be discussed include Countryside Center for the Handicapped; Shelter Inc.; Crossroads Clinic; Palatine Village Band; Salt Creek Rural Park District; Headstart program; Palatine Library; and a special parents' committee to get sidewalks leading to Palatine Hills Junior High School.

Six other local agencies have already received portions of the township's revenue sharing money: Northwest Opportunity Center, $4,500; Northwest Mental Health Clinic, $8,500; Community Child Care Center of Palatine Township, $12,000; Palatine Township Council for the Aged, $14,000; Township flooding equipment, $7,500; and Clearbrook Center for the mentally retarded, $13,600.

Revenue sharing is a federal program which allows a portion of the federal government's income to all state and local municipalities for specific areas of spending.

Palatine Township officials have been studying how to spend their estimated $71,000 share for more than six months.

Municipalities to study areas for cooperation

Areas where municipalities can benefit by working collectively instead of separately will be explored within the next two weeks by a committee studying the establishment of a Northwest Municipal Cooperative.

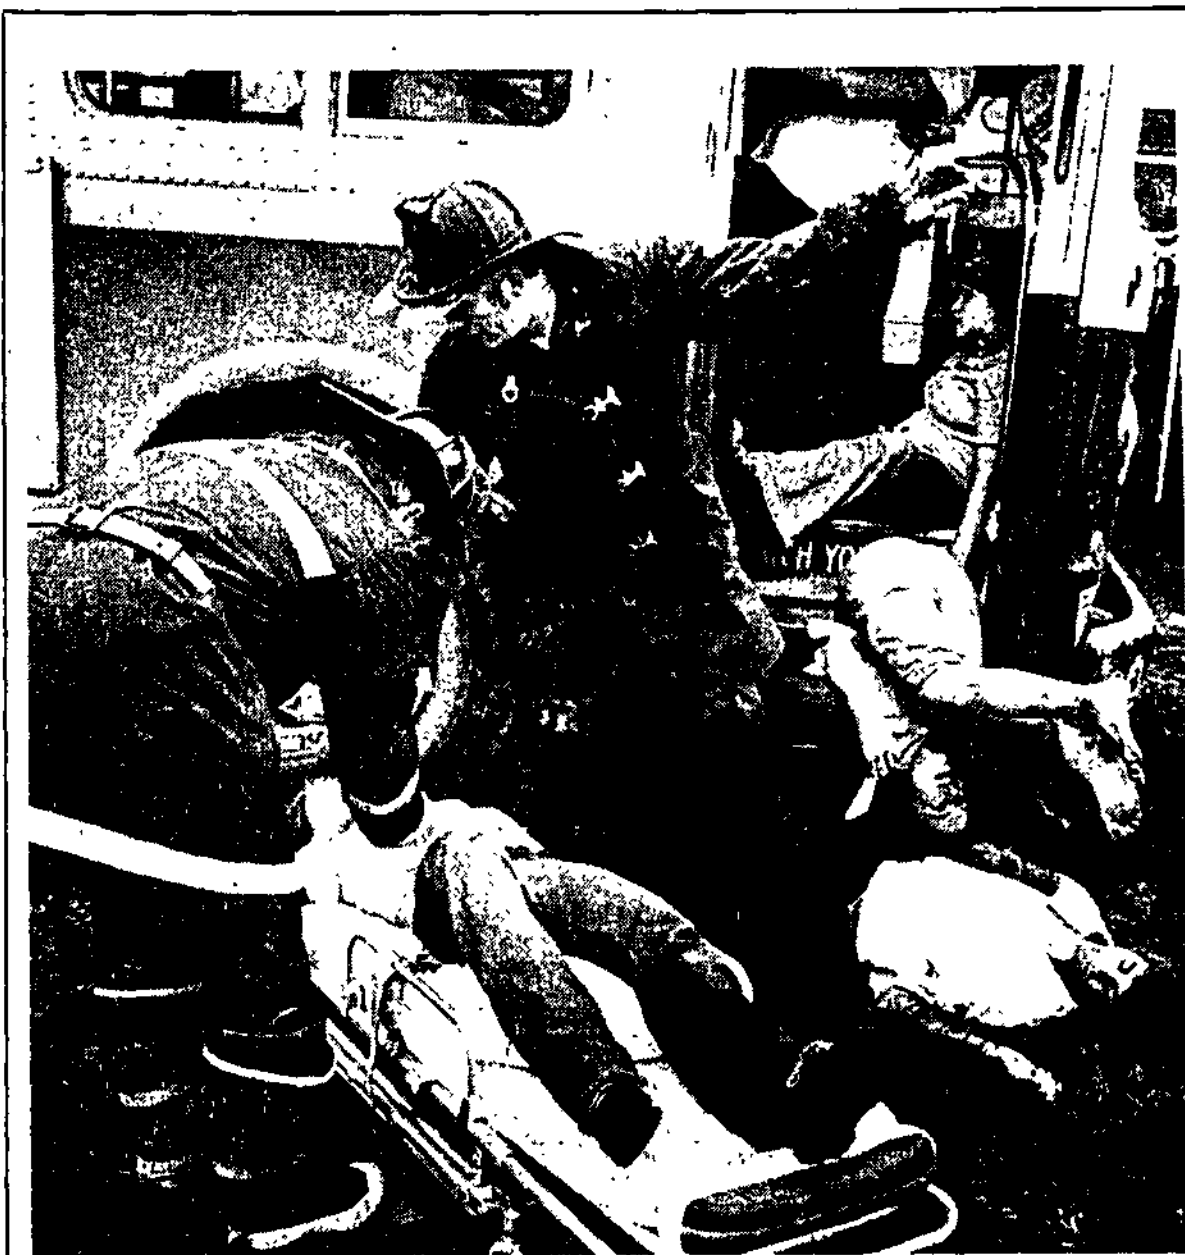

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, chairman of the five-member study committee, said the committee would meet prior to the Oct. 17 meeting of the Northwest Municipal Conference and should have an initial report prepared by that time.

Jones met Wednesday with three representatives of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission to discuss common needs of the Northwest suburbs which could be effectively handled by the proposed Northwest Municipal Cooperative.

The proposed cooperative could get involved in regional planning, solid waste disposal, transportation or anything which could be done better cooperatively than separately, indicated Jones.

Jones said the proposed cooperative could include all 15 members of the Northwest Municipal Conference or be limited to a smaller group.

Members of the study committee include: Robert Telchert, Mount Prospect mayor; Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates mayor; L. A. (Rudy) Hanson, Arlington Heights village manager; and Herbert Behrel, Des Plaines mayor.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE and KAREN BLECHIA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forearm. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Shotgun shells found near scene

Body of murder victim found in Busse Woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

The staff of the Palatine High School yearbook, "The Spotlight," will serve as treasurer for the Illinois State High School Press Association this year.

They were elected to the office last month during the association's annual convention and will take office Jan. 1.

Flood plan gets Senate panel OK

The U. S. Senate Public Works Committee approved a resolution yesterday for the funding of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

Only action by the U. S. House Public Works Committee has to be taken before federal funding for about half of the $24.5 million program will be approved. House hearings are scheduled for later in the month and passage of a resolution is expected.

A spokesman for U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said the resolution was quickly passed after brief testimony was presented.

Stevenson submitted a statement to the committee calling for the passage of the resolution because the plan would provide "flood control for thousands and recreation for millions."

Stevenson called the plan, "an example in cooperation between local, state and federal governments."

The Senate resolution and the expected House resolution do not appropriate any funds for the flood control project. The resolutions, however, permit the U. S. Soil Conservation Service to use part of its already appropriated flood control budget for the Upper Salt Creek project.

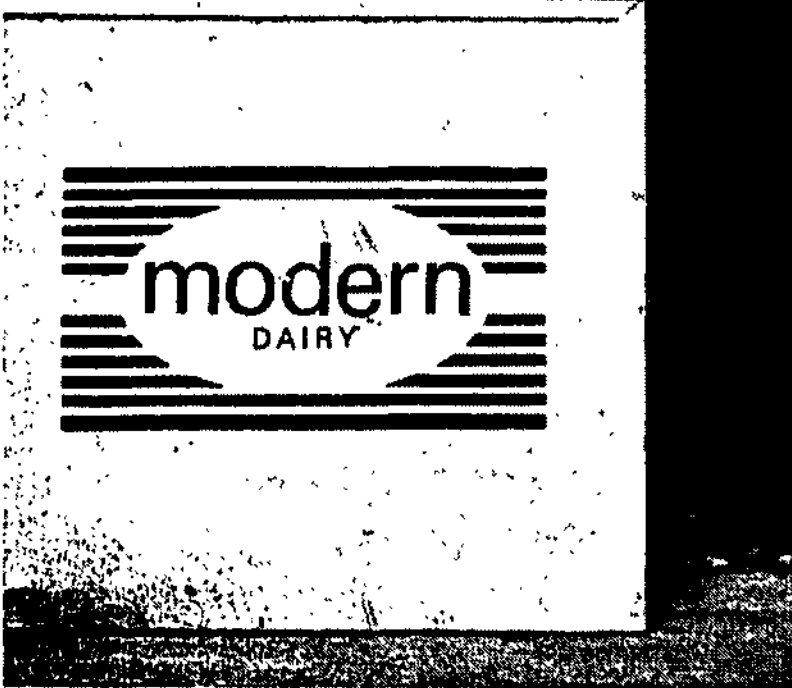

Work on the Upper Salt Creek flood control project has already begun using state approved funds. The project, expected to take nine years to complete, would reduce flooding in the creek by up to 90 per cent.

Redevelopment firm proposed by Jones

The formation of a Palatine Redevelopment Corp. is being proposed to the presidents of Palatine's financial institutions by Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

"It would be my hope that the financial institutions and other businesses could provide 'seed money' for exploring, planning and implementing plans that will assist an expanding and growing community," said Jones.

Jones suggests such a foundation be identified as "Palatine Tomorrow" or "Progress in Palatine."

State Department rapped

Young asks probe in Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-Ill., yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 23, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommate were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

Hearings scheduled in two liquor cases

Two Palatine men are scheduled for an Oct. 18 court hearing, one on charges of possession of liquor by a minor, and the second on the charge of selling alcoholic beverages to a minor.

Palatine police arrested William Schumann, 1176 W. Palatine Rd., last week after two plainclothes detectives allegedly saw Schumann purchase a case of

The $10,000 question

Who will pay for sidewalks?

Three local governmental bodies are talking about it, but no one's decided the $10,000 question yet.

Who will build sidewalks along Smith Road from Northwest Highway north to Palatine Hills Junior High School?

Will the Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 board of education that precipitated the problem by building Palatine Hills Junior High School hand out money for a safe walkway?

Will the village of Palatine that has children going to the junior high school in unincorporated Palatine Township give some of its municipal funds? Presently the village government is refunding tax money to village residents in the form of free garbage bags.

Will Palatine Township government pay for the construction? The ½ mile stretch of property, lacking any kind of a walkway is in township boundaries and the township still has unspent revenue sharing money.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, representatives from all three governmental agencies got together to decide who should pay what and how much.

They discussed working together and what problems they might encounter in building a sidewalk. Then they went into executive session to talk about purchasing a right-of-way for possible sidewalks.

They will report to their respective boards early next week and hold another meeting Oct. 11. None of the representatives can offer any money until they get specific approval from their respective governing boards.

Board approvals for spending money is generally based on some fairly definite dollar figures. But before working out a formula to determine how much each agency should pay, the representatives need to know the cost of the entire project, according to Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley.

To find out costs would mean talking to engineers and construction companies — and spending money to get a cost analysis.

SOMEONE, in other words, has to offer to pay an engineering fee to discover the actual cost. Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley said the actual construction of the sidewalk, not including the purchase of right-of-way which would permit the construction, could cost about $10,000.

He emphasized this was only a "ball-park" figure.

While this is going on at administrative levels, about 200 junior high youngsters are walking on a hilly stretch of road with virtually no shoulders and a 45 m.p.h. speed limit.

One member of the Parents for the Safety of Students (SOS), which was formed to work for a sidewalk, wondered why the school district didn't foresee the dangers of walking to the school.

"Why was the school built there?" she asked.

ACCORDING TO Dist. 15 board member Joel Meyer, the school district works ahead of development. To keep costs down, he said the district buys land in areas where they predict future development.

Once the initial development begins, they start constructing a new school, preparing for an expected influx of students. Often, Meyer said, the school will open before sidewalks are put in.

"The community will eventually catch up with us," he said, pointing to Winston Park School, which had a similar problem when it was first built. Sidewalks were eventually constructed, but Meyer said he did not know who paid for the construction — it was not the school district, he added.

Other schools in Dist. 15, such as Marion Jordan, also have transportation difficulties, according to several Dist. 15 officials. The transportation committee of the Dist. 15 board is studying the problem. No deadline date has been established for a recommendation.

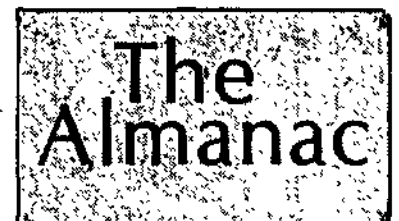

Whether the district has the money to pay for sidewalks is unknown. They can, legally, build ½ mile of sidewalk, though they can't purchase the right-of-way.

Skate, ski sale starts tomorrow

Outgrown ice skates and unwanted ski equipment will be available starting tomorrow at the annual Skate and Ski Exchange and Sale at the Palatine Park District, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

Equipment to be offered at the exchange should be brought to the park district office tomorrow or later with the owner's name, address, phone number and terms of exchange or desired sale price attached. A 10 per cent sale fee is charged by the park district to pay administration costs of the exchange.

The exchange and sale will continue through Oct. 17 with weekday hours of 1-4:30 p.m., and Saturdays 9 a.m. to noon, in the north room of the administration building.

Today is Friday, Oct. 5, the 278th day of 1973 with 87 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Chester Arthur, 21st President of the United States, was born Oct. 5, 1830.

On this day in history

In 1918, the German Hindenburg Line was broken as World War I neared an end.

In 1960, an Eastern Air Lines Electra crashed into Boston harbor, killing 61 persons.

In 1965, Pope Paul made an historic 14-hour visit to New York City to plead for world peace before the United Nations.

In 1970, Quebec separatists in Montreal kidnapped British diplomat James Cross, demanding $500,000 and the release of 23 political prisoners.

A thought for the day: British historian George Macaulay Trevelyan said, "Education has produced a vast population able to read...but unable to distinguish what is worth reading."

$3,540 in gear taken at school

Movie projectors and tape recorders were among some $3,540 of equipment stolen during the night Wednesday at Winston Park School, 900 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Palatine police reported that numerous items were taken from the school's storage room, library and main office. No signs of forced entry were discovered. The building was open during the evening hours while two youth groups met, and was locked at 11:30 p.m. when three custodians left for the night.

Items missing in the incident include a phonograph, three 16-mm projectors, two cassette tape recorders, two videotape recorders and $40 in cash.

In a separate incident Tuesday night, the principal's office at Paddock School was broken into, the desk rifled and an adding machine stolen. Damage at Paddock School, W. Washington Ct., Palatine, was unknown.

Park district offering varied fare

More than 20 fall and winter recreational programs are being offered this year by the Salt Creek Park District. Programs include activities for children and adults as well as family programs and special group trips to professional sports events in Chicago.

Children's programs and swimming and tennis lessons are among the district's most popular current activities, enrollment figures show. The largest enrollment is in the district's state-approved preschool program, in which there are a total of 42 four-year-olds and 26 three-year-olds.

Children's enrollment is also high in modern dance and ballet classes offered by the district. Twenty-eight preschoolers through eighth graders are in the class. Twenty-three children from age four to 10 are taking trampoline and tumbling classes as well.

THIRTY-TWO FAMILY swimming passes have been issued by the district this fall. Swimming lessons are also being given to 23 children at the Arlington Park Towers hotel pool. Private tennis lessons for 26 persons are being given at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, and 10 men are taking part in a tennis tournament at the club.

The district also has nine women enrolled in special early morning yoga and exercise classes and 12 women in its belly dancing exercise classes. Ice skating lessons are being given to five students. Eighty-two golf passes to the Arlington Park golf course have also been issued.

More than $1,176 in fees has been collected by the district from fall program enrollment to date. Enrollment is still open in most classes and a number of new programs will begin later in the fall.

CHILDREN'S PROGRAMS include:

- A preschool play center for three and four-year-olds. The state-approved class runs through May 31, 1974.
- Children's modern dance, ballet and tap classes.

- Trampoline and tumbling for children four through 13 years old.
- Special trampoline lessons for children over 8 years old.

ADULT ACTIVITIES include:

- Guitar lessons for children and adults at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

- Adult trampoline co-ed classes for beginners starting Nov. 9.

- Men's basketball night and a basketball league.

- Early morning exercise and yoga classes for women.

- Belly dancing for women.

- A special Christmas item-making class.

- Sailing instruction beginning Jan. 7.

- Dog obedience classes beginning Oct. 9.

- Tennis instruction in cooperation with the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

- Swimming instruction sessions at the Arlington Park Towers hotel pool.

Special trips to Chicago Bulls basketball games and Chicago Cougar hockey games are also planned for the winter along with movie showings, lakefront bike trips, and holiday parties.

Under the district's new policy this year, persons over 60 years of age may register for any program free of charge.

For information on any activity, call the district office at 259-6890.

Redeemable at local stores

Halloween plans seeking use of coupons, not candy

Members of the Rolling Meadows Youth Referral Committee yesterday endorsed plans to coordinate Halloween activities in the city and a proposal to substitute redeemable coupons instead of candy for trick-or-treaters.

The committee, made up of local clergymen, Police Chief Lewis Case, City Mgr. James Watson and representatives from the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, heard details of the planned Halloween celebration from Chamber of Commerce Dir. Harry O'Brien.

The chamber, along with the local Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes, hope to implement a plan which would have residents purchase scrip money representing pennies and nickels to be distributed to children this Halloween. The money could then be redeemed at local stores for candy and other items of the child's choosing. The child could purchase an amount equal to the amount of "money" he has.

The plan is seen as a way to reduce incidents of tampered candy being given to children.

CHILDREN WOULD be encouraged to trick-or-treat from after school hours to about 8 p.m. on Oct. 31. Residents who give to the children will be asked to keep porch or driveway lights on in order to help children solicit only from homes willing to give out treats.

O'Brien said the scrip money would be sold at local stores. The Rev. Thomas Fielding of St. Colette's Church told the meeting the money could also be sold at churches in order to better promote the plan.

In addition to the chamber and the Jaycees, O'Brien said the Rolling Meadows Park District will cooperate in the plan by giving the money to children at the district's annual Halloween party on Oct. 27. He said the Jaycee-ettes also plan to ask local merchants to allow their store windows to be painted by children for a Halloween contest. The windows would be painted on the weekend before Halloween, judged by the Jaycee-ettes, and displayed through Oct. 31.

THE SCHOOLS will also be asked to cooperate in the plan by organizing affairs for children after they complete trick-or-treating, O'Brien said. He said he has discussed the plan with Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley who in turn said he would bring up the plan to school principals and PTAs.

O'Brien said the schools or PTAs could organize parties for the children in the evenings, providing them with a place to go in the evening rather than continue trick-or-treat during the night.

The school party plan was originally offered by Case as a way to discourage small children from being out at night on Halloween.

"It could be a good program for future years," O'Brien said of the planned events. He added the community-wide effort could become a model for other communities if it is successful in Rolling Meadows.

Further details of the planned Halloween events will be published in the city's October newsletter.

Teachers vote to march to back pay negotiators

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 teachers voted yesterday to support their negotiators by marching on the district administration building during salary talks Monday night.

"The teachers are behind their negotiators," said George Sherman, head of the Classroom Teacher's Council which represents more than 100 per cent of the district's teachers.

The teachers, who started the year without a wage contract, are protesting the lack of a pay settlement. Wages are presently frozen at last year's level, though any settlement will be retroactive from the beginning of the school year.

according to board negotiator Wall Sundling.

Sherman said the teachers will meet at Pleasant Hill School, 434 W. Illinois at 6:30 p.m. Monday. Then they will escort their negotiators to the salary talks being held in the nearby administration center, 503 S. Quentin.

No action is being planned for the weekend. "The teachers felt that more protest action would be harassment," said Sherman.

Auditors to hear U.S. fund pleas

The last group of revenue-sharing requests will be reviewed Monday by Palatine Township auditors at 8 p.m. in town hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Agencies which will be discussed include Countryside Center for the Handicapped; Shelter Inc.; Crossroads Clinic; Palatine Village Board; Salt Creek Rural Park District; Headstart program; Palatine Library; and a special parents' committee to get sidewalks leading to Palatine Hills Junior High School.

Six other local agencies have already received portions of the township's revenue sharing money: Northwest Opportunity Center, $4,500; Northwest Mental Health Clinic, $6,500; Community Child Care Center of Palatine Township, $12,000; Palatine Township Council for the Aged, $14,000; Township flooding equipment, $7,500; and Clearbrook Center for the mentally retarded, $13,000.

Revenue sharing is a federal program which allots a portion of the federal government's income to all state and local municipalities for specific areas of spending.

Palatine Township officials have been studying how to spend their estimated $71,000 share for more than six months.

Soldier arrested on drug charges

A 21-year-old soldier who attempted to sell marijuana to two youths has been arrested by Rolling Meadows police.

Police arrested Joseph Nathan Davis, 4029 W. Monroe St., Chicago, Wednesday after two youths told police he tried to sell narcotics to them. Police apprehended Davis driving toward Rolling Meadows High School, where the youths told police he was headed.

About a pound of marijuana was found in envelopes hidden in boots on the rear floor of the car Davis was driving, according to police. Police said the car is registered to a Wilson Wilton of Palatine.

Davis is stationed with the Army's 45th Artillery brigade at the Arlington Heights Nike Base, police said.

Police have charged Davis with possession of narcotics. Bond has been set at $5,000 and a court date of Oct. 19 was set in Arlington Heights Circuit Court.

Police said Davis will be tried in civilian court before any military court action that may be ordered.

Besides his duties as a priest, Father Vitro will help with the Sacred Heart recruiting program and work with religion teachers.

Father Vitro has a master's degree in guidance and counseling.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE and KAREN BLECHA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forehead. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found near scene

Body of murder victim found in Busse Woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday. INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

Contest begins today

A fishing derby takes time...

It took more than 20 hours of steady work to turn chlorinated swimming pool water an ugly green for a 10-day trout-fishing derby starting at 7 p.m. today in the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

"Everything has to be done just right or the fish will die," said Rudy Nelson, facility coordinator. Any chlorine or algaecides in the water could destroy the fish and the $1,000 investment the park district made in work hours and purchasing fish, fish food and bait, he said.

THE DERBY, being held at the Rolling Meadows swimming pool, 3900 Owl Dr., will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. on week nights. Saturdays and Sundays, the pool will open for two-hour sessions at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. The last day is Oct. 14.

Bait will be sold by the park district, but fishing rods will not be supplied, said Nelson. Entry costs are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Another $1 will be charged for each fish caught.

Prizes will be awarded for each boy, girl and adult that catches the largest fish. The youngsters will win a trophy and the adult will win a rod and reel set.

Work on the derby began as soon as the pool closed Labor Day, Nelson said. The water was drained until only 3 feet were left and the purification system was shut down. "Then we let it sit," he said.

One month later, the pool was filled again — with non-chlorinated water. Poles were set up to bring up the stagnant water from the bottom of the pool and spray it around the top. Nelson said this adds needed oxygen to the water.

A COMPRESSOR to add even more oxygen was put in later. "You have to play it safe," said Nelson. Without oxygen, the fish would die.

Last year, using the same methods, only four fish out of approximately 600 died, according to Nelson. "That's pretty remarkable," he said.

One fish even managed to survive until last spring when the annual spring cleaning forced him out.

"We'd like to have every fish pulled out by a fisherman," Nelson said. Left-over fish cause problems for people cleaning the pool in the spring, he added.

State Department rapped

Young asks probe in Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 23, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommate were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

In 1970, Quebec separatists in Montreal kidnapped British diplomat James Cross, demanding $500,000 and the release of 23 political prisoners.

A thought for the day:

British historian George Macaulay Trevelyan said, "Education has produced a vast population able to read...but unable to distinguish what is worth reading."

The $10,000 question

Who will pay for sidewalks?

Three local governmental bodies are talking about it, but no one's decided the $10,000 question yet.

Who will build sidewalks along Smith Road from Northwest Highway north to Palatine Hills Junior High School?

Will the Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 board of education that precipitated the problem by building Palatine Hills Junior High School hand out money for a safe walkway?

Will the village of Palatine that has children going to the junior high school in unincorporated Palatine Township give some of its municipal funds? Presently the village government is refunding tax money to village residents in the form of free garbage bags.

Will Palatine Township government pay for the construction? The 1/2 mile stretch of property, lacking any kind of a walkway is in township boundaries and the township still has unspent revenue sharing money.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, representatives from all three governmental agencies got together to decide who should pay what and how much.

They discussed working together and what problems they might encounter in building a sidewalk. Then they went into executive session to talk about purchasing a right-of-way for possible sidewalks.

They will report to their respective boards early next week and hold another meeting Oct. 11. None of the representatives can offer any money until they get specific approval from their respective governing boards.

Board approvals for spending money is generally based on some fairly definite dollar figures. But before working out a formula to determine how much each agency should pay, the representatives need to know the cost of the entire project, according to Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley.

To find out costs would mean talking to engineers and construction companies — and spending money to get a cost analysis.

SOMEONE, in other words, has to offer to pay an engineering fee to discover the actual cost. Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley said the actual construction of the sidewalk, not including the purchase of right-of-way which would permit the construction, could cost about $10,000.

He emphasized this was only a "ball-park" figure.

While this is going on at administrative levels, about 200 junior high youngsters are walking on a hilly stretch of road with virtually no shoulders and a 45 m.p.h. speed limit.

One member of the Parents for the Safety of Students (SOS), which was formed to work for a sidewalk, wondered why the school district didn't foresee the dangers of walking to the school.

"Why was the school built there?" she asked.

ACCORDING TO Dist. 15 board member Joel Meyer, the school district works ahead of development. To keep costs down, he said the district buys land in areas where they predict future development.

Once the initial development begins, they start constructing a new school, preparing for an expected influx of students. Often, Meyer said, the school will open before sidewalks are put in.

"The community will eventually catch up with us," he said, pointing to Winston Park School, which had a similar problem when it was first built. Sidewalks were eventually constructed, but Meyer said he did not know who paid for the construction — it was not the school district, he added.

Other schools in Dist. 15, such as Marion Jordan, also have transportation difficulties, according to several Dist. 15 officials. The transportation committee of the Dist. 15 board is studying the problem. No deadline date has been established for a recommendation.

Whether the district has the money to pay for sidewalks is unknown. They can, legally, build 1/4 mile of sidewalk, though they can't purchase the right-of-way.

To find area medical needs

Hospital developers await survey

by LYNN ASINOF

Developers of a proposed full-service hospital in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove are waiting for the results of two surveys on medical needs in the area before deciding to file for a hospital permit with the state.

Norman Davis, hospital consultant for the unnamed group of developers, said yesterday these surveys are not yet complete. He said planning for the hospital cannot proceed until developers review the surveys to see if there is a need for a hospital in the Wheeling area.

Preliminary response to a survey of the professional medical community in the area has been good so far, according to Davis. He said about 60 of 125 surveys have been returned.

"It's been a pretty good response," he said. "I was quite surprised." Davis said, however, he is now waiting for a survey of area residents to be completed. He said this survey is actually more important to preliminary studies on the proposed hospital.

"That's the thing that I'm waiting on. It's like a Gallup Poll-type thing," he said. "That will show medical habits and where they're going and why, and that will really help us determine our service area."

THE COMMUNITY survey, however, has not yet been started, according to Village Pres. Ted Scanlon. "We're completing the work on it so we know what we're doing," he said. "I have to get the paper work ready first."

According to Davis, the local survey is going to be conducted by a village community organization. Scanlon said he has not yet decided which village group will handle the survey.

When he announced plans for the hospital last month, Scanlon said the community survey would be under way in about a week. He also said the village was about "six inches away" from finalizing plans for the hospital which would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, western Northbrook and areas just north of Wheeling.

SCANLON SAID the hospital size would range from 200 to 450 beds. He declined to name the group developing the project, but described the developers as a not-for-profit organization.

The group has been negotiating for the Childerly Retreat House property at 506 McHenry Rd., The Herald has learned. No action has been taken to purchase the site since plans for the hospital are still tentative, Davis said.

If the survey shows a positive need for a hospital in Wheeling, the developers will then file with the state for a permit and submit plans to Comprehensive Health Planning Inc., a quasi-governmental planning agency.

"If this survey was positive in that it showed a need for a hospital of 150 beds on up, we'd be willing to take a crack at it," he said. "But there's a possibility this thing may show there's no need, and then we'd say goodbye."

DAVIS SAID he did not think it would take long to finalize the feasibility study once the data from the surveys is available.

Scanlon said he has been contacted by some people who have expressed opposition to the hospital. He said he is planning to meet with Alan Weinstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, who has questioned the need for another hospital in the area.

According to Scanlon, the meeting will be "to see what the problems are and to discuss the pros and cons."

Weinstein and other regional health planners have said that a new hospital in Wheeling may prove an unnecessary facility which will increase health care costs in the area.

Residents vote 'no' on collecting for snake hunt

Residents of Buffalo Grove by more than a two-to-one margin have said the village should not attempt to collect, from the keeper of Seymour the snake, the cost of the recent search.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said Wednesday, of the 51 persons who expressed their opinions, 35 said the village should not collect the money, 15 said the village should collect and one said the village should pay 50 per cent of the cost.

Following the escape of Seymour, the village board passed a resolution to bill the keeper of the snake, David Pearson, 18, of 568 Maple Dr., or his father, Harold, for the cost of the search. Seymour, a harmless rat snake, originally believed to be a deadly Egyptian cobra, escaped from the Pearson home Aug. 25 and has never been found.

THE RESOLUTION states that if the Pearsons cannot or will not pay the bill, the village should initiate court action to recover the costs.

About three weeks ago the village mailed a bill for $1,338 to the Pearson home to cover policemen's and firemen's salaries, equipment operation costs and the cost of exterminating the home.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the Pearsons have not contacted the village concerning the bill. They could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Hoffman Estates would share costs

Lake Michigan said to be best future water source

The most advantageous source of water for Hoffman Estates in the future would be the City of Chicago, a village board water committee was told this week. And the cheapest way to get it would be splitting costs and the water with the villages of Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

The committee met Gerald F. Rehm, an engineer with Greeley and Hansen water consultants, to discuss possible membership in the DAMP water commission, including Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

DAMP was formed in 1937, with Des Plaines also a member, to improve water supply for member communities by obtaining Lake Michigan water. Des Plaines has since withdrawn.

Rehm advised the committee not to look to DAMP as a water source. The commission has been caught in extensive legal battles to win water allocations which would reduce the amount allocated to the Metropolitan Sanitary District, he said.

WITH DAMP, there is no guarantee of a water allocation, and no assurance any allocation would be increased for future needs, said Rehm. DAMP and similar organizations "are all kind of in a state of limbo. If they will get off the ground in five to 10 years is hard to say," Rehm said.

The village could install a pipeline to Des Plaines, and purchase water from that city, which already is buying from the City of Chicago, Rehm said. But Hoffman Estates then would be subject to potential rate increases or supply limits that Des Plaines could impose, he noted.

"You would be far better off to run (a pipeline) to the City of Chicago" directly, Rehm said, suggesting a possible route could be from Mannheim Road through Elk Grove and to Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg along Higgins Road. The villages could all receive the water, and the cost would be much less for each village than if they ran separate pipelines, he said.

Lake Michigan water would be an alternative to continued use of deep wells to obtain water from underground lakes. Rehm said the level of those lakes is dropping an average 10 feet per year, and cited a state report which said wells at a depth of 1,000 feet soon will be common.

REHM ESTIMATED a possible cost for a pipeline system at $4 million for the pipeline, a pumping station and sufficient reservoirs, enough to store a 3-day supply for each village.

Greeley and Hansen could conduct a detailed study of such a project for the village in from six months to a year, said Rehm, who was unable to estimate the fee.

Trustee Bruce Lind, committee chairman, said he would relay Rehm's information to the village board within the next two weeks, and the board may ask Greeley and Hansen for a firm estimate of the study cost.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strawn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE
and KAREN BLECHIA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forearm. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Congressman asks probe in youth's Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 27, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-III. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

"Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

The young man had last talked to his parents on Sept. 17. He and his roommates were taken into custody on Sept. 20. Teruggi was apparently shot on Sept. 21 or 22.

Babysitting course will open Nov. 10

The Schaumburg Fire Prevention Bureau will once again offer a free babysitting course for village residents. It will start Nov. 10.

The classes, to open at 9 a.m. three Saturdays, will feature procedures in cases of fire, medical and police emergencies.

To be eligible for the course, a person must be at least 12 years old. Adults are urged to participate.

A location for the course has not been determined.

Public library running over its budget

The Schaumburg Township Public Library is spending more money this year than it budgeted for utilities, library assistant's salaries and administrative expenses.

At Wednesday's library board session, Jack Lucas, library trustee, expressed concern about dwindling and deficit accounts.

Librarian Michael Madden said the library expected to spend approximately $23,000 this budget year on utility payments. But in the first seven months, $22,014.43 has been paid in utility bills and the account is down to $5,105.57.

"We did not anticipate such big utility bills in our new wing," Madden said.

The library had planned to spend approximately $97,000 on salaries, but has already spent $37,106.82 in seven months.

More persons were hired than was expected. "People will be paid, we will just have to owe that fund also," said Madden.

For administrative expenses, $4,300 was earmarked for conferences, dues and travel. But $5,235.99 has been spent with that account facing a $735.99 deficit.

"ALTHOUGH THE library has about $9,000 in a contingency fund, a couple months of utility bills will eat it all up," said Lucas.

He called for an immediate budget committee meeting to begin work on the next budget.

Madden said several other accounts will have surplus balances. "We cannot transfer from fund to fund but in the end it all gets straightened out," he said.

He explained budget transfers cannot be made during a budget year but the surplus funds are pooled at the end of the year.

Lucas's concern was that other funds may also become deficit.

He requested Madden prepare an addition to the budget report, showing projections of revenue and expenditures for each of the remaining five months.

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found near scene

Body of murder victim found in Busse Woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebec, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebec, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebec. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

But lots of questions

Parks find few referendum foes

Rounding into the homestretch after two weeks of presenting referendum information to residents, Schaumburg Park District officials faced no stern opposition to plans proposed in a $2.5 million referendum to be held Oct. 13.

Two Schaumburg Park Board commissioners met Wednesday night with the Sheffield Manor Homeowners Association. And the same old question was voiced by residents — "What is there for us?" Other homeowner groups have made the same query.

Sheffield Manor is in the extreme northwest corner of Schaumburg, where Levitt & Sons Inc. is building homes. The nearest park facility to be improved under the referendum is the Hoover park-school site, more than 1½ miles from Sheffield Manor.

COMR. JOSEPH ROBERTS Jr. told the homeowners there are no present plans for their area because the park district has not acquired land there. He pointed out district and Levitt officials have discussed possible land donations, but added nothing has been decided. Most park district land has been donated by developers and the school district.

"It's very delicate," Roberts said. "We can't tell you because of the negotiations."

"But we are concerned that we don't have anything for you," Roberts said.

Some of the 55 acres in Strathmore Schaumburg promised by Levitt to the park district are not usable because they are peat bogs or under water, he said.

COMR. DAVE JOHNSON said he has seen children playing baseball in Sheffield Manor streets and he would like to find an open area for the children. But both commissioners said nothing can be done until land is acquired from Levitt.

If Levitt hands over a deed to usable land soon, the park district probably could install playground equipment and rough grade and seed the area, Johnson said. However, he said it would take another bond issue to completely develop such a site.

Roberts told the residents they will gain from the referendum because it will provide improvements in the western part of the village.

The referendum is divided into two sections — park improvements ($1.8 million) and Spring Valley land acquisition ($700,000). Each section will be voted on separately by residents.

Under park improvements, the park district is proposing development at 14 park and park-school sites, a maintenance garage, an enclosure for Atcher Pool, an Olympic-sized pool at Meineke Park, tennis courts, lighted recreation fields and an outdoor hockey rink.

A ONE-MAN BAND — that's what Hoffman Estates School third grader Jon Triphahn wants to be. He decided that while studying science, he said. Jon and other youngsters in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 make their own musical instruments, incorporating some of the sound principles they learned in the "Whistles and Strings" science unit investigating the relationship between objects and sounds.

Levitt gets OK to plan for two service stations

Levitt & Sons won approval to plan two gasoline service stations in the north section of its 279-acre tract from the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals this week.

Stations are proposed for Golf Road near Walnut Lane near Levitt's Sheffield Towne, a townhouse development, and at Knollwood Drive and Bode Road near Sheffield Manor, a quadhome complex.

Judy Potier, 833 Canaby Ct., objected to the site near Walnut Lane. She said Levitt representatives gave residents the impression plans for a service station there had been abandoned two years ago. Mrs. Potier is a member of the executive board of Sheffield Towne Homeowners Association.

TWO OTHER service station sites were denied.

The zoning board will recommend approval by the village board Tuesday but discussion and action is not expected until Oct. 23. In urging approval, Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, will ask that demolition of a service station be required if it remains unoccupied for a period of six months.

He will also ask trustees to request plans for the stations be submitted to either the zoning board or plans commission for approval.

In other action, the zoning board agreed to recommend rezoning 23.9 commercial acres to a multiple-family district. The land is south of Golf Rd. and east of Knollwood Drive.

High school band opens season Sunday

The Schaumburg High School Jazz Band will open its performing year at the Sheraton-Walden Hotel in Schaumburg Sunday. The 20-member organization, directed by Rollin R. Potter, will be part of the Sheraton's Octoberfest and will present concerts at 2 and 4 p.m. The band's membership is made up of selected players from the Schaumburg High School bands.

U.S. Senate panel approves Salt Creek resolution

The U. S. Senate Public Works Committee approved a resolution yesterday for the funding of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

Only action by the U. S. House Public Works Committee has to be taken before federal funding for about half of the $24.5 million program will be approved. House hearings are scheduled for later in the month and passage of a resolution is expected.

A spokesman for U. S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said the resolution was quickly passed after brief testimony was presented.

Stevenson submitted a statement to the committee calling for the passage of the resolution because the plan would provide "flood control for thousands and recreation for millions."

Stevenson called the plan, "an example in cooperation between local, state and federal governments."

The Senate resolution and the expected House resolution do not appropriate any funds for the flood control project. The resolutions, however, permit the U. S.

Soil Conservation Service to use part of its already appropriated flood control budget for the Upper Salt Creek project.

Work on the Upper Salt Creek flood control project has already begun using state approved funds. The project, expected to take nine years to complete, would reduce flooding in the creek by up to 90 per cent.

Parents' group to meet

Schaumburg High School Very Important Parents (VIP) will meet Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. in Room 216 at the school on 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd.

A member of the village fire department staff will speak to the group on fire safety in the home and school.

A VIP spokesman urged parents of all Schaumburg High School students to attend the meeting which will also involve planning for Ziggy's Fallies and other fund raising events scheduled during the coming year.

A discussion of general needs at Schaumburg High School is also planned.

Belly dancing classes added

Response to a Hoffman Estates Park District program of the ancient Oriental art of belly dancing has been so great that the park district has added two more classes.

Limited openings still are available for classes scheduled for 6 to 7 p.m. Thursdays and 10 to 11 a.m. Wednesdays. Belly dancing is not only good for muscle coordination, but for slimming down on midriff bulge.

For more information call the Village Administration Center at 885-7300.

Lesniak to head ACI

Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry has announced the recent election of Joe Lesniak, of Colonial Chevrolet, as president.

Lesniak succeeds Walter Kukla, formerly of Woodfield Bank, who resigned recently.

Other new officers include Les Larson, of Union Oil, who replaces Lesniak as vice president, and Kenneth B. Wolmer, of Schaumburg, Airport, Inc., who will serve as association secretary.

Plans are being completed for an Oct. 17 Brat and Brew to be held at 8 p.m. at the airport, West Irving Park Road. The event will be open to members and non-members.

Firemen answer call on toast conflagration

Pat Moritz of Hoffman Estates thought her house was on fire yesterday afternoon.

Her call for help at 1:15 p.m. sent two Hoffman Estates police cars, two Hoffman Estates fire trucks and one Schaumburg fire truck streaking to the Moritz home at 134 Newark Ln.

But when firemen arrived they calmed Mrs. Moritz with the news the smoke filtering from her kitchen came from toast burnt in an apparently defective toaster.

Library board threatened with suit

A paving contractor threatens Schaumburg Township Public Library trustees with a personal lien on their property because he has not received full payment for his work.

John J. Ward and Co., of Medinah, told trustees Wednesday he will sue to recover approximately $9,000 still due on a $20,000 paving job he completed two years ago.

Ward is a subcontractor for Ockerlund Construction of Wheaton, which was general contractor for the new library wing. He told the trustees Ockerlund says it has not been paid and so will not pay him.

Chicagoan charged with deception

Kenneth Lewis, 35, of Chicago, is scheduled to appear in Schaumburg Branch of Cook County Circuit Court Oct. 10 on a charge of attempted theft by deception.

Schaumburg police said yesterday Lewis was arrested Tuesday evening at the entrance to Sears at Woodfield Mall. Lewis allegedly attempted to sell television sets to an individual he contacted by telephone. Authorities, acting on information from other police departments, stalked out the store.

Lewis was being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found nearby

Find murder victim body in woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

LI. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

Village officials cite a need for low, moderate housing

by MARCIA KRAMER

Mount Prospect officials generally agree that there's a need for low-and moderate-income housing in the village, particularly for senior citizens.

Village trustees contacted by The Herald basically agreed in principle with a report issued earlier this week by the Regional Housing Coalition calling for low-and moderate-income housing in the suburbs, but were cautious about how many units are needed and where they ought to go.

The report was referred to the community services and mental health commission for study, and copies were also sent to the planning commission and zoning board of appeals.

MOUNT PROSPECT Mayor Robert D. Teichert is a member of the housing coalition's 12-man steering committee and has endorsed the concept of providing low-and moderate-income housing.

Teichert and members of the village board regard low-cost housing for the elderly as particularly desirable.

"For senior citizens, the sooner the better," said Trustee Donald B. Furst.

Low-and moderate-income housing, in general, he said, is "worth consideration." The concept of providing housing for workers at local industrial plants who otherwise couldn't afford to live in the area is "a reasonable assumption," Furst said, "but I don't know how it would affect Mount Prospect."

ANOTHER TRUSTEE, Errol F. Richardson, also said there is "no question" in his mind that housing should be provided at low cost to senior citizens.

Of low-and moderate-income housing, he said he is "not opposed to the concept, but I would like to see detailed plans."

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten said he believes "there is a need" for low-and moderate-income dwellings. "It's just a matter of where it is placed," he said.

Trustee Patrick J. Link also stated that there's a need for low-income housing, which he felt should be dispersed throughout the suburbs, rather than bunched up in one particular area.

The housing coalition had suggested 12,000 housing units be built in the Northwest suburbs in the next 10 years.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks said he would be influenced in his outlook by how the citizens regard a low-and moderate-income project. "If they show objections to it or are for it, that's the way I would go," he said. Virtually all of the comments he's heard so far, he said, have been negative.

Trustee George B. Anderson was unavailable for comment.

MEANWHILE, THE leader of a large homeowner's association organization said she felt low-and moderate-income housing is not needed in Mount Prospect.

Marie D. Caylor, president of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, which includes eight homeowners groups, said: "I don't feel there are that many people that live or work in this immediate area that would be interested in low-or moderate-income housing."

If the housing were available to the elderly, though, "it should be given serious thought," she said.

Michael Minton, a defeated candidate for mayor whose platform was based mainly on opposition to apartments and high rises, said he is "not against federally-subsidized low-income housing as such," but felt residents should be consulted as to just what is built in the village.

"It's not fair for the people of Mount Prospect to have anything imposed on them," he said.

Teichert denied that anything was being imposed on residents. "If they feel this is something being pushed on them, they will fight it and I don't blame them," he said, stressing that the program is "purely voluntary."

School program for gifted gets state authorities' OK

Mount Prospect School Dist. 57's proposed gifted program for the current school year has been approved by state educational authorities. This approval means the program is eligible for about $6,500 reimbursement from state funds.

The gifted program, which began last year, focuses on individualized instruction for exceptional students through resource centers and special classes. Teachers are taught to understand the gifted child and to emphasize inductive reasoning and student groups.

The new music-art-drama elective for Lincoln Junior High School eighth graders is an example of team teaching, which is also being stressed. Students in the course are studying the three arts at the same time and will produce their own musical plays at the end of each semester.

ACCORDING TO Dwight Hall, assistant superintendent for the district, the course is facet of a shift in emphasis of the gifted program from the elementary school level to the junior high school level. He said developmental reading and video-taped instruction will also be used.

In a related matter, Hall said a student-produced booklet, "It Goes Like . . . That," has been awarded a letter of commendation from Harold C. Lyon Jr., director for education of the gifted and talented, United States Office of Education.

The booklet was put together last year by Lincoln Junior High School students under the direction of teachers Kathy Bell and Ed Dzierzynski. It featured creative writing and art work.

Historical society finds a new home

The Mount Prospect Historical Society has found a home in one of the oldest buildings in the village.

The St. John Lutheran School building, which was constructed in 1801, will appropriately become the first permanent location of the historical society.

The society will occupy the one-story building, at 1100 Linneman Rd., for 10 years, under an agreement with the church. An historical museum is expected to be set up, along with storage space and meeting rooms.

"WE'VE BEEN LOOKING for a place for 10 years," said historical society Pres. Clarence O. Schlaver. "We've never had a home, really."

Until now, historical artifacts have been kept in the home of the 300 historical society members.

NOW WITH development of a museum, "We'll have a place where the school children of today can see what happened yesterday," Schlaver said.

Historical society items include photographs and antiques dating back to early settlement of Mount Prospect in 1847.

The new building will be available to the historical society at no charge, but some renovation will be needed to bring the building to fire code standards. No date has been set for opening the historical museum, which is not expected for several months.

The historical society recently applied to Elk Grove and Wheeling townships for revenue-sharing funds which would be used to renovate the building.

The Lutheran school had been used by St. John Lutheran Church until this past June. The church's school now is conducted in a new building across the street from the historical society building.

Parks initiate touch football for teens

A touch football program for high school boys has been formed by the River Trails Park District.

Teams will be chosen before each game. Games are open with no fees. The games will be played from 7:30 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday under the lights behind the Euclid Avenue swimming pool.

Theodore A. Blech, recreation supervisor, said men are needed to fill the park district's basketball and volleyball programs. Volleyball is from 8 to 10 p.m. Mondays at Robert Frost School, Aspen Drive. Basketball is from 8 to 10 p.m. Thursdays at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 N. Wolf Rd. The fee for each nine-week session is $3.

Further information is available at the park district office, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., or by telephone at 298-4443.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their side. It was a mock disaster drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE
and KAREN BLECHA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion—over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forehead. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second-largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Cash gift sought from developer

The Dist. 23 School Board next Wednesday will meet with Wheeling developer Victor Smigel to discuss a possible cash donation to the district.

Smigel is proposing to build The Forums, a 150-unit condominium project just west of Muir School on Elmhurst Road in Wheeling.

Supt. Edward Grodsky said the school district will request a cash donation from Smigel to help offset the economic impact of the development on the district.

There could be a tax lag of up to three years before Dist. 23 begins receiving taxes from the project, according to Grodsky.

Grodsky said he has discussed a donation with Smigel, but no figure has been set.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 709 N. Schoenbeck Rd.

Housing plans on agenda

The planning committee of the Dist. 23 School Board next Wednesday will view plans for a proposed Arlington Heights development adjacent to the district.

Sizesany Builders, developer of the proposed project, have asked the school board to approve the plans. The project will include both single and multi-family units.

Representatives of the Arlington Heights Terrace Homeowners, who are opposed to the development, are to attend the meeting at 7 p.m. in the administration building.

$200 for volunteer agency

The Dist. 23 School Board Wednesday night voted to donate $200 to the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County.

The volunteer services bureau depends on the financial aid of the school districts it serves in the Northwest suburban area.

The bureau supplies volunteer aids to several local districts.

NANCY VAN KAMPEN was named to the Dean's List at the Cleveland School of Music, a part of Case Western Reserve University. Nancy, the daughter of the Rudolph A. Wangerins, 14 N. Louis, is a former Miss Mount Prospect (1968), was a Prospect High School Rhythmette and a member of the Melotones. Her husband, Craig, son of the Russell Van Kampens of 203 S. Lancaster, graduated with a major in chemical engineering from Case last June and is now in the graduate school there. He is a former Prospect High School football player.

BEST WISHES TO Sophie Mueller (Mrs. J. E. A.), formerly of 110 S. Elm St. She recently moved to the Lutheran Home in Arlington Heights.

HAVE YOU SEEN C. O. Schlaver's office (Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce) at 119 S. Emerson Street? He has some interesting items on the wall. In addition to several awards and plaques, he has a very attractive framed "scribble line" painted by his two year old grandson, drawing specially "for grandpa's office." Also, C. O.'s daughter has done a lovely free form painting. Then, there's a wood carving print given him to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the magazine on which he previously worked, The Quill. And, in a humorous vein, there's a sign saying, "Only Robinson Crusoe could get everything done by Friday."

THERE ARE 50 high school students from 14 local churches who have put together an adaptation of "Godspell." The first performance of the dramatic musical program will be at South Church Sunday, Oct. 21, 8:30 a.m. Their second performance will be at Trinity Methodist, Oct. 28, 9:30 a.m.

These kids have put this whole thing together by themselves. They've been meeting at South Church, have been encouraged by Pastor Warren Sapp. The student musical director is Chris Corron, the managing directors are teenagers Linda Welles and Carol Hoffman, the spirit leader is John Cooper.

DOWNTOWN MOUNT PROSPECT should look great this Christmas! New and revamped old holiday decorations will be hanging from all of the poles in the central district. The decorations are large green wreaths with a lantern and candle in the center of them. They'll be on Main Street, Northwest Highway, Prospect Avenue and then will fan out in the central area as far as they will go. There are 35 new decorative pieces and about that many redone old ones. They should be up and in place for the start of the Christmas shopping season.

Congressman asks probe in youth's Chile death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 23, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi. "Even in times of turmoil, any government has certain responsibilities to protect the rights and safety of foreign nationals. It appears that these responsibilities were not met during the violent upheaval in Chile," Percy said.

The State Department had not released any details regarding the young man's death, but the results of a preliminary autopsy reported that the cause of death was gunshot wounds.

Traffic studies set on Cherrywood Lane

Traffic studies will be made along Cherrywood Lane in the Mount Shire subdivision in Mount Prospect to determine whether stop signs are needed.

The study is taking place at the request of a resident, Greg Paradowicz, 1102 S. Cherrywood, who told village trustees that many drivers cut through the subdivision, where numerous children live, to avoid the stop light at Golf and Busse roads.

Specific checks will be made where Cherrywood intersects Palm Drive and Willow Lane to determine whether traffic at the two corners warrants a stop sign.

Football field new Dempster hangout

by BOB GALLAS
Every afternoon at 3:10, Dempster Junior High students pour out of the school building and head for their favorite hangout.

The hangout isn't the traditional mall shop in the movie "West Side Story," nor is it a local store or street corner. The students like to gather on the football field.

From 80 to 90 per cent of the junior high's students participate in an intramural program, one of the fastest-growing programs in the area. Competition, in sports ranging from football to gymnastics, is fierce.

"We try to make up teams according to homerooms whenever possible," said Stephen Aschbacher, director of the intramural program, "so there are a lot of rivalries."

"The turnout so far has been fantastic," he said. "Last year, which was the first year for intramurals here, we had 500 of the school's 700 boys participate at some time during the year," he said.

PARTICIPATION doesn't always mean physical involvement either, according to Aschbacher. "We give points to each homeroom according to how many students in the homeroom participate," said Aschbacher. "The homeroom with the most points at the end of the year gets an award," he said.

Participation comes in many forms, according to Aschbacher. "Attending a game to cheer for your team counts toward homeroom points, too," he said.

Girls aren't ignored in the program, either. Volleyball is offered during the fall, gymnastics in the winter and track in the spring.

In addition to football, the boys have volleyball, basketball and floor hockey in the winter with softball and track in the spring.

Interest in the intramural program through a change in homeroom assignments which has been done at other local junior highs. "Students would be grouped by their abilities in gym class," he said, "so homerooms will all have about the same number of boys and girls of varying abilities."

"Right now," said Aschbacher, "some homerooms have 15 boys while others have five. We have to combine homerooms and even that doesn't always make for equal teams," he said.

There is one obstacle in Aschbacher's goal of getting 90 per cent participation. "Eighth-graders have a much lower participation level, since that's about the age they develop an interest in the opposite sex," said Aschbacher.

"Sometimes it's a little hard to convince a guy that playing football is more fun than walking a new girlfriend home," he said.

Retention basin could solve school flooding

A solution appears to have been found to the drainage problems that have plagued John Muir School for the past two years.

The problems at the Dist. 23 school were created with the construction of Pleasant Run condominiums off Elmhurst Road in Wheeling. Water from the development flows onto the Drake Terrace School site causing dangerous ponding.

Another Wheeling condominium project, The Forums, is proposed just west of Pleasant Run. The developers plan to connect their drainage system with the Pleasant Run storm sewer, Dist. 23 officials feared the action would compound Muir flooding.

A SOLUTION TO the problem was worked out Wednesday night by the Dist. 23 School Board and yet another Wheeling developer, John Glorioso. He told the board he is buying the Lempe farm property northeast of Muir School.

Glorioso plans to build a retention basin on the property that will be adequate to accommodate the drainage from both Pleasant Run and The Forums. The water from the two developments will be piped underground around the Muir School to the basin.

Dist. 23 attorney Henry Vallely was directed by the board to draw up an agreement giving Glorioso easements for underground pipes to run along the south, east and west boundaries of Muir.

As soon as the agreement is signed by both parties, Glorioso told the board he will begin construction of the basin. He hopes to have it completed, he said, by next spring.

Glorioso would not say when asked by the school board if he has plans to develop the Lempe farm at the present time. He could not be reached for comment yesterday.

For those not interested in sports, according to Aschbacher, there are other alternatives for after-school activity such as clubs for chess, stamps, guitar, and drama along with other social groups.

ASCHBACHER'S GOAL is to get 80 to 90 per cent participation in the program from boys and girls. "We'd rather see the kids here than on the streets, in the stores or in front of the TV after school," Aschbacher said.

Aschbacher would like to increase in-

INVESTIGATOR Earl Lundquist of the Cook County Sheriff's Police looks for clues in the death of a man, whose body was found in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms.

Shotgun shells found nearby

Find murder victim body in woods

Cook County sheriff's investigators believe a man whose body was found in an Elk Grove Township forest preserve Wednesday was murdered.

The body, which was still unidentified as of late yesterday, was found about 6 p.m. Wednesday night by a man picking mushrooms in the Busse Woods section of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where an autopsy was performed yesterday.

INVESTIGATORS have termed the death a homicide after receiving autopsy results yesterday, but have refused to release details on the cause of death. Two shotgun shells were found near the body by Elk Grove Village police, who were first called to the scene.

The investigator assigned to the case, Earl Lundquist of the sheriff's police, said the two shells were not necessarily connected with the case.

"A lot of poaching goes on in these woods," he said, "so the shells could have come from some hunter."

The body, which was badly decomposed, according to police, was found about 100 feet off the entrance road in a wooded section of grove No. 1 of Busse Woods, about 1,000 feet off Higgins Road. Police said the man had been dead from two to four weeks. No identification was found on the body.

THE VICTIM was described as white, about 20 to 30 years old, with black hair, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and 150 pounds. He had a tattoo of a confederate flag on the left forearm according to police.

Lt. Howard Vanick of the sheriff's department said yesterday, "We're reasonably sure this man was in Kennebunk, Mo., on the 17th or 18th of September." Van-

ick said a bus ticket found on the body led to that theory.

Edgar Fuller, chief of police in Kennebunk, said no one matching the dead man's description has been reported missing in Kennebunk. Fuller speculated the man may have been connected with a carnival that was in town during a local celebration from Sept. 17 to 22.

GROVE NO. 1 OF the forest preserve was closed following the discovery of the body until early afternoon yesterday while about 25 investigators combed in the area within 100 feet of where the body was discovered. Investigators would not say if a murder weapon or any other evidence in the case was found.

The man was "very well dressed in a white long-sleeved shirt with a red print, red pants, a white belt and brown shoes," according to Lundquist. The body was lying on its side, next to the remains of a campfire in a small clearing.

Forest preserve rangers said it wasn't unusual that the body had gone unnoticed for several weeks due to the facts that the forest preserve is so large and that there are "thousands of trails in the preserve."

...And leave the driving to—Metron

Those strange new vehicles around town—they're buses

by KURT BAER

I was skeptical. Buses in Arlington Heights were like ambulances in Disney World — necessary maybe, but not really part of the environment.

But there they stood. Buses, all glass and steel and unmistakable. Standing near the Arlington Heights train station. Their owner's name and telephone number stenciled on their flank: Metron Systems Corp. 394-8500.

For months I had reported the steps leading up to the start of this commuter bus service. Now I was there to ride. It was 5:50, the height of the evening's rush hour, when I climbed aboard.

The bus was readying for the second of three evening runs on Metron's "Yellow Route" to Ivy Hill, Northgate and Windsor Woods. Its new purple-and-white seats are empty, unworn and uncreased. This is a new service.

The first paying customer is Richard Monasterio, 2436 N. Chestnut, a 10-month resident of Arlington Heights.

"It would be a very swift ride home if you didn't have to go across Palatine Road," he says, referring to the stop-lined bottleneck at Arlington Heights and Palatine roads.

MONASTERIO says the Metron bus is convenient for him and he is satisfied with the $15 fare for a monthly pass. During the summer, he sometimes rides a bicycle to the station and he thinks Metron may pick up other bike riders when the weather turns cold.

Another rider, El Nettles, lives in Buffalo Grove's Mill Creek subdivision and has to walk about 300 yards to the Metron bus stop.

"I think it's great. Otherwise my wife has to get up and drive me to the train, or I have to take a taxi," he says.

Nettles says he was spending $2.50 three times a week for a one-way cab ride. Now he rides the bus.

"You can't beat the time in a car. It's a great service and I hope they can get it off the ground. I don't think there's been enough advertising, though. Numerous people, if they were aware of the bus, would grab hold of it," he says.

As the 6:09 C&NW train pulls away from the Arlington Heights station, Metron Bus No. 1 turns north out of the commuter parking lot. There are six passengers aboard.

Homecoming — still big for students

by BETTY LEE

Homecoming means something different to every high school student.

"It's waiting for my boyfriend to come home from college — that will be my homecoming," said a girl.

For one boy, homecoming provides him an opportunity to take out that girl he's been eyeing since school started.

It is one of the biggest social events of the year, and whatever the specialness it holds for each student, the whole student body generates the school spirit.

Traditionally, homecoming is the time when all alumni return to the school on a special occasion. That special occasion invariably would be a football game with the school's archival team.

IN HIGH SCHOOLS, the excitement begins during the week with the voting for a king and queen, the building of floats for parades and choosing and buying new clothes for the dance. But all the events center around the night of the football game.

To drum up school spirit before the game, students sponsor slave days, amusing contests, bake sales and other small events at the school. For those participating in homecoming parades, there's the job of hauling chicken wire and boxes of paper napkins into someone's garage for the building of a float.

At night, with temperatures dipping in the low 50s, students spend hours clipping and shaping the chicken wire. Some hours are spent haggling over the themes for the float.

IT WAS A GHASTLY sight, one that didn't lack for realism. Bodies were strewn about as firemen and medics rushed to their aid. It was a mock disaster

drill ("Operation Libra") held yesterday to test this area's response to airplane crashes or similar catastrophes.

(A fake) Disaster!

It was ghastly—screams, groans, dead bodies; but Operation Libra proved to be successful

by BARRY SIGALE and KAREN BLECHA

Bodies littered the field and all you could hear were screams, groans and cries for help from those who weren't already dead.

Their faces were burned and their bones broken. One boy's body dangled from a tree; another lay where it had been tossed by the explosion — over a rusty plow farmers had left behind years ago. Another boy walked around in a daze, a piece of metal sticking out of his forearm. He leaned over to comfort a girl, but she didn't hear him. She was dead.

Four hours later these teen-agers would be back at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, unscarred, unscathed and each in one piece. But right now they were victims of an airplane crash and they played their roles like Academy Award winners.

The scene of yesterday's Operation Libra, the second largest mock disaster ever staged in the United States. A make-believe jumbo jet carrying 218 passengers and crew had crashed into a field at the corner of Algonquin and Mount Prospect roads in Des Plaines. Civil Defense, police and fire departments from 18 communities were there to get the passengers to five area hospitals alive.

THE PURPOSE OF the disaster was to test the Metropolitan Disaster Plan for an area so close to O'Hare International Airport that the likelihood of a jumbo jet crash isn't far-fetched.

Minutes before the crash, the scene was set. Three school buses, that would serve as the plane's fuselage, rolled onto the site already crowded with officials, press and observers who would critique the drill. Many of the victims, tagged for injuries and their hospital destination, got out on the ground. Some stayed in the bus, hanging out the windows, falling out the doorways.

Fire and police departments knew there was going to be a mock disaster yesterday, but they didn't know exactly what time. At 12:45 p.m. it happened. Smoke bombs were tossed onto the field and an explosion was set off sending a cloud of black smoke into the air.

The Des Plaines Fire Department was the first on the scene and members of the Universal Oil Products (UOP) damage control unit, stationed in the UOP building only a block away, came to help. Minutes later, ambulances filled with paramedics from Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect arrived, and began sorting out those with a chance of living from the dead or those who would die by the time they got to the hospital.

IN FIFTEEN MINUTES, the place was, as one fireman put it, controlled chaos. The moaning and groaning hadn't stopped; it was just drowned

Trash pact handled skillfully

by KURT BAER

There is a compliment due to the Arlington Heights finance committee for the way it has handled garbage contract negotiations over the past nine months.

Trying to recap the history of those meetings is like trying to tell the story of "War and Peace" in a 30 second TV commercial. The plot is as heavy as a full 30-gallon garbage can.

Suffice it to say that since March, when refuse companies turned their backs on the opportunity to submit sealed bids for picking up the trash at the back door, the finance committee has carried on a series of public negotiations that have had at least one beneficial effect — a steadily reducing rate.

Open talks with first one, then two, three and now four different disposal companies have dropped the proposed new rate from a high of $4.13 per month to a low of $3.68.

ALONG THE WAY, residents have won the "right" to dispose of their large, household items on the second pick up day of each week, rather than having to hoard these domestic relics in their basement and garage waiting for a one-time Spring Clean Up.

They have been guaranteed back-door service for five more years, at a rate that will not increase by more than 6 per cent annually.

School and park districts have been given the option of disposing of their own refuse, as they had requested.

All of this applies regardless of which company finally is awarded the contract.

The choice has come down to two firms: the Laseko Disposal Co., the family-run business that has collected trash in the village for the past 45 years; and SCA Services Inc., a corporate giant looking for a toehold in the Chicago area market.

IT'S GOING TO be a close call between these two competitors. Here's a scratch sheet. You pick the winner.

Proposed rate	$5.08 monthly	SCA Services $5.10 monthly
Commercial rate	$3.62 cubic yd.	$3.62 cubic yd.
Escalator	Must justify increases up to 6 per cent yearly maximum.	Guaranteed 5 per cent annual increase.
Service	Backdoor, twice weekly.	Backdoor, twice weekly.
History	Known in village for 45 years.	New to the Chicago area.
Size	Only business here.	Doing business in 23 states.
Finances	Small; locally financed.	Big; member of New York Stock Exchange.
Slogan	"Pleasing you pleases us."	"We pick up where others leave off."

In some cases library has multiple copies

Bestsellers still most popular books

Business is normal at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library as best sellers remain the most asked for by village residents.

"Bestsellers are usually popular in most communities," said Jay Larson, director of adult services. "So I guess we're pretty normal."

Books on the national bestsellers list may be more popular in one geographical area than in another, he said. "Sam Levenson's 'In One Era and Out Another' is a best seller but it's not big around here. Mike Royko's 'Boss' — because Royko is known here and so is Mayor Daley — is bigger here than say in Phoenix (Ariz.)."

THE NOVELS MOST in demand are "The Last Catholic in America," by John R. Powers; "Once is Not Enough," by Jacqueline Susann; "The Hallow Hills," by Mary Stewart; "Harvest Home," by Thomas Tryon; "Breakfast of Champions," by Kurt Vonnegut and "Curse of the Kings," by Victoria Holt.

Borrowers also have been asking for nonfiction work by Normal Mailer, author of "Marilyn"; Flor Schreiber, author of "Sybil"; and Mildred Newman, author of "How to be Your Own Best Friend."

Long waiting lists to borrow these best sellers have been eliminated because of the library's participation in the McNaughton Book Service in Pa. The service enables the library to get multiple copies of the more popular bestsellers and later return them to the company when they are no longer in demand.

Library officials have already ordered new books that will be published in November, including multiple copies of books that might become best sellers.

HOW CAN ONE predict what book will

Two complete course

Two Arlington Heights police department members were among 30 officers from 21 departments who recently completed a six week basic law enforcement course at the Police Training Institute of the University of Illinois, Lisle.

Officer Alan J. Vargo is assigned to regular patrol duties. Officer Joan Marie Melker is assigned to the police youth bureau.

become a best seller? "We go by the author," said Larson. "For example Susan has published before and has a previous record for best sellers. So she's in the public's minds as a bestselling author."

The McNaughton Book Service also publishes a brief review of books, indicating whether the publisher had instituted any major promotion efforts on them. It also points out whether it will be a book club selection, the number of copies at the first printing and other information that might indicate a bestseller.

Reviews of books made by various library journals and newspapers also are used by library personnel.

Larson said that under the plan, the library orders 120 copies of books a month, usually five or six copies of each best seller. "Sometimes there is a real big best seller," said Larson. "I'm O.K., You're Okay" (by Thomas Harris) is one of the biggest. We have 10 copies of that."

IN SEPTEMBER, approximately 57,000 books were circulated to both adult and juvenile patrons. "People are reading in various areas, so I can't say what's more popular," said Larson. "You just know that in general novels outweigh nonfiction in terms of demand. Consistently it has been light reading. Mysteries have been in demand all year around."

Larson did say that career-and occupation-related books are heavily sought for, according to reservation lists. "They want books from improving typing to real estate," he said. The reserve list also indicates that a lot of residents demand craft and how-to-do-it books on macramé, needlepoint and others.

New Progress In Prenatal Nutrition

Nutrition before and after birth may be a determining factor in mental capabilities. Evidence from on going research in this field is growing, and it is leading to the conclusion that the size and number of a child's brain cells may be reduced by infant malnutrition. A newborn weighing two pounds under the normal birth weight may, when he reaches 7 years of age, show a 6 month lag in learning skills.

Vitamin supplements during pregnancy are thus becoming more and more important. We carry a full line of those products that your physician might prescribe, and will be glad to help you with any questions you may have on this topic.

'New' vehicles are called buses

says he has now sold 15 monthly passes for the two routes, with the number increasing slowly each week.

I SOON SUSPECT, by the way she guides the 31-passenger GMC Coach through Arlington Heights' rush-hour traffic, that driver Nellie Neal is no rank beginner.

"Twenty years as a school bus driver," she informs me. "I watched all these homes grow up out of cornfields. . . . Her reminiscence is interrupted by a cheer from the middle of the bus.

"That's the greatest thing since ice cream," a man cries pointing ahead to a still unactivated traffic light hanging darkly over the intersection of Palatine and Arlington Heights roads.

The lights had been hung that morning and are expected to begin flashing their time- and temper-saving messages later this fall.

For Steve Goldspiel, Metron's bus does not go far enough. Goldspiel lives in Buffalo Grove's Stenhamer subdivision and he had not planned on riding the bus to-day or any other day. But his car broke down and now he is glad for a lift.

"They should run this up to Buffalo Grove. If this bus traveled up Arlington Heights Road to Buffalo Grove I'd definitely ride it, every day," he says.

THE BUS WINDS its way through Ivy Hill and an oncoming motorist stops his car and stares expressionless. Three blocks later, two small children stop their games to run to the curb to wave hello.

Metron passenger Steve Goldspiel lived in New Jersey before moving to Buffalo Grove a year ago. He used to commute by bus to New York and Newark.

Perhaps more typical, El Nettles, says it has been years since he last rode a bus.

Larry Hillard lives in the Windsor Woods apartments and the Yellow route passes his front door.

"Certainly a community as large as Arlington Heights is now shouldn't be without some kind of public transportation. It must serve a need," he says. Like the other passengers on the bus tonight, Hillard was riding for convenience.

It was 6:45 when the bus returned to the train station. It had taken 30 minutes to ride the route. Now there'd be more waiting. After the 7:10 train, it would head out again, back across Palatine Road if it had a passenger, back to the garage if it did not.

Nellie Neal's work day was almost over. Tomorrow would begin at 5:30 a.m.

Bake sale tonight

Berkley School PTA will sponsor an open house and bake sale at the school tonight at 7:30 p.m. All parents are invited to attend.

THIS WEEK students from Arlington High School stayed up late nights, not to finish homework, but to build floats for their homecoming parade this afternoon. Sue Kubicek, left, Nancy Mc Carthy, center, and Karen Zisek are members of an office education organization that sponsored the float.

Young asks probe of death

The death of a local man in Chile has brought a call for a complete investigation from a congressman and criticism of the U.S. State Department from a senator.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, yesterday called for a complete and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Teruggi, 21, of 731 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines.

Young, whose congressional district includes Des Plaines called on the State Department to "approach the investigation of young Teruggi with all the vigor at its command."

The State Department said yesterday that the body, which was identified Wednesday in a morgue in Santiago, will be embalmed and sent back to this country.

The young man's father, Frank Teruggi Sr., said he is now making funeral arrangements. It is not expected that the body will return for about a week.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S role in the matter brought sharp criticism from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy R-Ill. He said he felt the State Department should have done more to locate Teruggi.

Joan Rafajko, a senior at Arlington High School. "We almost did, right?"

THE ONLY BRIGHTLY lighted house on the block, the Rafajko residence at 203 N. Yale, was one of the sites of float building. In the garage there was a big reel of foil-covered chicken wire, a flatbed for the float unit, and hundreds of napkins scattered about.

Students came in groups and by themselves. The rumbling of cars in the otherwise quiet neighborhood and the low chatter of the students working by the house were part of the on-going construction.

Somewhere there was music coming from a radio, and sacks of popcorn were passed around.

"It's like the blind leading the blind," said Joan as she watched some other girls pull napkins through the wire loops. She and members of the Office Occupation Club at school decided to build a giant Hersey's kiss candy. Since the Arlington Heights Cardinals tonight are playing their rival, the Huskies of Hersey High School, the theme chosen is. "Kiss Hersey Goodbye."

MEANWHILE, Joan's mother, Mrs. William Rafajko, came out to inspect what was going on. The work fever caught her, too, and she began unrolling the chicken wire. "Now I won't get the house cleaned or the ironing done," she said.

The following nights were similar to this night. The house lights blazed late into the night. Cars kept coming and going. Envoys of workers were sent to the stores to get more supplies and popcorn. And, of course, the talk of homecoming, the game and dance continued on and on.

"I'm getting a new dress, new shoes, and my hair done," said one girl. "My boyfriend's finally taking me. It's senior year."

According to one student, the boys are just as interested in the homecoming festivities as the girls. "There's a lot of school spirit among the guys," he said. "Especially if they have girlfriends."

BUT ACCORDING to the group, the main event of homecoming is still the football game.

"Dances? I think very few go to dances anymore," said Joan. "Homecoming's not that formal. You can go to St. Viators (high school) and dance in a pair of jeans."

But Sue Kubicek, also a student at Arlington High School, disagreed. "A lot of the junior girls are going this year." Both agreed that more people will probably go to the game.

"You know, homecoming's a lot like Christmas," said Joan. "You look forward to it and you're surprised as to how much people can put out."
